

Gen. 1-1

REV. SAMUEL BLACK AND CATHERINE SHAW

^{Immigrant} * Samuel Black was born ca 1700, ^{settled in Scotland} d. 1770 Albemarle Co. VA. His will Bk 2, p. 261/2 25 July 1770, Charlottesville, VA. Witnesses Charles Patrick, Joseph Kinkead, Jean A. Alexander. Will was printed in Pioneer Preacher.

The Roanoke of Colonial Days by F. B. Kegley states that Samuel Black was married at Albemarle Co. Va after having been a missionary among the Scotch Irish in the area of Augusta Co. Va for four years from 1743-47.

Rev. Sam was a single man in 1734, lately from Ireland, according to various listings in Presbyterian publications. A Bible record listed tha Samuel Jr. was born 13 March 1743, which would indicate marriage by about 1742, and wife's birth by 1727 or prior.

THE Colonial Clergy of the Middle Colonies states that Samuel Black came from Ireland; was Ord. Brandywine Manor, Chester Co. Pa; Forks of the Brandywine Church 10 Nov. 1736, settled there 18 Nov. 1735-May 1741; installed Mt. Joy, Adams Co. Pa; Conewago Church, (formerly Franklin), now Geinburg, Pa, May 1742; settled at Mt Joy, 1741-4, April 1745; Londonderry, Lebanon Co, Pa, 1741-45; Peach Bottom, York Co. Pa, Slate Ridge Ch 1757-1758; Rockfish, Nelson Co. Va, 1752-1770; Mountain Plains, Nelson Co. Va 1752-1770; Old Side Presb., died Rockfish, Va on 9 Aug 1770.

Ship Passenger Lists, National and New Eng (1600-1825) by Boyer list Names of Ministers from Ulster, Ireland who served ministry of Presb. Ch. in North America, 1680-1820. Samuel Black, p. 16, Licensed Armagh bef. 1735; Pa, VA, N.C.

1751 Albemarle Co. V.1, p. 341 index, Rev. Sam Black 400 acre deed purchased from Richard Stockton.

1755, Fall Court, Samuel Black made a claim for service in the Militia for patrolling along with others including Charles Patrick and James Alexander. This was during the French and Indian War. (The Tinkling Spring: Headwaters of Freedom, p.145, by Howard McKnight Wilson Th.D. publ. 1954.

It also gives paragraph on Rev. Sam Black, p. 80/81 and 151. Add more.

Chas Patrick had son Chas. who married Sam's grda., d/o Sam Black II.

1797, 12 April Albemarle Co. V. 12, p 333, John Black sold negroes Dinah 22 yrs, Stephen 9 yrs, India 4 yrs, Jane 20 yrs to Catharine Black and William Black for 150 lbs. Witn. William Ramsey, Charles Yancey.

It was unusual for a woman to be named before a man, which may indicate that this was mother Catharine, widow of Rev. Samuel and her son William. Also, William Ramsey lived next to Rev. Samuel Black. Catharine would perhaps have been about 70 yrs old at this time.

Note: Wm Ramsey and Mgt, (d/o Andrew Wallace), were parents of John who married Catharine and Sam Black's daughter Mary.

1798, Sept. Bk 4, p 16-17. Administration papers, Albemarle Co. Va for Catharine Black, deceased, who appears to be widow of Samuel Black. Samuel Black, Esq. Adm. of estate. Property held was Dinah, aged 27, appraised at 70 lbs; India, aged 6 yrs, appraised at 40 lbs; Roger, aged 18 months, appraised at 25 lbs. Also 20 lbs in cash. This property was sold at public auction 6 Oct. 1798 for 145 lbs. Certified 6 Oct. 1798 by William Ramsay, Francis Davis, Joseph Alexander, William Davis. Recorded Dec. Court, 1798. (William Ramsay was likely father or bro. of John who married Samuel Black II's daughter Mary. Joseph Alexander was related by marriage to Rev. Samuel Black I through his brother.

Catharine was apparently younger than her husband. Was she a second wife? (Who was the Rev. Samuel Black who m. Hughart, see Virkus and Chalkeley, Augusta Co.). Could the slave property be traced to Id. her. Note that Rev. Samuel I left a slave Roger in his will. Was he father of the baby Roger?

Researchers have not come up with a connection of Catherine Shaw to James Shaw, but with much cousin marrying within this family, it is possible. Does the Kincaid name which seems to stay connected, have a relationship?

Were the Davis men in Catherine Shaw Black's Adm. papers related to Chesley and Mary Tate Davis of Va and Newberry Co. SC? If so, it would explain why James and Samuel Black were witnesses to her will and Adm. of her estate in 1791 and 1795. Mary Tate was b ca 1733 in Hanover or Fredericksburg, Louisa Co. Va. Her husb. Chesley Davis was b ca 1708 in Md. Also, if perchance Black and Chesley Davis were connected, it would explain how William Shaw, probable son of James and Anner, met and married the Davis granddaughter Polly Waters. See later this document).

Bk 21, p. 38. 7 Dec. 1804, Alb. Co. Samuel Black gave permission to Chesley Tate to cut a ditch on his land to direct water to a water millmill he is building in consideration of some being advantageous to himself and his heirs. SAMUEL BLACK III AND KETURAH SHAW

* Samuel Black III, was s/o Sam², (Rev. Sam¹) and Mary Black. He was b. Oct. 11, 1772, Albemarle Co. Va, d. Oct. 26, 1852, 81st yr of his life, (gravestone). Died Pneumonia, Caldwell Co. Ky. Ky Vital Statistics 1852-1859, p. 32 (Princeton Ky Lib.) and FHC Caldwell Co Reel states Sam Black III was born Albemarle Co. Va., died 26 Oct. 1852 and that his parents were Samuel and Mary Black. His middle initial may have been B.

Samuel Black married Keturah Shaw, Marriage Bond - William Shaw and Samuel Black bound on 12 March 1804, Livingston Co. Ky, recorded prob. at Centerville, which was then the Co. seat. Record is now at Smithland, the present County Seat for Livingston Co. (p. 141, 1799-1808). Pioneer Preacher lists marriage as 13 March 1804. William Shaw was her brother who married Mary Waters, mother of Mariah Elizabeth Trotter who married David Lowery Black, s/o Sam and Keturah.

Keturah Shaw was born Nov. 13, 1779, Kaskaskia, Ill. now Randolph Co., died Aug. 12, 1852, in the 72nd yr of her life, (gravestone Wilds Cem), Caldwell Ky. She was a frontier child in Nashville, TN, lived in a fort. (birthplace 1850 census). See later pages for lengthy narrative on her parents.

Samuel and Keturah were both buried Wilds Cem. near Crider, Ky, where Keturah's parents James and Anna Shaw were buried. James' being the earliest gravestone that is still intact in this cemetery.

(Our Ancestral Plots by Kyle, Wilds Cem., lists Samuel Oct. 11, 1779-Oct. 9, 1859, incorrectly. Keturah, Nov. 13, 1779-Aug. 19, 1859, 79th yr, incorrectly. Book has errors mixing 2 with 9, since the number 2 on the gravestone looks very much like a nine. I viewed this stone Sept. 1991. Caldwell Co. Ky VR lists her death as Mary Black, d. Aug. 12, 1852, age 72, born IL, died from cold chills, par. James and Anner Shaw. I believe this is Keturah, her death date coinciding with gravestone. She may have been Mary Keturah or Keturah Mary. It was common for people in the family to be called by their middle names.

It is not known when Sam left Albemarle Co VA or if he moved directly to Livingston Co. Other families from Albemarle Co. VA who moved to Livingston Co. incl. Woods, Jones, Carver, Williams, Griffin, Jones, Lewis and Kinsolving, Leigh and Gooch who were in Caldwell Co.

His middle initial may have been B.

Samuel Black married Keturah Shaw, Marriage Bond - William Shaw and Samuel Black bound on 12 March 1804, Livingston Co. Ky, recorded book at Centerville, which was then the Co. seat. Record is now at Saltland, the present County Seat for Livingston Co. (p. 141, 1799-1808). Pioneer Research later married as 12 March 1804, William Shaw was her brother who married Mary Waters, mother of Mariah Elizabeth Foster who married David Lowery Black, also Sam and Keturah.

Keturah Shaw was born Nov. 13, 1779, Maysville, Ill. now Hamilton Co., died Aug. 12, 1852, in the 72nd yr of her life, (gravestone Wilds Cem), Caldwell Ky. She was a frontier child in Nashville, TN, lived in a fort, (displace 1839 census). See later pages for lengthy narrative on her parents.

Samuel and Keturah were both buried Wilds Cem. near Centerville, where Keturah's parents James and Anna Shaw were buried. James' being the earliest gravestone that is still intact in this cemetery.

Our Ancestral Photo by Kyle, Wilds Cem., Maria Samuel Oct. 11, 1779-Oct. 9, 1852, incorrectly. Keturah, Nov. 13, 1779-Aug. 12, 1852, 72nd yr, incorrectly. Book has errors mixing 2 with 9, since the number 2 on the gravestone looks very much like a nine. I viewed this stone Sept. 1991. Caldwell Co. Ky. VR lists her death as Mary Black, b. It was common for people in the family to be called by their middle names.

It is not known when Sam left Albemarle Co. VA or if he moved directly to Livingston Co. Other families from Albemarle Co. VA who moved to Livingston Co. incl. Woods, Jones, C-iver, Williams, Griffin, Jones, Lewis and Kinsolving, Lelgh and Gooch who were in Caldwell Co.

1801, Livingston Co. KY, Sam Black on tax list as one white male over 21 yrs.
1801, 12 May, Sam Black in Livingston Co. (Census).

Samuel appeared in Livingston Co. Ky in 1802, renting land from David Shaw, prob. his cousin and bro. of his future wife, (Croom, reck dates).

Smithland, Livingston Co. Ky has a printed book 1799-1804. Index of Order Bk A, which lists Sam Black p 204, (L/C). Need code for L/C. (Code, Livingston Co)?

no date, Loose Papers 1799-1804, Livingston Co. Deeds by Brenda Jerome, p 121, Samuel Black locates 400 acres on Popular Creek, a west branch of, supposed to be Long Creek that empties into Cumberland River.

p 122, James Lyon claims 400 acres Eddy Creek on the road leading from Eddyville to Eddy Grove, adjacent KETURAH SHAW'S 200 acre survey. This must have been 1804 or prior since Keturah married that year to Sam Black. Perhaps this was her dower land from her father.

1801/2 Samuel Black on Livingston Co. KY Tax Lists, resided East side Livingston Creek. This land became Caldwell Co. in 1809.

1804, Sam Black had 3 tracts of land on tax roll in Livingston Co. 200 acres on Ohio River, 400 acres and a horse (Croom).

1804 Samuel Black bought 200 acres Donelson's Fork of Tradewater River. This was the part of Livingston Co. that changed to Caldwell 1809. Probably for a new homestead as a married man.

This one perhps the Elisha Baldwin survey.

1806, 5 Feb. Plat Bk 1 1809-1828, p. 118, certificate 665 granted by Livingston Co. Court, found at Princeton Courthouse. Surveyed for Samuel Black, assignee of James Black, 370 acres Caldwell Co. Donaldson Fork of Tradewater River bounded E. side of Rocky branch, by William Morse line to East side of Donaldson fork to James Morse to Kennedy's run to Samuel Black in Samuel Kinkade's line to S. side Donaldson Fork etc. Recorded 24 Nov. 1818. (Note that Caldwell Co. was formed from Livingston Co. abt 1809, thus deeds may have had to be rerecorded in the new county. Drawing of Plat is odd shaped with a couple of cut out areas.

1806, Emily Croom wrote that Sam Black apparently sold 200 acres on Donaldson's Fork to Matthew Stevenson.

1807, Sam Black owned 2 slaves, (Croom).

1809, Sam's Livingston Co. land was now in Caldwell Co. which was formed in 1809. On first Caldwell Co. tax list, Sam Black was on Doloran water course.

Emily Croom places Sam's land closest to the town of Fredonia and about 12 miles from Princeton.

1810 Caldwell Co. KY census, p. 402. Sam and Keturah Black lived next door to her mother Anner Shaw and her unmarried youngest brother. Sam had 1 male under 10 yrs, 1 male 26-45 yrs, 2 females under 10 yrs, 1 female 16-26 yrs in hh. Neighbors were Arthur Williams, Isaac Hicks, James Thomson, James Cohern Sr, John Stone. Several Moss families not far away.

Note that another unidentified Sam Black was also in Caldwell Co. 1810 census, NOT living NEAR Sam and Keturah. The other Sam does not appear on any other census in Caldwell Co.

1813, April 17; Oct. 20, 1815, Caldwell Co. Trustees of Estate of Matthew Stevenson were Samuel Black and Joseph Alexander. Matthew had wife and ch. unnamed. (Matthew's wf was Mary Shaw, d/o James and Anner Shaw and sister of Keturah Shaw, wf of Sam Black).

1815, 1 March, Caldwell Co. KY, Bk B, p. 81-82. Anner Shaw, consort of James Shaw dec'd; Francis Dodds, Matthew Stephenson; Dorcas Shaw; John Shaw; all heirs of James Shaw, deceased of Caldwell Co. KY, appoint Samuel Black, joint heir with us, of Caldwell Co., atty in fact in our behalf for land claims which James Shaw was entitled to for services rendered and otherwise entitled to at Kaskaskia, Illinois Territory in 1799. Signed by all and Dorcas was called Dorcas May, not Dorcas Shaw in this document. Francis Dodds, witn. (Could it be possible that Dorcas was married and later divorced)?

I do not understand why the date of Shaw's service at Kaskaskia was dated 1799. He served during the Revolutionary War there. Perhaps, a law was passed in 1799 permitting land for previously uncompensated service. Illinois was part of the northwest territory. It became a State in 1818.

1815, Caldwell Co. Ky, Samuel Black was an appraiser for the inventory of the estate of Joseph Miller. Other appraisers were James Morse, Sam Smith (Early Ky Wills and Inv. by J. Estelle Stewart King, p. 30, found Vero Bch Lib.).

The abovementioned Eddyville Rd ran alongside the Wilds Cem. The old sunken roadbed can presently be followed for some distance, (Sheridan).

Ky Geny and Biog. states that Sam Black came to Ky about 1800 and patented 160 acres where L. Adamson later resided, and remained there til his death, age 83. (Believe this was John Lindsley Adamson).

The Bethlehem Cumberland Presbyterian Church is located six miles northwest of Princeton and one mile north of Crider, on the Ohio Valley Division of the Illinois Central RR in Caldwell Co. Ky. The first preaching for this church began in 1810 at the Elkhorn Tavern. In October 1814, the church was organized by Rev. John Barnett, who preached there for 22

1830, 13 July, BK 7, p. 274. Samuel Black & Keturah Black, late Keturah Shaw, to Milton A. Barker for $40, land on waters of Eddy Creek, Caldwell Co., land bounded John Lamb, Robert H. Cash survey, James Barker, George Boyd, C. H. Miller, Barker not mentioned. Sam and Keturah signed the deed which indicates they were both educated people. With William F. Miller, Mary H. Miller (H is clear). Dec. 19 1831. W. F. Miller, clerk. (Note Miller's was Mary Keturah Black, sister of Sam. J.H.).

1830, July 22, S.B. Black was an organized member of a Colonization Society to promote the colonization of free colored people on the coast of Africa. (Hist. Caldwell Co. KY by Barker, p. 145). The index also lists Samuel Black on this page, but only S.B. Black is listed on the stated page. This was our Sam, we now have a middle initial for him. I have not found any other S. Black in Caldwell Co. that time. (Was his mother's maiden name Black as some have said?)

1830, Nov. 22, Sam Black, land warrant 40 acres Donaldson's Fork (or Creek?), BK 2, p. 45, Vol. 4.
1832 Sam Black had a grist mill on Donaldson's Fork Spring Branch (Hist. Caldwell Co. by Charles B. Barker, p. 145).

1832, 50 acres Donaldson's Fork, purchase total 75 acres by 1832, but had sold off 170 acres. Still owned 50 acres 1832.
1832 Aug. 19, Caldwell Co. Order BK 7, County Deed Comm. School District, one of which was $12, Cash District, beginning at mouth of Samuel Black's Spring branch on Donaldson's Fork running S. 20W. passing between Black's house and horse mill to Edyville Rd. thence to John Hayden's house thence to Grigg's old place on the knob thence to the range line at George Robinson's old house thence N. 30E. to corner of Eli near Mrs. Smith's thence to Mrs. Nancy Maxwell's, Eliza Caffert's, the crossing to ford near Nelson Stone's, thence down Donaldson's Fork to the beginning.
The above mentioned Edyville Rd. ran alongside the White Cem. The old wagon road can presently be followed for some distance, (Sheridan).

Ky Geny and Bioy. states that Sam Black came to Ky about 1800 and patented 150 acres where L. Adamson later resided, and remained there till his death, age 81. (Believe this was John Lindsey Adamson).

The Bethleham Cumberland Presbyterian Church is located six miles northwest of Princeton and one mile north of Oxford, in the Ohio Valley Division of the Illinois Central RR. It is the first preaching for this church began in 1810 at the Elkton Tavern. In October 1810, the church was organized by Rev. John Barnett, who preached there for 12 years. It was the Anderson Presbytery. A log church was built 1816 and completed 1820. In 1846, this ch. was torn down and a brick bldg erected. This bldg was demolished by a strong windstorm in 1877 and replaced the same yr by another bldg. Sam and Keturah d. 1852, after the brick ch. was built. Their ch. lived to witness the destruction of this church.

Sam Black and his wife Keturah were two of 17 charter members of the congregation which number included the pastor and his wife. Sam was ordained as a Ruling Elder at this time, thus was active in the organization of the church. Sam and wife Keturah were listed as members at the 1814 organization. Three Kinkaid ladies, Mary Ann, Phebe and Elizabeth, were also charter members. (Note that in 1770 in Virginia, Joseph Kinkead signed as witness to the will of Rev. Sam Black I, our Sam's grandfather). Soon after, Francis Dodds, Clara Dodds, Anna Dodds, Jane Dodds, Elizabeth Dodds, Alexander Adamson, Dorcas Shaw, Isabella Adamson were amongst those who joined the church. People with these names intermarried into the Black, Shaw and Brelsford families.

In 1816, a log church was erected, not being completed until 1820. In 1846, the log church was replaced by a neat brick church. This church was completely demolished by a cyclone April 18, 1877. Rev. Love kept the church records at his residence which burned in the 1860's. The church records from 1814 to 1864 were destroyed in this fire. (Add other ch rec from newspaper).

In 1860, the church set apart land for burial purposes and was a central cemetery for the congregation.

Emily Croom wrote that Sam had acquired 757 acres of land, but had sold off 170 acres by 1840.

1840 Caldwell Co census, Sam Black 1 male under 5 yrs, 1 male 15-20 yrs, 2 males 20-30 yrs, 1 male 60-70 yrs; 1 female under 5 yrs, 1 femlae 10-15 yrs, 1 female 20-30 yrs, 1 female 60-70 yrs.

Neighbors James Wilson, Jesse Boling, Henry Doom.

Sam no longer lived near the Brelsford family. It appears that Sam Black may have moved since Shaw relatives John W. Shaw and David Dodds lived nr Brelsford in 1840.

Emily Croom wrote that Sam had one free black man working for him in 1840, no slaves.

1856, 29 DEC. Recorded Caldwell Co. KY.

1857 Sept. Executed & delivered to John T. and D.L. Black.

The above were all the living children of Sam Black. Dau. Dorcas Black Phillips was deceased.

1863, 6 Nov. Caldwell Co. Bk U, p. 250, John Black of Crittenden Co. sold 75 acres land in Caldwell Co. on Donaldson Fork of Tradewater River for $400 to Thomas J. Wilds of Caldwell Co. Land was part of 2 surveys, part of a 200 acre survey patented to Isaac Bullard, assignee of Elisha Baldwin and part of a 200 acre survey patented to Samuel Black, bounded John L. Adamson corner etc to S.B. Brelsford line etc. Recorded same day. Signed John and Mgt. Jane Black.

Note that in 1813, Alex. Stevenson appt Hugh Stevenson to transfer plat and certif. to Aner Shaw, 200 acres of George Kinkead's Christian Co. KY land and another 200 acres of Geo. Kinkead's Livingston Co. KY land. Thus, Geo. Kinkead seems intimately connected to Shaw or Black or both. Some of George Kinkead land later became Caldwell Co.

Centerville, near Fredonia, was the first Co. seat for Livingston Co. It is just a highway marker now. The Army had large supplies of munitions there for the troops who accompanied the Indians on the "Trail of Tears" in ___ yr. The Co. seat was moved to Salem, near Marion, before being moved to Smithland. Were the Centerville records moved to Smithland?

Dorcas Amelia Shaw, was d/o William Shaw and Mary Waters who m2 Robert Trotter. William was bro. of Keturah. Dorcas, prob. niece of Keturah Shaw Black, m. 1838, Francis Wilson Dodds, s/o Francis Dodds and Mary Ann Shaw. Francis m2. Mrs. Charity Guess. Mary Ann was sister of Keturah.

FHL lists William Erwin Black of Azhurst Arizona as a descendant of Sam and Keturah Black. Desc. Catherine A.C. Porter was the Mormon desc. of William E. Black. She resided 544 E. 2nd Ave. Mesa, Ariz. in 1930's. I do not know how these people descend. The only sons were James Shaw, David Lowery and John Thomas for any desc.

Add info. abt will of Samuel Black in another nearby KY county, earlier than when our Sam died.

Notes:

One Samuel Black in SC and Mo records:

1. A Sam Black was a witness to Administration of the estate of Mary Tate Davis in Newberry Co. SC in 1795. James Black was a witness to her 1791 will. Our Sam had a bro. James. Mary Davis was grandmother of Maria Eliz. Trotter who married David Lowery Black, s/o Sam and Keturah. To date, I have not found what connection our Black family might have had to the Davis family in the 1790's in SC. The Davis family were in Va before SC.

2. 1796, Dec. A Sam Black was in the New Madrid area of Missouri having no property. This was when it was a Territory of France and called Upper Louisiana. Ramsay there early, too.

3. A Sam Black claimed land on the Mississippi River, New Madrid District. This land was granted in 1811 to Sam Black or his legal Representatives. This was the area where the Waters and Trotter families resided.

Thos. W. Waters, father of Polly Waters Shaw Trotter resided 1802, where Commerce, Scott Co. Missouri now stands, near New Madrid.

New Madrid is less than 100 miles from Crider area of Ky where Sam settled. Wm Shaw, prob. s/o James Sr., and Wm's wife Polly Waters, mother of Maria Trotter, appear in a deed with the heirs of Thos. W. Waters in 1826/7 in Scott Co. Mo. Mary Davis, of the 1795 estate listed above, was the mother of Polly Waters. Sam Black and William Shaw became brothers in law in 1804, and also were probably cousins through Sam's grandmother Catherine Shaw.

Gen. 4. IV-A, p. 32, (P.P.). Should also appear before p. 71.

CELESTINE LOGAN BLACK AND HIRAM HAWKINS BRELSFORD

- * 1. Celestine Logan Black was d/o Sam Black III (Sam II, Sam I) and Keturah Shaw. Born 29 Dec 1804 nr Fredonia, Caldwell, Ky, died (9 Aug 1855, Caldwell Tn rec) July 9, 1855 cem. listing and Nathan Brelsford Family History, age 53, Apoplexy, bur. in small Brelsford Cem. on private property near Crider Caldwell Co. Ky with her daughters Emeline Brelsford and Mary Jane Brelsford Robinson.

There are only 5 readable stones in this cem. Unplaced in family, are two fieldstone graves: C. N., b. 1826, d. 1914; L.C.N., b. 1827, d. 1904. There are many other sunken graves in this abandoned cem. which I viewed in Sept 1991. It is interesting to wonder if other stones are face down in the soil and potentially readable. The cem. is about a half mile or so off the road near Crider KY on private property, is overgrown and in a woods. Celestine's gravestone is a large imposing spire.

It would appear that the original road was accessible and leading to the Brelsford home but the road was relocated. Mr. Traylor, a local resident states that there is the foundation of a building about a half mile from the cem. on top of the hill. This may have been the Hiram Hawkins Brelsford home.

Celestine L. Black married Hiram Hawkins Brelsford Dec. 9, 1824, Caldwell Ky, at Methodist Ch., by Rev. Edmund Wilcox. (A publ. bk of marriages listed him as Abram). Hiram was s/o Nathan Brelsford and Elizabeth Ann Garner, d/o Henry Garner. Hiram was born in Ohio, 10 Feb 1802. He grew up in Christian Co. Ky, Cumberland Valley, western KY, from age 2. He died 27 Dec 1858, (bible owned by Baxter). Member Bethlehem Cumberland Presb. Ch. nr Crider, KY.

Nathan Brelsford, (28 Feb. 1775-29 Jul 1839, died Caldwell Co. KY), and wife Elizabeth Ann Garner, (8 Jan 1782 VA- May 1863 Wright Co. MO) d/o Henry Garner. Nathan settled in Christian Co. Ky abt 1803 and had 10 Ch. Henry Garner d. 1803-6, place unknown, had property in Hampshire and Frederick Co. VA when he died.

Nathan's first child Delilah, wf of John Kyle was born Jan. 1800 in VA acc. to the 1860 census of Shelby Co. MO. Thus, it would appear that Nathan was married in VA by 1799.

Desc. Stonewall Jackson Baxter's family record states that son Nathan W. Brelsford said his father Hiram Sr. died near Ft. Scott, Ks. Nathan and several of his younger unmarried siblings were at Ft. Scott in 1860 census. (Emily Croom's KY Brelsford and Kin states Hiram d. 27 Dec. 1857, Caldwell Co. KY, place of burial unknown, no proof cited).

It has been said that his son Nathan Washington Brelsford believed that Hiram was born in Ross Co. Ohio. More info. from desc. of this line believe Hiram was born near Chillicothe, Ohio. In 1800, Ross Co. was larger than at present. It encompassed all of Fayette, Madison, Franklin, Delaware; most of Union, Fairfield, Highland; half of Morrow, Knox, Licking, Hocking, Vinton, Jackson, Pike; some of Marion, Clinton, Green, Clark, Champaign and Logan.

There was another Brelsford family in Butler Co. Ohio and there is a Ross Tnp there.

There was a Henry Garner listed in Ross Tnsp, Butler Co. Ohio in 1820. It is believed that Eliz. Garner's father died abt 1803/6. Could this have been Elizabeth's brother?

Elaine Baxter quotes from a letter from a Brelsford descendant who was a sister of Stonewall Jackson Baxter, Sr. The sister was quite friendly with Nathan Washington Brelsford. She wrote: "when Celestine Black Brelsford died in 1855, widower Hiram Sr. moved to Kansas with his then unmarried children. He died soon after in Ks in 1858. Kansas was Indian Territory at this time. There were burials at Ft. Scott, and there is a National Park there." Grave not found to date. Mabel Brelsford Thwaites, (d/o John Wm Brelsford and Ora Moore) knew Nathan W. Brelsford who died when she was 23 yrs old. She learned the family history from him and passed it on.

Hiram resided in Crittenden Co. for a time, moved to Caldwell Co. by 1824. He was on Caldwell Co. tax roll, 1826. In 1830, he res. next to Sam Black III, Celestine's father. In 1833, he res. Donaldson's Fork, Tradewater River had 200 acres land.

The Bethlehem Cumberland Presbyterian Church near Crider, Ky has the following records:

Sarah Brelsford was dismissed from church 1845. Perhaps d/o Nathan Sr., who m. Joshua Selby 1846 in MO and moved to San Luis Co. CA before 1870.

Nathan Brelsford joined church 1845, left by letter 1857. (This must have been s/o Hiram Sr.).

James Brelsford joined church 1856 by experience, left by letter 1857, prob. s/o Hiram Sr.

Evaline Brelsford, d/o Hiram Sr. joined church 1856 by experience, left by letter 1857. Rejoined ch. by letter 1864, d. 1865. She m. William P. Black, 1864, (s/o James Shaw Black).

Hiram Brelsford joined ch. 1 Aug. 1853 by experience.

Hiram Brelsford dismissed by letter 1858.

(It does not say if Hiram Sr or Jr. on the last 2 items).

Celestine A. Brelsford died 1855. (Middle initial is clear in church record, but was this a recopied record after the church burned)? This was surely Celestine Logan Black Brelsford.

The 1857 dismissals were obviously when the Brelsforths were moving to KS.

Signatures were Hiram H. Brelsford and wf Celestina, (she the only one who signed by mark), W.D. Miller and wf M.K. Miller, James S. Black.

1853, 5 Sept. All acknowledged this their deed to clerk James C. Weller.

1856, 29 dec. Recorded in Caldwell Co KY by James Weller. clerk.

(Need to track George Kinkead as possible surname of Anner, wf of James Shaw or surname of Mary, wf of Sam Black II).

1855, Spring, son Nathan W. Brelsford purchased land at Ft. Scott Bourbon Co. KS when it was a territory.

KS was part of the Louisiana Purchase in 1803. It was included in MO Territory until 1821. The first community was at Ft. Leavenworth in 1827. KS became a State in 1861, the yr of the beginning of the Civil War. At this time the population was 110,000. Bourbon Co. was formed 1855, an original county. It lies in the S.E. corner, just across the border of Missouri. There was a Territorial census in 1855. Hiram Sr. was 53 yrs old in 1855. If he was well, his age would make him competent to supervise the move out of State. Perhaps, Nathan went ahead of the rest of the family to set up a homestead on behalf of his father. Did they join a church in KS when they withdrew their membership from KY? Seems likely.

In March 1857, Hiram Sr. sold his farm to Finis Ewing Dodds, his wife's cousin, from the Shaw side of her lineage. This fits with a move out of KY that year.

The unmarried children, Nathan, James, Celestine, Eveline, Mahlon and John were in KS in 1860 and left there some time after the 1860 census. Since son Mahlon died the same year, he was possibly buried in KS. (Were there newspapers)? Son James travelled around the far west after 1860 and settled in the Black Hills in Lead City S. Dakota by 1878. (Ref. letter from him telling of his marr. in S. Dakota). Celestine, Evaline, John and Nathan returned to Caldwell Co. Ky. Baxter family states that Hiram Jr. did not go to KS.

1825, Spring, son Nathan W. Belsford purchased land of 75
 Scott Bourbon Co. KY when it was a territory.
 KY was part of the Louisiana Purchase in 1803. It was included in MO Territory until 1812. The first settlement was at St.
 Louis in 1803. KY received a State in 1792. In 1792 at the beginning of the Civil War. At this time the population was 110,000. Bourbon Co. was formed 1820, as original county. It lies in the S.E. corner. Just across the border of Missouri.
 There was a territorial census in 1825. Nixon Sr. was 23 yrs old in 1825. If he was well, his age would make him competent to supervise the move out of St. Louis. Nathan would attend to the rest of the family to set up a homestead on behalf of his father. Did they join a church in KY when they withdrew their membership from KY? Census 1825.

In March 1827, Nixon Sr. sold his farm to John B. Belsford.
 His wife's cousin, from the same side of her lineage. This fits with a move out of KY that year.

The married children, Nathan, James, Celestine, Belsford, Nathan and John were in KY in 1820 and after their move from after the 1820 census. Since son Nathan died the same year, it was possibly buried in KY. (There were many deaths in James travelled around the far west after 1820 and resided in the Black Hills in Lead City S. Dakota by 1870. 1881, James line his telling of his sons. In S. Dakota, California, Nevada, John and Nathan returned to Caldwell Co. KY. Belsford family states that Nixon Jr. did not go to KY.

1860, 25 Aug. Federal census, Fl. Scott, Bourbon Co. KS, p. 136, line 39/40 and p. 137 lines 1-4, postal address; Nathan W. Brelsford was head of household with his younger unmarried siblings. All in household were listed as born KY, (census found Ft. Scott KS Lib. and read by another desc.). The Brelsford surname does not appear in the 1860 KS index I read in Orlando Library. Hiram Sr. died in KS about two years previously according to Nathan W. Brelsford himself as seen in Brelsford family records belonging to Elaine Baxter.

See Kentucky Brelsford and Kin by Emily Croom for narrative on this family.

Gen. 5. 13 BRELSFORD Children:

Only one of these sons, William Black Brelsford was reported to have stayed in Ky. What is the significance of the middle name Hawkins? Some of the ch. were named after the Black family, the rest seem to be named after U.S. presidents.

No wife for James in 1860 census, Ft. Scott KS, age 25, where he resided with his siblings. If he married a cousin Frela, as stated in Nathan W. Brelsford Family History, I would expect it would have been in KY, since he wandered around the far west after 1860. And how was this Frela supposed to be related. Perhaps this is a good clue to the Brelsford lineage of Nathan Sr.

HOMER BAKER,

Plaintiff,

vs.

ACTION FOR DIVORCE

GEORGIA BAKER,

Defendant.

FINAL DECREE

THIS CAUSE, having come on this day to be heard before me, upon the plaintiff's bill of complaint, a Decree Pro Confesso having been heretofore duly and regularly entered against the defendant, for reason of her failure to appear, plead to and/or answer plaintiff's bill of complaint, as of the return date specified in notice requiring defendant to appear, the report of the Special Master in Chancery, transcript of testimony, and plaintiff's motion for final decree, and it appearing to the Court and the Court finding from the file and pleadings in said cause that it has jurisdiction of the parties litigant and of the subject matter of this cause; that service by means of publication, once each week for four (4) consecutive weeks, as prescribed by the Statutes and laws of the State of Florida, was duly and regularly had upon the defendant, in a newspaper of general circulation published in Dade County, Florida; that the relationship of husband and wife exists between the parties hereto, and it appearing to the Court that the equities of this cause are with and in favor of the plaintiff, that the plaintiff is entitled to the relief prayed for; that defendant is guilty of willful, obstinate and continued desertion of plaintiff for more than one year last past and immediately preceding the institution of this suit, and the Court being otherwise duly and regularly advised in the premises, it is, thereupon, on consideration thereof,

ORDERED, ADJUDGED AND DECREED BY THE COURT AS FOLLOWS:-

1. That the Court has jurisdiction of the parties litigant and of the subject matter of this suit.
2. That the report of the Special Master in Chancery, heretofore appointed by the Court totake the testimony and makehis findings and recommendations in this cause be, and the same is, hereby approved, ratified and confirmed in every respect.
3. That the plaintiff, HOMER BAKER, be, and he hereby is, divorced of and from the defendant, GEORGIA BAKER, a vinculo matrimonii, and that the bonds of matrimony heretofore created and now existing between the plaintiff and the defendant be, and they are, in all respects, dissolved and set aside, and that the parties be, and they are, hereby restored to all the rights and privileges of an unmarried person.

THE STATE OF TEXAS §

GONZALES COUNTY § In the name of God, Amen!

I, Charley Alexander Brelsford of the County of Gonzales, State of Texas, being of sound mind and disposing memory, and recognizing the importance of a person making a final and complete disposition of his property during life and while permitted so to do, and also sensibly impressed with the conviction that life is uncertain and death inevitable, do hereby make this instrument as my last will and testament.

1. Should there be any indebtedness due from me at the time of my death, I desire that the same shall be paid off and discharged as early as practicable by my surviving wife.

2. I give, bequeath, and devise all of the property, of which I may die possessed at the time of my death, to my beloved wife, Sarah Lavina Brelsford, and I do hereby by these presents make and constitute the said Sarah Lavina Brelsford as the sole heir and legatee of my entire estate, real, personal or mixed.

3. It is my desire that no further action be taken on my Estate, other than the probate of this will in the proper Court of said County and State.

In witness whereof, I have hereunto signed, published and declared this instrument as my last will and testament, on the 9th day of April A. D. 1898.

C. A. Brelsford

before we three children were born

The said Charley Alexander Brelsford on the 9th day of April, 1898, signed the foregoing instrument and published and declared the same as and for his last will. And we at his request, and in his presence, and in the presence of each other, have hereunto written our names as subscribing witnesses.

Dear Jackie,

Thank you for your letter 12 April 94. As I said I have nothing on Catherine Shaw - Sure Wish I did. I guess we need to get to work on her line. Yes I have Natalie Black's book. I had worked on the Blacks for 4 years before she gave me her valuable research. I couldn't get past my grandfather - the court house burned and the only will I found in Marietta OK - some one's else's will was in my 9 grandmothers packet. I owe my Black line to Natalie. Now I'm working on Polly Gordon to try & find her father & mother. My father's line has really been difficult or I haven't looked in the right places - I will keep trying.

If you have a location on the graves of Jennie Brelsford Dodds Black in Cemetery # 3 I'll go there & work around & take pictures for you. The cemetery is large so if you could give me some help I'll try & see what's there. At our Gene. library I checked to see if Blacks, ^{Dodds} Dodds & Brelsford were there & couldn't find them - that doesn't mean anything though because the records we have are not complete. One of our members is chairing a committee on the city cemetery & tombstone inscription with the hopes of publishing the results. When finished that will be a great big help.

Let's keep in touch on Catherine Shaw - I'll start on her now. Our library closed the month of May for moving to new location - but will get started soon.

Thank you for your letter -

Sincerely
Cathy Slaughter

WILLIAM ISAAC PARIS 1861 & wife LOUI RANDA (Randy) DRASHER 1865

1986 is the centennial year of the marriage of William & Randy (Brasher) Paris. A reunion will be held at Kentucky Dam Village State Park, Gilbertsville KY 42044 on July 11, 12 and 13, 1986. Anyone remotely related is invited and welcome to attend. The "Village Green" will be the central meeting place, and meals will be catered at the new dining hall across the road. Main meeting time will be Saturday, July 12.

THE COVER---

This picture was taken in 1912 after William & Randy returned from Arkansas with eight of their ten children. They and others left Crittenden County Kentucky early in 1910.

The picture is a combination of two families plus additional relatives but those numbered are of immediate interest. This was contributed by Melvel Paris of Glenwood, Illinois.

#2. James B. Paris (Buelie), 1890, 1951, d. Homewood IL, f/o Mel Paris.

#4. Corbet Wilson Paris 1893, d. 1972 at McCracken Co KY.

#5. Ollie Paris 1888, lived near Smithland KY, d. 1982 at Calvert City KY.

#9. Raymond Paris 1899, lives at Calvert City KY. d. 1988

#13 & 14, twins Clara Paris Talley & Claudia Paris Hite, 1904. Clara lives in Doylestown OH; Claudia d. 1959 in Ky.

#15. Shellie Paris 1902, d. 1966 in Florida; lived in New York many years.

#16. Gillie Brasher Paris 1897, d. 1981 in Pennsylvania but lived most of adult life in Cook county IL

Not shown are the firstborn children of W. I. and Randy, identical twins Ernest and Elvin. Elvin married in Arkansas and Ernest remained there to be near him. He eventually married and a few years later both families returned to Kentucky. They were born in 1887. Ernest died in Harvey IL in 1954 and Elvin died in Arkansas, having returned there after a short period in Kentucky.

Besides the two sets of twins born to William I. and Randy, ^{near 5} four sets were born in succeeding generations. W. I. had a brother John who also had twin sons.

Other persons identified belong to the James Mitchell Brasher Family. #6 was Jim Brasher, cousin of Randy, #12.

#7. "Cousin Jim's" wife, Mary Sullivan Brasher with the red hair that was generously inherited by so many of the children and grandchildren.

#8. Bettie Brasher, later married Gillie Paris, #16.

#10. Charlie C. Brasher

#11. Dora Brasher

#3. Addie Brasher; one son married a d/o James B. Paris; one md. Corbet Paris.

Pleasant Hill Regular Baptist Church is located in Crittenden County KY, about two miles east of Marion. According to the church record, Pleasant Hill was constituted a church on Saturday before the second Sunday in May 1853 in the old log house which stood near the site of the present building. Lemuel Conger was the first clerk of the church.

Elisha 1820 & Lemuel 1827, whose signatures are on the record, were sons of John Conger 1798 & Jonca Pigg. Their brother Joshua @1818 was the father of Sarah Jane Conger 1838 who married Jesse F. Paris. The Sarah Conger on the list was Lemuel's wife, Sarah Paris.

The record was submitted by Geneva W. Clark of Marion, dsc/o Elisha.

Student's 4-H projects reflect fascination with electricity

Electricity is something of a mystery to some people—a tool that they use but do not fully understand. But for Jim Conger, a 15-year-old sophomore at Amanda-Clearcreek High School, electricity holds a fascination, which he expresses through his involvement in a 4-H Club.

Jim joined 4-H in Kansas at age 7, and has built projects related to electricity each of the eight years he has been a member. During his early years, he was involved briefly with projects in other areas, such as animals and forestry, but his real interest was in technical areas—electricity, electronics, model rocketry and computer projects.

His first electric project was an extension cord and a trouble light, but each successive year his projects have become larger and more complex. He usually exhibits each project several times during the year. Last year he entered four science fairs and two 4-H fairs.

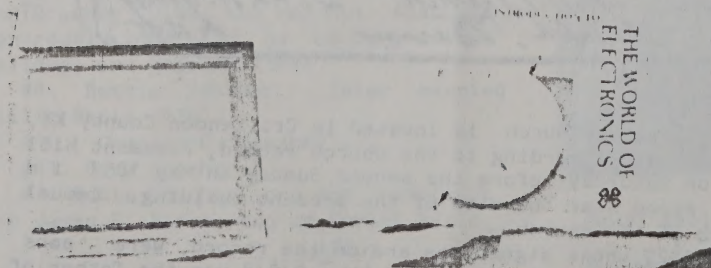

Before every fair he changes the project in some way and tries to make it better because the judges look for such improvements, he said. A demonstration and a safety talk are also a part of each exhibit.

Since not so many young people are involved in electricity and electronics 4-H projects as in some other areas, Jim works mostly on his own with guidance from Chris Anderson, the 4-H advisor for Fairfield County, and occasional help from other sources. When Jim and his family first moved to Ohio four years ago, he built a project on the generation and transmission of electricity. Since his parents are members of South Central, he sought and received information from South Central's Member Services Department to help him with this project.

As a rule, 4-H clubs close in late October, Jim said, so during the fall he begins work on his project for the next year. He can take his ideas from the 4-H project books, or he can improvise a project according to his own interests, as long as it falls within 4-H guidelines. Computers, for instance, are a relatively new project area.

When Jim decided to do a computer project, he found that he already had advanced beyond the level of the 4-H project book since his

Jim made several large posters as visual aids for his oral presentation at the Eastern National 4-H Engineering Event. This competition, which tested the participants on their knowledge, involved written and practical examinations.

Buelie

He was called Buelie

Dad's name: It ~~was~~^{became} written as woman's name Buelah. In that area of South any name or word that ended in an "a" sound was pronounced as if it were a long "E"; i.e. Rosa, Sarah, mama etc were Rosie, Sammie. He HATED that name with a passion and would NEVER use it (became James B. for all purposes after moving up North. Unknown to him a cousin was talking with Grandma Randy Parris one time and she told her they had not named the cousin's father "Ollie" - it was Ollie; also my Dad was given the name Buel (a Parris family name I learned later). Of course when a child was small the "ie" was added affectionately so he ^{Dad} became Buelie. ^{she} It is only conjecture on my part but I think I'm on solid ground assuming when he started school the teacher wrote it as ^{she} he heard it. It never ceased to amaze me how lackadaisical they were about dates. ^{when he got to concentrate on farming} Both Dad's parents were educated - his father was a teacher and came from a huge relationship of business people, doctors, lawyers, etc. But little details such as ^{mis-spelled} a child's name being changed to wrong gender was of no concern. In fact in that area Frankie, Tommy, Jackie, Billy, Bobby, etc, are as likely to be girls' names as boys and boys have names conjuring visions of a very petite little girl, i.e., Shirley, Beverly, etc.

Ironically, it was after Dad died that I was talking with that cousin and learned about his correct given name - he never learned of it himself.

My great-great grandmother, Neeky Shoemaker, had one sister and 17 brothers!! This info was channeled to me by a descendant of her sister. What a wash day those women had and ironing must have been a never ending chore with sodas heated on a wood stove. Whew!!

Note that page 69 indicates that James Sen. was the original owner of this land, having conveyed it to William Shaw Sen. previously. Records show that James Shaw did operate a ferry there.

It is difficult to decipher what the Shaws were accomplishing by these deeds. William Shaw Sr was likely about 65 yrs old in 1790.

James Shaw Sr. stayed in Davidson Co. at least through 1792. His three sons were about 16, 15 and 13 yrs old in 1790. I read somewhere that men could own land at age 16, since they were expected to be in the militia to fight Indians at that age.

In 1991, a national gravestone was dedicated for James Shaw, 1750-1803 who was buried in Wilds Cemetery, Caldwell Co. KY. Elaine Baxter of Houston Texas, whose husband is a Brelsford/Black/Shaw descendant, discussed the life of James Shaw. Elaine claimed that James Shaw resided in Fincastle Co. KY in the 1770's.

(The Princeton Leader, July 17, 1991, p. 10).

I wonder if Elaine may have based this statement on the marriage of Darcus Shaw, listed above, w/ out proof that they were the same Shaw family who moved to Davidson Co NC/TN. There were so many Shaws with the same names that this can only be considered a possibility. Needs further research.

(If) Darcus was the sister of James Shaw, who was the Surety at her marriage, that James could have been born in Augusta Co. VA.

(What proof ties them to our William and James Shaw, other than the fact that our James Shaw Sr. named a dau. Darcus)? Nothing links them to Davidson Co or Caldwell or Livingston Co

(Add reasons why Hildreth name rings a bell for me in Kaskaskia or Davidson or Caldwell Co. KY).

Find Hildreth family online.

~~POSSIBLE FAMILY LINES:~~ Other Shaws in Davidson Co N.C. TN.

ONE William Shaw resided Davidson Co. TN from about 1786-1832 according to his Revolutionary War Pension Application #S3881. His application informs us that he resided on New River in what is now Wythe Co. VA at the time of Rev. War. ~~IF he was the son of the William Shaw Sr. of whom we treat, then we need to search this area of VA for our ancestry. I do not find three William Shaws early in Davidson Co., which suggests that the William Shaw with the pension may belong to our Shaw family.~~

Note that one WILLIAM, William Jr. and Joseph SHAW all purchased on White Creek, which seems to link them to the same family group. The names of neighbors KINKADE, Taylor, Hooper and Bradshaw also tie them together. I don't know if the William Shaw who purchased on Red River is of the same family.

NOTES:

There were other SHAW deeds in Davidson Co. between 1793-1843: Grantee List, see Robert, Hugh, Samuel, Terrance, Taylor, Henry B., William W., Edward; also Thos. T. Shaw who seems to belong to William Shaw Jr. Samuel appears to have died by 1807, Grantor Index, Bk O, p 372, heirs of, 1819, 1821. Taylor Shaw was likely s/o William Shaw Jr. and Susannah Taylor. Introduction

Pioneer Preacher by Natalie Black begins with Rev. Samuel Black I, a Presbyterian preacher who was born 1700, perhaps in Scotland. He was said to be s/o James, a wool merchant. Rev. Samuel emigrated from Ireland to PA about 1732-35. He was in PA, Carolina and Delaware for a time before moving to Albemarle Co. VA where he died 9 Aug. 1770, near Crozet, VA. His wife Catherine Shaw survived him. It is not known whether Catherine Shaw was related to James Shaw, father of Keturah who married his grandson Samuel Black III. Other references confirm these facts. Rev. Sam had brothers who were in VA before his move there.

Author's line continues with son Samuel Black II and grandson Samuel Black III b. VA, who married Keturah Shaw (d/o James and Anner Shaw) and moved from VA to Livingston Co. KY, the part which became Caldwell Co. KY in 1809.

Pioneer Preacher does not follow the grand children of Samuel Black III. This book is an attempt to continue the line, mostly from the children of Samuel and Keturah (Shaw) Black.

The children of Sam Black III in KY were:

David Lowery; John Thomas; Celestine Logan who married Hiram Hawkins Brelsford; Mary Katherine who married William D. Miller; Dorcas who married Maxwell Pope Phillips. These families were related to a considerable number of Caldwell and Crittenden Co. families.

The author has two direct lines from Sam Black III through son David Lowery Black and daughter Celestine Black Brelsford.

It must be remembered that Caldwell Co. was formed from Livingston Co. KY in 1809, thus all records before 1809 will appear in Livingston Co. which was formed from Christian Co. in 1798. Much needs to be researched in the earlier counties, and from newspaper records of Caldwell and Crittenden, the nearby Co. When the counties changed, it did not mean that people moved, thus the same land deeds will appear in 2 or 3 counties at different times. Sometimes land had to be resurveyed when a county changed.

Names having a # above their name are continued on another page. P.P. means that family appears in Pioneer Preacher with additional info. added by me.

Dear Jackie -

Not a reply at this time - simply an acknowledgment and thank you for all you sent. Very interesting!

I've been over heels in combination - redoing the house since brother left after living here 3 yrs and delayed Spring cleaning on major scale - so not spending time doing much writing or Gen. work now. Hope you find attachments interesting. I did not have most of the information you sent. I had crossed my mind to wonder out loud once before Mom died if maybe Uncle Dan ^{Black} might have married again but she didn't know (or had forgotten). It was not at all uncommon for a person to be married even 4 or 5 times as mates died. so Uncle Dan may have been ^{NO} married previous to Aunt Ellen also since he was quite a bit older than she. His house with no mortgage was probably a log place? he'd chopped trees and constructed. My grandparents Easley still lived in a log house until I was several years old and it burned. Fire was a constant hazard. The replacement house of "sawn" timber never ever seemed right. In fact I was born in a log

Dear Mother

Just a copy of the true - thought as acknowledgment and thank you for all you sent.

Very interested!

I have no idea in connection with the
the house was better left after being for 3 yrs and before being cleaned & ready to be not opening that had been waiting for me now. Hope you find it somewhat interesting. I did not have much to report for you but it has been very much to make out here even though I have been thinking of the time has been open to the public since the project. It was not at all successful for more to be made in it & I think it was but as I have been very busy I have not to say that I have been very busy I have than that the house was no longer profitable a day after it closed this one connection
The grounds had been very good but I have I was sure you all were it found. I was constant hope. The replacement of the house never even came right. As for the house in the cabin built like 2 with a "dog trot" between the 2 sections - roofed over but open at both ends. That way if one part of the house got on fire maybe there would be a chance to save a few things from the other part plus anyone in the other part had a chance to get out.

There are such severe electrical storms down there lightning strikes often killed people & animals and burned barns & houses. My great grandmother Prasher lost a brother and a son from lightning.

Must get back to my house cleaning. Many, many thanks for all info & pictures.

Sincerely,

Mel Paris

Jackie - Have you ever heard it said, "Timing is everything". You don't know how lucky you are. I was finally getting thru some picture books for another purpose and gathering pictures to copy at the Kodak Magic copy machine - so had Uncle Dave Black's in the pile. So... the upshot is, here's the original and I made a copy for myself. A grandfather certainly rates higher than an uncle.

Was very glad to hear from you and it gives me great pleasure to forward the photo.
This must be brief - very late as I've been searching for 2 bottles from cousins of my mother and I cannot even recall their names. That's why I said you are lucky. By receiving your letter at a time I could take immediate action you did not sink into limbo with those other two.

Very best wishes,
Melania

DECEASED & BURIED

News was received in Gonzales this morning from Leesville of the death of Mr. Black, who moved to that place about February 5, coming from Kentucky with his wife, who was a daughter of the late S. B. Brelsford, of Wrightsboro. His death occurred this morning at about 2 o'clock, after a lingering illness, he being a sufferer from the effects of that dread disease, consumption. The interment will take place this afternoon at 4 o'clock at the Leesville cemetery.

Notes

online, copy of original handwritten Death Certificate, #1817, for wd Jennie Black , TEXAS, STATE BOARD OF HEALTH.
 Jennie Black, widow, born May 19 1864, Kentucky, died suddenly, April 30, 1910 , at 6 P.M., 45 yrs, 11 months, 11 days, at 106 Sharer St. , in Ward 5, San Antonio, Bexar Co. Texas. Jennie was buried May 1, 1910, at City #3 Cem. Undertaker, Sloan & Hagy. Jennie resided at her place of death for one year and six months. Occupation Housewife
 Father S. B. Brelsford, b. KY. mother's maiden name D. J. Turner, b. KY. (error , should be Turley) .
 Cause of death, Acute Cardiac Paralysis, Intermittent Fever. Duration of illness 14 days. Dr. treated her from April 29, April 30, 1910. Signed May 1, 1910 by M. J. Bliem, M.D. of Hicks Building.
 Informant was C.A. Brelsford. of Leesville , TX. (He was her brother Charlie Alexander Brelsford.)

Official TYPED copy of Death Certificate, sent March 27 1985 to me, granddaughter Jackie Humphrey, from the Texas Dept of Health, Bureau of Vital Statistics.
 Jennie Black, white, widow, born May 19, 1864 in Kentucky, , died April 30, 1910 , 45 yrs, 11 months , 11 days, at 106 Sharer St., Ward 6, San Antonio, Bexar Co. Texas. Length of residence where death occurred , six yrs. Both parents born KY, but does not name them. Occur. Housewife
 Cause of death, Acute Cardiac Paralysis, Intermittent Fever, duration 14 days, signed by M. J. Bliem, M.D. or Coroner of San Antonio. Burial City Cemetery #3. Undertaker Sloan & Hagy, of San Antonio.
 File date was May 5, 1910, File Number PG 21, F#193.
 Certificate is certified with a raised seal and signed by R. Perez, Deputy. Includes the stamped signature of Wayne Parker, Registrar of Vital Statistics.

(Note that the typed copy of certificate is incomplete and contains errors; does not list the list the certificate # 1817 as in the original; does not list the names of Jennie's parents, listing only that they were both born in KY.

The original HANDWRITTEN certificate clearly lists that Jennie died in Ward 5, and that clearly that she length of residence where she died was one year and 6 months. The typed document has misspellings, lists Jennie's death in Ward 6, and that Jennie resided at the place where she died for 6 yrs.).

(Who were the Guardians of the minor ch. of Jennie Black? Note that Jennie was not bur. with any of her relatives. Why didnt her bro. Charlie Brelsford bury her in Leesville)?

When her children. were admitted to Buckner Orphan Home it said that Jennie was b. May 20 1864, Princeton KY, was of good moral character, was of Baptist religious denomination., died at San Antonio TX, Apr 30 1910.

Jennie had no known ch. by her first husband , Dr. D.M. Dodds, (David Miers Dodds), whom she married 14 July 1888 in Gonzales TX; Dodds was said to have resided Hallettsville, Levica Co. TX. Dodds was Jennie's 2nd cousin ,once removed, on Shaw side. IGI says marriage on film 1904006.

Gonzales Inquirer Newspaper lists Jennie's marriage to D.M. Dodds 19 Jul 1888 issue v. 36 #5. online index.

Dodds died sometime bet. 1888 and 1898, hunting accident. He was s/o David S. Dodds and Eliz. Brown, grandson of Francis Dodds and wf Mary Anner Shaw, John Brown; great grandson of James and Anner Shaw. Dodds was from a Caldwell Co. KY family.

Gonzales Inquirer TX.

(?July) 19 1898, p. 2, engagement of Jennie Brelsford.

p. 1, 14 June 1898.

On 5 June 1898 at Wrightsboro, On Thurs. June 2, at home of S.B. Brelsford, of this town, there was a reunion of his family, the occasion being the marriage of his widowed daughter, Mrs. Jennie Dodds, to Mr. Black of Fredonia KY. Rev. Mr. Kerr officiating with a unique, yet most appropriate ceremony. The nicknacks (sic) for such occasion were in abundance.

A short paragraph about a guest asking for another cup of syllabub.

closing - the bride and groom left at once for their Kentucky home.

(This extract of the paper was given to me by Dorothy Brelsford Key. I have not seen the actual article).

1870 census, Jennie Brelsford was listed with parents as Jane, 6 yrs.

I'm so glad that you know where these people were supposed to be. I've been doing some of my own "research" today and I don't know where they heck they were or who they were. Normal. It's a relief to look up things for you. :)

Book of David L. Blair

expanding opportunities of the late nineteenth and early twentieth centuries. Massey laid the foundations when she wrote that "the Civil War provided a springboard from which they leaped beyond the circumscribed 'woman's sphere' into that heretofore reserved for men."⁴⁹

"Functionally, the patriarchy was dead," argues Scott a bit too optimistically, "though many ideas associated with it lived on for years."⁵⁰ White-male notions of southern honor and their own superiority had not been vanquished by military defeat. Indeed, they may have been sanctified by the spilled blood of thousands of rebel soldiers. The war did, in fact, bring an immediate end to slavery, but it did not eradicate the political, economic, and social inequities confronting both blacks and women; the outcome, however, did create gaping holes in the arguments that had buttressed the old social order.

The aftermath of war hardly brought whirlwind changes to Kentucky. Indeed, social transformations came ever so slowly to the Bluegrass. Although no constitutional revisions seemed to have occurred in Kentucky to elevate the status of women during the late nineteenth century, alterations in statutory law suggested the dawning of a new era. Before they obtained unrestricted suffrage, for example, females cast ballots in school board elections. Thirty women were elected school superintendents between 1889 and 1897. The Kentucky General Assembly of 1894 passed legislation pertaining to the rights of married women to own property and to make wills. In 1900, they gained title to their own earnings. A decade later, lawmakers raised the age of consent to sixteen; previously, a twelve-year-old girl could have entered into marriage. In 1910, likewise, a new co-guardianship law recognized a woman's right to her own children.⁵¹ All of this suggests an undercurrent of feminine unrest if not outright agitation, for such legislative action from an all-male body did not come easily.

⁴⁹This quotation from Mary Elizabeth Massey, Bonnet Brigades: American Women and the Civil War (New York, 1966), 367, is found in Bell Irvin Wiley, Confederate Women (Westport, Conn., 1975), 178. See also Anne Firor Scott, The Southern Lady: From Pedestal to Politics, 1830-1930 (Chicago, 1970), 81, 102.

In this milieu of gross inequities, a small cadre of Kentuckians began to cut themselves out of a velvet cage. They represented the "new southern woman," identified by Anne Firor Scott — the regional variant of the "new American Woman" of the late nineteenth and early twentieth centuries — who dared to join a ladies' club or to crusade for suffrage. As members of the first generation of southern female activists, they embraced "domestic politics" as an entree to public life, expanding "their ascribed sphere into community service and care of dependents, areas not fully within men's or women's politics."⁵² The tactics of the likes of Laura Clay and Madeline McDowell Breckinridge may seem oblique compared to the more recent ones of Lieutenant Governor Thelma Stovall, patroness of the Equal Rights Amendment in Kentucky, or Sallie Bingham, whose writing strikes its target, "the patriarchy," in a manner not unlike Mrs. Merrill's venerable axc. All the same, they were the spiritual ancestresses of all Kentucky women who have engaged in twentieth-century public life.⁵³

The pioneer generation of Kentucky feminists had axes enough to grind, and there was, on their part, no little commitment to women's rights, social service, and civic improvement. All the same, they understood well the public arena into which they had ventured; and Bluegrass blue bloods used the trappings of class, chivalry, and kinship networks to effect their objectives. In Kentucky, the daughters of Cassius Clay, with Laura in the forefront, boosted and directed the suffrage effort. (Laura's biographer claims that she was motivated by her father's ill treatment of her mother.)⁵⁴

According to Sophonisba Breckinridge, her sister-in-law,

(San Diego, 1984), 1-43; and William Chafe, The American Woman: Her Changing Social, Economic, and Political Role, 1920-1970 (Oxford and New York, 1974), 3-22. See also Paula Baker, "The Domestication of Politics: Women and the American Political Society, 1780-1920," American Historical Review 89 (1984): 625.

⁵³A general description of Kentucky women activists of this era can be found in Irvin, Women in Kentucky, 89-127. Impressions of Stovall are gleaned from vertical file material provided by the Kentucky Historical Society. Defendants

This day came the parties aforesaid by attorney, and upon motions, it is ordered that the order of continuance be set aside, and the parties filed an agreement herein reading as follows, viz: Whereas a certain suit was instituted several years ago in the Calwell Circuit Court in relation to certain negroes, by John W. Shaw and others against Polly Trotter and others, and whereas the said Polly Trotter has since died, leaving a last will and testament which has been duly admitted to record by the proper Court; and whereas said suit has been revived against James W. Deech, the administrator with the will annexed of the said Polly Trotter, deceased, and whereas there is a controversy between the children, devisees, heirs, legatees and representatives of the said Polly Trotter deceased respecting the ownership of said negroes, and their heirs and respecting the personal and real estate of said decedent. Now for the purpose of settling the matters in controversy in said suit and all of said matters in controversy in relation to said negroes and their heirs and all matters in relation to the estate of the said Polly Trotter deceased, we John W. Shaw, J. W. Dodd, Mr. P. Phillips, Charles L. Trotter, E. L. Swannier, and J. G. Black do hereby agree and covenant, each and every one of us with each and all of the others, and with each other, as follows, to-wit: first that said suit shall be dismissed, secondly that all the debts if any against the estate of said decedent, all the expenses attending the administration of said estate, all the expenses of said suit including costs, and the fees of each and all the lawyers on both sides of said suit, and all the costs that may hereafter arise or accrue in reference to the administration and settlement of said estate and the division of said negroes, and the division of the property belonging to said estate shall be first paid out of said estate. Thirdly that the residue and remainder of said estate of every kind and description both real and personal, including the negroes in controversy and all others and their heirs both before and since the death of the said Polly Trotter deceased shall be divided into six equal parts or portions, and the said John W. Shaw shall have one of such parts or portions, that the said M. P. Phillips and his wife Eve K. Phillips shall have one of said equal parts or portions, that the said F. W. Dodds and his wife Dorcas A. Dodds shall have another of said parts or portions of said property, that the said C. G. Swanner and his wife M. C. Swanner shall have another of said equal parts or portions, that the said Charles L. Drotter shall have another of said equal parts or portions of said parts and that the heirs of Maria C. Black deceased the former wife of the said D. L. Black shall have the remaining sixth part of said property. The true meaning and meaning of this agreement being to produce perfect equality between the children now living the said Polly Drotter deceased and the heirs and representatives of such of the children of the said Polly Drotter deceased as have died. It is understood that the said Polly Drotter deceased executed her said last will and testament in the name of Mary Drotter and it is the intent and meaning of this agreement that the heirs of those children of the said Polly Drotter deceased as have died, shall have the same that such child would have by the terms of this agreement if living, that is that the said heirs of the said Maria C. Black deceased shall have one of said equal sixth part of said property, and the said Maria C. Swanner and her husband another part after such deductions as have been made as aforesaid. Delivered

This I did make this the - day of May 1872, between of M Turner Master Commissioner in and for the County of Caldwell and State of Ky. of the one part and D L Black of the same County and State aforesaid of the second part. Witnesseth that whereas at the Nov Term 1871 of the Caldwell Circuit Court in a suit by Petition in Equity pending in said Court between J B Trotter Adm'r Plaintiff against J B Trotter heirs &c Defendants, a judgment was rendered in said cause in which among other things it was ordered that the lands embraced in the Dower allotted to the Widow M of Trotter, or so much as may be necessary to satisfy and pay the balance of the judgment in said cause, be sold subject to the life estate of said M of Trotter therein in pursuance of the provisions of the judgment rendered in said cause at the November Term 1870, except that he said Commissioner J B Turner makes said sale on a credit of six months instead of twelve, and that he report so and the said Turner Commissioner aforesaid, after having first duly advertised said land for sale for the time and in the manner as directed in said judgment aforesaid. Did on Monday the 15th day of January 1872, at the Court House Door in Princeton Ky. being County Court day, and the first day of the Term of said Court holden in and for said County, offer said land for sale on a credit of six months, to the highest and best bidder, or so much thereof as would satisfy said judgment, and D L Black being the highest and best bidder, became the purchaser of said Dower land at the sum and price of One hundred and Fifty Eight Dollars $158.

This Indenture now sheweth that the said Simon McLeinniger aforesaid by virtue of the Power and Authority vested in him as such Leynniger, and in consideration of the sum of One Hundred and Fifty Eight Dollars, the purchase money so bid, and paid, for said lands, subject to the life Estate of M. G. Trotter, doth hereby sell and convey unto the said D. L. Black, Forty Nine ^{1/4} acres of Land, the same surveyed and allotted to the widow, M. G. Trotter, by deeds appointed to deeds Dover, as per the report, and amended thus.

Begin at a Cherry Tree and Thorn tree in the corner of Mil-liems one field, and his corner with his line 818 54 poles to where stood a pair of draw bars, 840 & 83 poles to a large White Oak and Sugar tree, 871 & 38 poles to two White Oak Walnut and Black Hew, 872 & 29 poles to a small White Oak, fallen down, with a Spanish Oak and two Dogwoods as pointers, 874 1/2 poles to a Rock by a crop fence, then due West to a Rock on the side of a Deep gully on the branch 52 poles, thence S 54 1/2 poles to the beginning, containing 49 acres, subject to the life Estate of M. G. Trotter. Herein to have and to hold the said tract or parcel of Land him, his heirs and assigns forever, free from the claim or claims of all and every persons whomsoever, the life Estate of the widow excepted, so far as the said commissioner can warrant the same by virtue of the Power and authority vested in him as such commissioner, but no further, and in no event is said commissioner to become personally or individually liable for the title to said tracts of Land. In Testimony whereof the said Court hath hereto set his hand, the day and year first above written.

Dear Annie

I received your letter written me before Christmas in due time and have been so busy that I have neglected all my correspondence.

I am practically alone in my business at Chas. my youngest boy goes to school and Tom the oldest boy has gone to live with his uncle near Dallas he has a fine farm 4 miles from the city and has no children of his own he told Tom if he would come and stay with him that he would set him up with a farm when grown Mary my daughter who is 18. is teaching school at Deer Park a station between Houston and Galveston on the Bay shore road she will be at home with me about

Copy sent to me from Edna Trotter in Canada.
JH.

May 1st I would be glad to have you come to see us when she gets home. if you can come let me know soon and I will try to arrange things to that end so that you will enjoy your visit. Goliad is a fine old town good sociable people and very few right poor people here all seem to be in good circumstances. The younger set have all sorts of parties and entertainments and the older ones have their clubs of various kinds. The ladies have a D.A.R. and a Mothers club Daughters of the Confederacy & so forth. There are lots of beautiful sometime, dont you?

You ask me whether you were entitled to join the Daughters of the American Revolution. I will say you are. your great grand father uncle Frank Dodds was on the staff of Gen Marion and had several brothers under him also some of whom were killed in battle, I have seen his old army overcoat which was in the possession of uncle Wilson Dodds. if you will notice your uncle Franks name is Francis Marion and his uncle Wilsons name was Francis Marion Wilson Dodds, and I will tell you something else perhaps you dont know most of the fighting of the revolution was done in South Carolina where our people lived according to the records of the war office in Washington there were sixteen times as many men killed from South Carolina as there were from Massachusetts. ie from reading the ordinary history

one would imagine the main fight took place on Bunker Hill There were more men killed at the battle of Savannah than there were in the whole north during the war so you can consider yourself sixteen times more entitled to membership in the Daughter of the American Revolution than any one not descended from those old Scotch Irish of South Carolina

Our Great grandfather Trotter was known as General Trotter and lived in Kentucky and was a judge of the Supreme court of Ky. in his old age. I had a sketch of his life that was print in the Houston Post a few years ago but have lost it. There is a great grand son of his named Trotter living in Houston I visited him while there and there is no doubt in my mind but what he is an distant relative. our Grand father ^{Robert} Trotter from what I have heard was a sort of sport something like Joe Baile of Tex he dealt in Race horses and ran races with them he was killed by a race horse. he and our grand mother were divorced before his death.

He had several daughters and one or two sons older than your father and my mother ^{ma} by a former wife they lived at New Madrid Mo, where their descendants are still living our Presbyterian pastor here who is from New Madrid tells me he knew them their names are Lucas, Jeffords, Foster, Burns, &c

I have written a long rambling letter, I hope ^{you will} be interested in it and will come to see us. I am sure it is much cooler here in the summer than up there hoping to hear from you soon I am sincerely yours

Interpretation of C.T. Black letter written at Goliad TX, 5 Feb. 1911 to Annie Trotter Howard. Copy of letter sent to me, Jackie Baker Humphrey, 3/94 by John and Elsie Trotter, desc. of Chas. Lucas Trotter who was father of Annie. Charles L. Trotter was brother of my gr. grandmother Mariah Eliz. Trotter who married David Lowery Black, parents of C.T. Black, the letter writer.

Letter writer Charles Thomas Black b. 1856, Caldwell Co. KY, d. 1934 Houston, TX was brother of my grandfather David A. Black. Charles T. Black m1 Jewell Mann, m2 or 3 Emma Harlow. In 1900 census he had a wf Sarah.

Son Francis Dodds b. ca 1780. Too young for Rev. War.

Letter:
p. 1.

mentions son Charles F. Black, 1896-late 1977 d. Phoenix, AZ.
mentions son Thomas Mann Black, 1894-1964, La Grange TX.

mentions Annie Trotter's great grandfather, who was Uncle FRANK Dodds to Chas. T. Black, the writer of letter. Says he was on staff of Gen. Marion when several brothers served under him, some of whom were killed in battle. Annie's great grandfather was FRANCIS Dodds b. ca 1777/80 who m Mary Ann Shaw. Mary Ann Shaw was d/o James and Anner Shaw. Mary Ann Shaw was great Aunt to Chas. T. Black and her husband Francis Dodds was Gr. Uncle by marriage to C.T. Black. Francis Dodds b. 1778/80 was too young for Rev. War. CT Black jumped a generation in his letter. It was Annie's great great grandfather James FRANCIS Dodds b. ca 1740/50 who m Agnes McMeechen and Mgt Craig and served in Rev. War. I do not know of any relationship to Black of this earliest known Dodds generation. Black does not mention this generation in his letter. (I do not know maiden name of Anner, wf of James Shaw).

EREN, Olivia
has T. Black has also a great desc of James in inner Shaw.

mentions Uncle WILSON Dodds was Frances Wilson Dodds who married Dorcas Amelia Shaw and m2 Mrs. Charity Guess. Dorcas Amelia Shaw was d/o Polly Waters and 1st husb. William Shaw who was s/o James and Anner Shaw. Letter indicates that WILSON also had name Marion, ie: FMW Dodds. The initial M. does not appear in census records for FW. - Francis WILSON Dodds. Francis WILSON Dodds was blood Uncle to Chas. T. Black. Wilson Dodds' wf Dorcas Amelia Shaw was blood half Aunt of C.T. Black. Dorcas Amelia's father William Shaw was brother of C. T. Black's grandmother Keturah Shaw who m. Sam Black III. Thus Wm Shaw was his blood great Uncle also.

mentions Uncle Frank - Francis Marion W. Dodds married his cousin Celestine Brelsford, moved from Ky to Gonzales Co. TX. Frank was s/o David S. Dodds and Eliz. Brown. Celestine was d/o Hiram Hawkins Brelsford and Celestine Logan Black. Her grfather was Sam Black III and Keturah Shaw. Frank Marion Dodds' Uncle was indeed Francis WILSON Dodds as stated in letter.

mentions S.C. where our people lived. CT Black and Annie Trotter's people in SC would be Thomas Willoughby Waters and wf Francis Davis. TWW served in Rev. The Shaw family may also have been in the Carolina's before TN. C.T. Black's Dodds Uncles were by marriage, not blood. Annie Trotter's Dodds ancestors were from SC.

p. 4. (error)
mentions gr grfather Trotter who was a general and Judge - this refers to brothers of their gr grf David Trotter who was killed by Indians in MO. (Get Houston Post article written before 1908).
DAVID TROTTER Served as a Capt in Rev War in Augusta Co Va.

p. 5.
mentions grfather Trotter and race horses - Robert Trotter.
mentions grmother Trotter, divorced (from Robert Trotter). She was Polly/Mary Waters (Shaw)(Trotter). Her first husband was William Shaw, s/o James and Anner Shaw, see above lineage.

mentions several daus. and one or two sons of grfather (Robert) Trotter by former wife, ie: Lucas, Jeffords, Foster, Burns. All except Burns were daus. of Robert as known to me. I cannot place Burns, although a dau. of Thos. W. Waters m. Mr. Byrne. Sons must refer to David and Sam or poss. John Trotter.

Note that Wm Shaw was a bro. of Keturah Shaw, Jackie's anc.
His wf. "Polly" Waters was Jackie's anc. by her and husb. Robt Trotter.
Mary

Thus Polly Waters 1st husb. Shaw was ^{by blood} 3rd Uncle to Jackie (blood Uncle to my gr. grf. Dd Black)

Crider Community Historical Report

(Eleventh In Series)

This is the week we begin the series concerning the history of the Bethlehem Church located at Crider. If there was ever a religious institution that had a lot to do with the early development of this county, this one fits that category.

Throughout the years there has been a search in progress to find the local copies of the report we will get our information from. It hasn't been found locally. We are thankful to Littleton Groom, formerly of Princeton who now lives in New Jersey. When he was in Memphis September 2, 1967 he went to a library of the Presbyterian Church and found the original copy of the report we will pass along to you. They made a copy of it.

According to the information we have, this history of the church was placed in the association minutes at a meeting in Marion, Kentucky, October 3, 4 and 5, 1905. Moderator for that meeting was the Rev. M. E. Chappell and the Clerk was J. F. Price.

Since the entry into the minutes on this date were written in first party, we will pass them along to you in this manner so we will not in any way take away the meaning of any of the words or lines. It will take several weeks to complete it, but because it contains so much valuable history, we feel you will enjoy it.

"Bethlehem (Church) is situated six miles northwest of Princeton, Caldwell County, Kentucky and one mile north of Crider Station on the Ohio Valley Division of the Illinois Central Railroad.

"In 1810 the first preaching by Cumberland Presbyterian ministers in our neighborhood was at Samuel Smith's residence, afterward known as the Elk Horn Tavern or Inn, a part of which building is yet standing and used as a residence. From this date there was occasional preaching in the neighborhood, the revival spirit spreading from home to home.

"In the spring or early summer months of 1813 the first camp meeting was held in the grove near where the church now stands. The revival spirit became so effective and wide spread that a cry for organization came in from every direction. Several camps and a large shed were erected during the years of 1813 and 1814."

Crider Community Historical Report

(Twelfth In Series)

Nathan Gates, Jr., and Dolly Gates.

(ED. NOTE:—We are continuing the historical report of the Bethlehem Church located at Crider which was originally written in 1905.)

"In October 1814, at the close of the second camp meeting for that year, Bethlehem Church was organized by the Rev. John Barnett, an ordained minister in the Cumberland Presbyterian Church, and shortly thereafter the name was regularly entered in the list of churches constituting the Anderson Presbytery, which at that date was scattered over a large portion of Western and Southern Kentucky and Southern Indiana.

"Charter members of the church were: Esther Love, Elizabeth Campbell, Mary Ann Kinkead, Edward Robinson, Ions Smith, Axil Perkins, the Rev. John Barnett, Phoebe Kinkead, Samuel Black, John Kelly, Adam Perkins, Thomas Campbell, Elizabeth Kinkead, Polly Barnett, Samuel Smith, Keturah Black and Mrs. John Kelly.

"The Church Elders were Samuel Smith, John Kelly, Thomas Campbell, Samuel Black and Edward Robinson. The last three named ordained the first two named having been previously ordained and held the position of Ruling Elders in the mother church.

"A short time after the organization, the following were added as resident members: Francis Dodds, Caroline Gates, Anner Dodds, Mariah Gates, William Smith, John Holland, Rebecca Smith, Elizabeth Holland, James Maxwell, Clara Dodds, Elizabeth Maxwell, June Dodds, Hugh Orr, James Armstrong, Polly Orr, Nellie Armstrong, Isabel Orr, Elizabeth Armstrong, Isabel Holland, John Armstrong, Elizabeth Dodds, Nancy Armstrong, Donas Shaw, Alexander Adam, son, Dolly Gates, Sr., Isabelle Anderson, Nathan Gates, Sr.,

"Your historian has made this lengthy insertion here for the purpose of showing the importance of a compact organization. Here is the record of solid membership from Princeton to Livingston Creek, from Cumberland River to Donaldson's Fork of the Trade-water River.

"Thus, this nestor of the Cumberland Presbyterian, was enabled by inherent strength, with continuous heavenly benedictions coming upon her, to send out several groups in nearby communities of active daughters."

Crider Community Historical Report

(Thirteenth In Series)

(ED. NOTE: We are continuing the historical report of the Bethlehem Church located at Crider which was originally written in 1905.)

"The spirit of missions and education, so pronounced in our denomination in later years, appears to have been born in Bethlehem; as witnesses this statement Old Cumberland College, our first denominational school was located nearby, largely fostered and directed for a long time by the combined efforts of this spartan band.

"Then within another decade, we find them adding another institute of education, Bethlehem Academy, which for many years was largely patronized, and more than locally noted as an education leader. From these pioneer institutions our missionaries and educators went out in various directions, with burning desires for the betterment of their variously chosen localities. Missions, education and church erection in our denomination may well and truly refer to Bethlehem as their alma mater.

"In 1816 a log church house was erected, though it was not fully completed until 1820, a striking example of perseverance and determination on the part of these primitive settlers, building this house with their own hands, as they could spare the time from their necessary labors in support of their families. For nearly 30 years the congregation worshipped in this log building, having three services each month, a practice that has been continued to the present time. During this decade and a half we find that more than two hundred and fifty names were added to the roll of church members.

"The plot of ground upon which the church and camps and sheds were erected, consisting of four acres, was donated to the trustees of Bethlehem Church by Adam Perkins, one of the charter members. In the year 1846 the log house was removed and a neat brick church was erected. The building was 36 by 46 feet and 14 feet high at the eaves. In the year 1847 an additional plot of ground, adjoining the first, was purchased and a two story brick academy erected thereon. At the next session of the State Legislature a charter of incorporation was granted to the church session. The absence of taxation to support this school stands unsurpassed as a monument to individual self reliance, self support, self education, that the later day systems have never succeeded in equaling."

Crider Community Historical Report

(Fourteenth In Series)

(ED. NOTE:—We are continuing the historical report of the Bethlehem Church located at Crider which was originally written in 1905.)

"From the first camp meeting in 1813 until they were discontinued in 1860 there were about fifty, the record showing that occasionally two were held in the same year. During this period more than 1,500 conversions are reported as having occurred at these meetings. Some of these made useful ministers.

"From Bethlehem other churches organized were: Old Providence with 14 members which was destroyed by fire; Fredonia, organized October 18, 1845 with 34 members; Flat Rock in 1866 with 12 members and Good Spring, organized April 22, 1893.

"From the organization in 1814, the Rev. John Barnett was Bethlehem pastor for more than twenty years. For the following three years, 1835-36 and 37, the pulpit was regularly supplied by ministers from the Cumberland College.

"In 1838 the Rev. W. C. Love was called and he continued until 1846. In that year the Rev. L. C. Philips became the pastor and continued until 1851.

"The Rev. George D. McLean was then called to the pastorate and he continued until his death in August 1854.

"The Rev. Milton Bird was next called to the church and he began his labors as such with the new year of 1855. He continued until July 1858 when he moved to St. Louis to edit the St. Louis Observer. In the fall of that year the Rev. R. T. Marlow was called and he continued as pastor until the summer of 1863.

"The Rev. Milton Bird was again called to become pastor and in the fall of that year began his second and last pastorate with the church. He was regularly installed as pastor on May 8, 1864 and he continued his faithful work with the church until his death July 26, 1871.

"Ole Father Love, still living near Crider, though enfeebled with age, came over and preached for the church until his death in April, 1872. Thus the record shows that three of the churches strong men were called home in so short a time while serving as pastor—McClean, Bird and Love.

"During these last twenty years we find that more than two-hundred and fifty names were added to the membership of Bethlehem Church."

DAMAGING WIND STORM HITS—

Crider Community Historical Report

(Fifteenth In Series)

(ED. NOTE: We are continuing the historical report of the Bethlehem Church located at Crider, which was originally written in 1905.)

"In June 1872 the Rev. I. B. Self was called to the pastorate, but owing to the continued illness of his wife he was compelled to resign the following year. He was immediately succeeded by the Rev. J. E. McShan of Mississippi, who on account of failing health remained with the church for only one year. The Rev. I. B. Self was again called to the pastorate, which position he held until the later part of 1877.

"Before completing the story of the pastors the historian notes that on the night of April 18, 1877 a severe wind storm swept over the Crider portion of the county. The church house and the academy were utterly demolished, both of them being substantial brick buildings. The ruin was complete, but in four months and three days time the congregation, with some assistance of friends in the surrounding county, erected and completed a new church house on the old foundation.

"On August 26, 1877 the new house was dedicated to Almighty God and His service by the Rev. J. M. Gill of Elkton, Kentucky. In the meantime a district school house was being erected on a part of the foundation of the academy which was completed in due time for the fall term.

"As previously stated, Brother Self resigned in the fall of 1877. The Rev. L. McWhirter was next chosen as the pastor and he remained with the church three years, when on account of failing voice and health, he was compelled to resign the pastorate. The Rev. J. M. Halsell was next called and he started in October of 1881. He served the congregation faithfully and acceptably for four years, closing out his pastorate the fourth Sabbath in September of 1885.

"The next pastor was the Rev. J. H. Miller who was attending Lebanon Theological School and at the close of the term came and took up the pastor's work regularly on the second Sabbath in June of 1886. In April 1887 he was ordered by the Presbytery and regularly installed as pastor for Bethlehem and Fredonia congregations. Early in 1888 the Board of Ministerial Relief solicited Brother Miller to become its general secretary; pressing the call to such a degree that he finally yielded, and by consent of the Presbytery at the spring meeting, the relationship then existing was shortly thereafter dissolved by Brother Miller's accepting the Board's work and removing to Evansville, Indiana."

Crider Community Historical Report

(ED. NOTE: We are continuing the historical report of the Bethlehem Church located at Crider, which was originally written in 1905.)

"The Rev. M. E. Chappell of Indiana was called to the pastorate and began the work the first of June, 1838. He continued to serve faithfully and acceptably until the first of November, 1893 when he resigned and moved to Paducah, Ky.

"The Rev. J. N. McDonald of Bell Buckle, Tennessee, was next called. He commenced his pastorate January 7, 1894 and served faithfully for three years.

"The Rev. J. P. Halsell of Danville, Kentucky was called to the pastorate and he started work January 1, 1897 and continued to serve as such profitably and acceptably until May 1, 1903.

"The Rev. J. L. Dickens of Dyer, Tennessee, was next called and he started his work November 1, 1903. He continued to serve faithfully and ably until the close of 1904, when on account of his children needing better school advantages, he moved to Starkville, Mississippi.

"The Rev. E. R. Overby of Mayfield Presbytery was next called to the pastorate on April 1, 1905.

"The summary of 91 years of activity at the Bethlehem Church showed they had 15 regular pastors with more than 2000 conversions.

"In 1860 the church session set apart a portion of the original four acres for burial purposes. This sacred spot became a central cemetery for the congregation. It was first enclosed with a substantial plank fence.

"In 1898, during the Rev. J. P. Halsell's pastorate, the congregation and other interested friends erected a handsome iron picket fence around the church and along two sides of the cemetery, completing the enclosure with smooth steel wire.

"In addition to these itemized improvements, the church building was repainted, newly papered, and the floor fully carpeted, making a total expenditure at one time of nine-hundred dollars, thereby adding materials to the beauty and attractiveness of this lovely and consecrated spot."

Crider Community Historical Report

(Seventeenth In Series)

(ED. NOTE: We are continuing the historical report of the Bethlehem Church located at Crider, which was originally written in 1905.)

"There are other records at Bethlehem Church that your historian wishes to insert here. Frances Dodds, an elder at Bethlehem Church, attended the meeting of the Anderson Presbytery at Princeton, Indiana October 4, 1825.

"Anderson Presbytery met at Bethlehem Church the second Tuesday in October, 1826. Hiram McDaniel was moderator, and F. R. Cossitt was clerk. Thomas Reynolds was licensed and Wyatt Rucker, William Gardner, John Barbour and Eli S. Jones were received as candidates. A call meeting of the Anderson Presbytery was held at Bethlehem July 17, 1827.

"Anderson Presbytery met in the regular annual session at Bethlehem April 1, 1828. Rev. David Lowry preached the opening sermon. Rev. W. T. Hutchinson was moderator and David Lowry, clerk. William Gardner and Thomas H. Hunter were then licensed and Matthew H. Bone was ordained. Rev. John Barnett preached the sermon and David Lowry presided and gave the charge. It appears from the records before us that a petition was formulated at this last named session of the Presbytery, asking the General Synod (which at that date was our highest judiciary) to permit the forming of a new Presbytery to be known as Princeton Presbytery.

"This petition was favorably acted upon by the Synod, and accordingly a commission consisting of David Lowry, F. R. Crossitt, John W. Ogden and James Johnson were appointed to organize the new Presbytery, which was in the fall of that year (1828) accomplished. Therefore from this named date Bethlehem's name appears in the list of churches composing Princeton Presbytery, which embraced the territory known as Crittenden, Caldwell, Lyon, Marshall and Livingston Counties and possibly a portion of Trigg County.

"Much might be written of this formative period concerning Bethlehem, her pastor and the wonderful revival and educational spirit prevailing here membership. The records are scant about this time. Every body, it appears, that did not have his shoulder to the wheel, was on his knees praying with all his might that Zion might be built up, that ignorance, infidelity and superstition might be driven from our borders, that their sons and daughters might be moulded into workers."

Crider Community Historical Report

(Eighteenth In Series)

(ED. NOTE: We are continuing the historical report of the Bethlehem Church located at Crider, which was originally written in 1905.)

"Look at Bethlehem's pastors leading everyone in their heroic effort, try to accomplish a task that proved to be impractical, if not impossible, the building, equipping, manning and maintaining a college for higher education, from a manual labor revenue upon a farm of the institution.

"The heroic struggle of Barnett, Beard, Cossitt and others has never yet been fully told, or had it equal reproduced. Bethlehem, seeing her pastor sacrificed, his large fortune being consumed, Cumberland College staggering, waning, doomed; her highest anticipations for the education of her sons at home blasted, did the heroic useful next best deed, began to plan for a school upon her own soil.

"Thus as the college went down the academy went up. It flourished and prospered and panted for breath because of its overcrowded condition for some years. Many of her alumni can be traced to this day by a path of light and usefulness, good citizenship and educated descendants.

"As before stated one of Bethlehem's church registers was burned in Father Love's home, but from records of Princeton Presbytery we again take up the history of some of its meetings at Bethlehem.

"Princeton Presbytery met at Bethlehem on Friday before the second Sunday in April, 1852. Again October 7, 1864 when the Rev. M. A. Marlow was moderator, W. C. McGehee, clerk. This was the year that Dr. Bird was installed as our pastor. Again in April 1869, it held the spring meeting with our church. M. A. Marlow preached the opening sermon from First Timothy, 4:16. W. C. Love was chosen moderator. Dr. Darby was received as a candidate for the ministry the same year, and at another called meeting, January 28, 1871, he was licensed to preach the Gospel.

"The Princeton Presbytery held the spring session at Bethlehem in April, 1873. The opening sermon was preached by the Rev. J. L. Hughey. The Rev. W. B. Crowell was moderator, I. B. Self was the clerk."

Crider Community Historical Report

(Nineteenth In Series)

(ED. NOTE: We are continuing the historical report of the Bethlehem Church located at Crider, which was originally written in 1905.)

"Princeton Presbytery met at Bethlehem Church March 31, 1877. The opening sermon was preached by the Rev. J. L. Hughey from 2nd Cor. 8:20. The Rev. R. P. Mitchell was elected moderator and Colonel George W. Bain made a fine temperance lecture. C. R. Cain and James F. Price were then received as candidates for the ministry.

"Again in November 1877, a called meeting of the Presbytery was held at Bethlehem with another one called in October 1880. At the 1880 meeting the opening sermon was preached by the Rev. J. B. Lowery from Matt. 6:24. J. M. Halsell was elected moderator. Eddie Bird and W. C. M. Travis were then ordained to the full work of the ministry.

"Again in 1887 the spring meeting of the Presbytery was at Bethlehem. The Rev. B. D. Cockrell of Louisville preached the sermon and the Rev. B. T. Watson was chosen moderator. Again in March 1893 the Presbytery met at Bethlehem and the Rev. J. B. Garrett preached the opening sermon from Psalms 4:3. B. T. Vinson was moderator. The Rev. G. L. Woodruff was ordained to the full work of the ministry. The Rev. J. B. Hail was present and delivered a fine sermon on missions.

"In April 1898, the then enlarged Princeton Presbytery held the spring meeting at Bethlehem. The Rev. W. A. Boone, the retiring moderator of the Anderson Presbytery by special order of the Synod of Kentucky, preached the opening sermon. Our retiring moderator, the Rev. G. L. Woodruff, peacefully yielded the honor, and assisting with all his might in the organization of the new Presbytery.

"Thus this mother in our Zion has often welcomed our Judicatures to her hospitable homes and sacred portals. Her loyalty to these and hospitality are well known characteristics of her people.

"May her present and future membership be like mended and these noble characteristics continued from generation to generation, till all churches shall be transformed into the great Church Triumphant."

Crider Community Historical Report

(ED. NOTE: We are continuing the historical report of the Bethlehem Church located at Crider, which was originally written in 1905.)

"The complete list of Elders and Deacons for the Bethlehem Church is: Samuel Smith, Samuel Black, John Holland, David B. Green, Robert Smith, James Wilson, James H. Leech, Alexander Wilson, W. G. Glenn, Thomas Campbell, William Johnson, Seth B. Wiggington, G. W. Adamson, John Kelly, Edward Robinson, William Smith, Housand Parr, Joseph H. Mott, Francis Machen, Gilbert C. Dodds, G. J. Guess, G. W. Adamson, Jr., Francis Dodds, John J. Hillyard, William R. Mott, J. B. Greer and J. W. Hughes.

"In 1905 the members of the Church Board were W. B. Blue, W. P. Black, C. A. Wilson, E. J. Crider, J. D. Leech, H. C. Turley and J. B. Hewlett.

"Deacons listed with length of service were: James Shaw Black, 1860-1885; Samuel B. Brelsford, 1866-1871; G. J. Guess, 1866-1872; J. L. Adamson, 1871-1901; M. F. Bird, 1873-1899; W. P. Black, 1886-1890. Also listed as present board are: R. B. Baker, George W. Glenn and Fred E. Guess.

(ED. NOTE: The writer of this history closed with a Horoscopic View, and it is listed below.)

"In the foregoing imperfect sketch of the 91 years of church life and work of Bethlehem Church, your historian has omitted many matters which the decendants of the charter members would be interested in reading, but the general public might not care to read, so she is fast approaching the centennial work.

"At that time her heros and heroines may more fittingly receive due memorials from generation to generation this organization has been held in tact. An itemized amount of its work would fill a large volume with interesting matters and statistics. These matters we leave to future historians, whose limits may not be so exacting as ours.

"Long yet may her influence for Zion be felt and may many souls yet be born within her Sacred portals. Long live Thou Bethlehem, my spirited mother.

Signed: "W. P. Black, submitted for approval by the church session August 26, 1905) E. R. Overby, Moderator."

Caldwell County, Kentucky

Loose Papers

Office of the County Court Clerk Caldwell County, Kentucky

Know all men by these presents, that we, William St. Paulford & Samuel Black

ARE held and firmly bound unto the Commonwealth of Kentucky, in the penal sum of £50, to the payment whereof well and truly to be made, we bind ourselves, each of our heirs, executors and administrators, jointly and severally, firmly by these presents, sealed and dated the 6th day of December 1824

The condition of the above obligation is such, that whereas there is a licence about to issue for a marriage shortly intended to be solemnized between the above bounden William St. Paulford and Celestine L. Black

NOW, if it shall always hereafter appear that there is no lawful cause to obstruct said marriage, then this obligation to be void, else to remain in full force and virtue.

On petition for partition

This day came the said petitioners by their attorney and file their petition, and it appearing to the satisfaction of the court, that the said defendant Charles Trotter is a minor under the age of twenty one years, and on motion the court appoint Meliam Waller guardian ad litem of the said minor who accepts of said appointment and being present in court enters his appearance herein, and this cause is submitted to the court, who after hearing the allegations of the parties, doth find that the said Martha Jeffords, Eliza Trotter David Trotter, Mary Jane Miller, Maria Black, Jane Trotter, Samuel Trotter and Charles Trotter, own and have title in fee simple to, as tenants in common in the following described real estate, lying in this County, to wit
The South West quarter of the North East quarter of Section eight in Township No twenty nine north of range No fourteen east containing forty acres, and that they are entitled each to one undivided eighth part of said real estate, and that they are entitled to have partition of said real property according to their respective rights therein as aforesaid. It is therefore ordered by the court that partition of said real estate be made among said parties according to their respective rights as aforesaid, and it further appearing to the satisfaction of the court, that partition of the said real estate cannot be made in kind without great prejudice to the rights of the said owners.
It is therefore ordered by the court that said real estate be sold by the Sheriff of this County on a credit of twelve months at public auction to the highest bidder according to law, for the purpose of making partition among the said owners according to their respective interests therein as aforesaid.

And having previously to the day of sale herein after mentioned given at least twenty days notice of the time and place of sale, and of the real estate to be sold, and where situated as the law directs, by six written advertisements signed by me and put up in six of the most public places in said County of Scott, which said advertisements are in the words and figures following, to wit:

" Sheriffs Sale to make partition "

In pursuance of an Order of the Circuit Court of Scott County Missouri, made at the April Term 1849. And to me delivered
I will sell to the highest bidder at public sale, on a credit of twelve months at the Court House door in the town of Benton in said County, on Tuesday the 9th day of October next, being the 2nd of October Term 1849 of said Court, the following described tract of land lying in said County of Scott

To all men to whom these presents shall come, I Hartwell Brock Sheriff of the County of Scott in the State of Missouri, send Greeting:— Whereas on the 18th day of May 1848 an order was made in and by the Circuit Court of Scott County and State aforesaid by an entry of Record that the then Sheriff of said County sell at public sale to the highest bidder on a credit of twelve months the purchaser giving bond with approved security, the following described Real Estate situate in said County of Scott, to wit: the North East quarter of section seven in Township twenty nine North of Range fourteen East containing one hundred and thirty seven acres and fifty hundredths of an acre; also the North East quarter of the South East quarter of said section Township and range, containing forty acres, sold to make partition among the heirs and legal representatives of Robert Trotter deceased. And Henry D Spear then Sheriff of said County of Scott having previously to the day of sale herein after mentioned given at least twenty days notice of the time, terms and place of sale and of the real Estate to be sold being the same as above described and where situate as the law directs by six hand bills, signed by him said Spear, then Sheriff as aforesaid of said County, and put up at six public places in said County, and in different parts thereof; by virtue of which said order and advertisement, said Henry D Spear then Sheriff as aforesaid did on the 12th day of October in the year 1848 between the hours of nine in the forenoon and five of the afternoon of that day agreeably to said notices or hand bills at the Court house door in said County of Scott and during the session of the Circuit Court for said County at the October term thereof in the year 1848 expose to sale at public auction on a credit of twelve months all the right title interest and Estate which the heirs and legal Representatives of Robert Trotter deceased had of in and to the above described real Estate. And David Trotter being the highest and last bidder for the North West quarter of the South East quarter of section seven in Township twenty nine North of Range fourteen East containing, forty acres at the price and sum of Fifty Dollars the said last above described Real Estate was stricken off and sold to said David Trotter for that sum.

And whereas at the April Term of said Circuit Court for the year 1849 the said Henry D Spear then Sheriff of said County of Scott made to said Court a report of said sale as the law directs, of his proceedings touching said sale including the Manner, time, terms and place of sale, and to whom sold of said real Estate, all as heretofore set forth and which report was there upon approved by said Circuit Court and so entered of Record—

And whereas on the Eighteen day of April in the year 1857 at a term of the said Circuit Court for said County of Scott it appearing to the satisfaction of said Court that the above facts as set forth were true, and that no deed had been made said David Trotter to said last described real Estate, of which he became the purchaser as above set forth that the said Henry D Spear's term of office as Sheriff had expired, it was ordered by said Court by an entry of Record, that Hartwell Brock Sheriff of said County of Scott execute and deliver to said David Trotter a deed to said North west quarter of the South East quarter of section seven in Township twenty nine North of Range fourteen East containing, forty acres as aforesaid.

Now therefore in consideration of the premises and of the said sum of fifty Dollars to me Hartwell Brock the said Sheriff, in hand paid by the said David Trotter, the receipt whereof I do hereby acknowledge and by virtue of the authority, in me vested by law of said last mentioned order I Hartwell Brock Sheriff as aforesaid do hereby grant sell and convey to the said David Trotter all the right title and interest and Estate which the heirs and legal Representatives of said Robert Trotter deceased had, of, in and to the said North West quarter of the South East quarter of section seven in Township twenty nine North of Range fourteen East at the time of said sale, that I might sell as Sheriff as aforesaid by virtue of the aforesaid orders and notices, To have and to hold the same with all rights, title, interest and Estate hereby conveyed unto the said David Trotter his heirs and assigns, forever with all the rights and appurtenances thereto belonging. In witness whereof I Hartwell Brock Sheriff of Scott County, in the State of Missouri have hereto set my hand and affixed my seal this 23rd day of May in the year 1857.

The Brock Sheriff

Scott Circuit Court, April Term AD 1857

Saturday the 23rd day of May, and seventh day of the Term.

And now at this time comes Hartwell Brock Sheriff of this County, into open Court, and acknowledges as his act and deed, a deed of conveyance, as Sheriff aforesaid, to David Trotter for the following described Real Estate, to wit, the North West quarter of the South East quarter of section seven in Township twenty nine North of Range fourteen East containing forty acres, sold in pursuance of an order of this Court to make partition among the heirs and legal representatives of Robert Trotter deceased which acknowledgment is ordered to be certified on said deed.

I Charles Book, Clerk of the Circuit Court within and for the County of Scott in the State of Missouri do certify that the foregoing is a full true and perfect copy of the acknowledgment of the within deed as the same now remains of record in my office

In witness whereof I have hereunto subscribed my name and affixed the seal of said Court at office, in the town of Benton this 29th day of May AD 1857

Received and Recorded the foregoing deed and acknowledgment — Charles Book Clerk Ex Officio Recorder.

To all men to whom these presents shall come I Hartwell Brock Sheriff of the County of Scott in the State of Missouri send greeting: Whereas on the 9th day of October in the year of our Lord 1855, an order was made in the Circuit Court of said County by an Entry of record that I as Sheriff as aforesaid, sell at public sale, to the highest bidder, one tenth of the purchase money, to be paid down at sale, the residue on a credit of twelve with bond and approved, the following described property or real Estate, situate in said County of Scott, to wit, The west half of the South West fractional quarter of fractional section number five in Township twenty seven North of Range sixteen East containing seventy five and Eighty nine hundredths of an acre — said real Estate sold to make partition among John H. Boatman and James P. Boatman heirs and legal representatives of Daniel Boatman deceased — And having previously, to the day of sale herein after mentioned given at least twenty days notice of the time terms and place of sale, and of the real Estate to be sold and where situate as the law directs by six hand bills signed by me the said Sheriff as such, and put up at six public places in said County and in different parts thereof; by virtue of which said order and advertisements I did on the fourteenth day of April in the year 1856, between the hours of nine in the forenoon and five of the afternoon of that day, agreeably to said notice notices or hand bills, at the Court House door in said County of Scott and during the session of the Circuit Court of said County at the April term thereof in the year 1856, expose to sale at public auction, one tenth of the purchase money, to be cash in hand the residue on a credit of twelve months, with bond and approved security all the right, title, interest and Estate which the said John H. Boatman and James P. Boatman heirs and legal Representatives of Daniel Boatman, deceased had of in and to the above

Equity

Against

Polly Trotter & others

Defendants

This day came the parties aforesaid by attorney and upon motion, it is ordered that the order of continuance be set aside, and the parties filed an agreement herein reading as follows, viz: Whereas a certain suit was instituted several years ago in the Caldwell Circuit Court in relation to certain negroes, by John W. Shaw and others against Polly Trotter and others, and whereas the said Polly Trotter has since died, leaving a last will and testament which has been duly admitted to record by the proper Court; and whereas said suit has been revived against James H. French, the administrator with the will annexed of the said Polly Trotter deceased, and whereas there is a controversy between the children, devisees, heirs, legatees and representatives of the said Polly Trotter deceased respecting the ownership of said negroes, and their heirs and respecting the personal and real estate of said decedent. Now for the purpose of settling the matters in controversy in said suit and all of said matters in controversy in relation to said negroes and their heirs and all matters in relation to the estate of the said Polly Trotter deceased, we John W. Shaw & W. D. Dodel, M. P. Phillips, Charles L. Trotter, E. C. Swanner, and D. G. Black do hereby agree and covenant, each and every one of us with each and all of the others, and with each other, as follows, to-wit: first that said suit shall be discontinued; secondly, that all the debts if any against the estate of said decedent, all the expenses attending the administration of said estate, all the expenses of said suit including costs, and the fees of each and all the lawyers on both sides of said suit, and all the costs that may hereafter arise or accrue in reference to the administration and settlement of said estate and the division of said negroes, and the division of the property belonging to said estate shall be first paid out of said estate. Thirdly, that the residue and remainder of said estate of every kind and description both real and personal, including the negroes in controversy and all other and their heirs both before and since the death of the said Polly Trotter deceased

Trotter shall have another of said equal parts or portions of said parts and that the heirs of Maria C. Black deceased the former wife of the said D. L. Black shall have the remaining sixth part of said property. The true intent and meaning of this agreement being to produce perfect equality between the children now living the said Polly Trotter deceased and the heirs and representatives of such of the children of the said Polly Trotter deceased as have died. It is understood that the said Polly Trotter deceased executed her said last will and testament in the name of Mary Trotter and it is the intent and meaning of this agreement that the heirs of those children of the said Polly Trotter deceased as have died, shall have the same that such child would have by the terms of this agreement if living, that is that the said heirs of the said Maria C. Black deceased shall have one of said equal sixth part of said property, and the said Maria C. Swanner and her husband another part after such deductions as have been made as aforesaid. GERMINATION — ACADEMY AND COLLEGE 115

Church was disestablished, created an important fund for the promotion of public education. The glebe of Fredericksville, which seems to have embraced four hundred acres, was purchased for four hundred pounds in colonial currency. On the other hand, the glebe of St. Anne's, which lay not far from the Green Mountains, was, perhaps, not so extensive or so profitable.

u. Va 1819

IV. Origin of Albemarle Academy

The most famous school situated nearest to Charlottesville previous to the Revolution was the one conducted by the Rev. James Maury, who had been the rector of Fredericksville parish at the time that it took in also the county of Louisa. Dying in 1770, he was succeeded by his son, Matthew Maury, as the clergyman of Trinity parish,—the new parish created in the first division of Fredericksville,—and as the headmaster of his school. It was here that Jefferson received his earliest tuition after leaving home. This school enjoyed a high reputation for thoroughness many years before Albemarle Academy was incorporated, and was, no doubt, patronized, before and after the Revolution, by many families in Albemarle county, although more or less inconvenient to them on account of its remoteness. Another clergyman, Rev. Samuel Black, had established a school near the foot of the Blue Ridge; and about 1760, James Forbes was teaching in the neighborhood of Ivy.

But the need of a school in the immediate vicinity of Charlottesville became so pressing by 1783, that the first practical step was taken to establish an academy there. There is no evidence that Jefferson suggested this project, but there is proof that he felt so deep an interest in it that he exacted of a friend in the county population alone, but as the seat of justice, the site of several general stores and the foremost lawyers' offices, and the scene of popular assemblages when the court was in session, or a political rally was holding, it formed the central point in the civic life of the community. Apart from the court-house itself, the two principal houses in the little town were the Swann and the Old Stone taverns. It was here that the promiscuous concourse of citizens dined on court days; it was here that travellers, passing through to the Valley or the West, stopped to bait their horses or to spend a night; and it was here also that the rather liberal taste for strong waters prevailing in those times could always find indulgence. The lawyers probably met some of their clients here; and here certainly many important conferences of all kinds were held. The most animated spot within the limits of the village outside of the court-house square itself was, on court days at least, the porch of the Old Stone tavern, for this ordinary was kept by one of the most popular citizens of the county, Triplett Estes, the condition of whose affairs, as we shall soon see, threatened, at one time, to have some connection with the origin of the University of Virginia.

Albemarle county, before the Revolution, was divided between Fredericksville and St. Anne's parishes; and of the two, Fredericksville, which had been extended from Louisa county, was laid off first. St. Anne's was formed in 1762 by drawing its eastern boundary line along the Rivanna to a point opposite Charlottesville; and thence the line ran through the town westward to the Blue Ridge. The parish itself was situated south of this line. The history of these parishes is pertinent to our subject, for the clergymen who filled their pulpits were, in several instances, well known teachers before and after the Revolution, and the sales of the glebes, when the

CHAPTER II.

THE CALDWELL COLONY.

The situation of the Woods and Wallace Colony, on the western edge of Albemarle, was lonely in many ways; the lack of religious privileges and opportunities was especially deplored. Their condition was brought to the attention of Hanover Presbytery at its initial session on the 3d of December, 1755, and the following entry with reference to it was recorded in the minutes:

"A petition directed to Mr. Davies and Mr. Todd from people living near the mountain in Albemarle, near Woods' Gap, was referred by them to the Presbytery, representing their destitute circumstances in the want of gospel ordinances, and requesting some supplies from us: The Presbytery therefore appoint the Rev. Samuel Davies to preach there on the second Sabbath in March next; and that Mr. Brown desire some of the people to appoint the place of meeting, to be out of the bounds of Mr. Black's congregation, at some convenient place." (Foote, 2, 44.)

The reason why the people of the community at Woods' Gap hesitated to attend upon the ministrations of the Rev. Samuel Black, who about the year 1739 had come to Virginia to be the pastor of a colony composed to a large extent of the Reids and their family connections, at Rockfish Gap, in Albemarle (now Nelson) County, may be sought in the circumstance that Mr. Black and the colony at Rockfish belonged to the so-called "Old Side," who adhered to the Synod of Philadelphia after the division that occurred in 1741, while the Woods and Wallace families adhered to the "New Side" Synod of New York. It was not until a series of years had passed by, after the organization of Hanover Presbytery, that this breach was healed, and Mr. Black ventured to ask for a seat among his brethren of the Hanover fraternity. At the time when the above minute was set down Hanover Presbytery and its constituents had no dealings with him. By consequence, the colonists at Woods' Gap, as far as possible, avoided intercourse with their neighbors at Rockfish Gap.

The influence of John McDowell, of Augusta, in attracting his nephews of the Wallace name from their place in Albemarle to the western side of the Blue Ridge, may have been decided and possibly active; but it failed to operate in the case of Samuel Wallace, the third of the sons of Peter Wallace. On the contrary, he turned his steps due southward a distance of nearly a hundred miles from his father's house, and cast in his fortunes with the Caldwell Colony on Cub Creek, in Lunenburg (now Charlotte) County.

The Cub Creek community was established by John Caldwell, a Scotch Irishman, who, like the Wallaces, is believed to have tarried a more or less lengthy period of time at Lancaster in Pennsylvania. It was composed of two sections, the one residing on Cub Creek and the other residing on Buffalo Creek, in Amelia (now Prince Edward) County. (Foote, 1, 102.) This colony was shortly followed by two others, which settled themselves at Concord and Hat Creek, in Campbell, and are supposed to have been more or less under the leadership of John Caldwell. stood to accomplish its saving results," and that those who could not relish the savor of his piety were still drawn to him as an amiable, and revered him, as a great and good man. He was an intelligent and sincere believer in that system of doctrine set forth in the Westminster standards and approved the Presbyterian form of church government and regarded them as most favorable to the promotion of true religion and the peace and prosperity of the church of Christ.

Mr. Blair married the daughter of Mr. John Durburrow, of Philadelphia. The Rev. Dr. John Durburrow Blair, of Richmond, Virginia, was his son. His daughter was married to the Rev. Dr. William Linn, one of his successors in the church of Big Spring. The Rev. Dr. John Blair Linn, pastor of the First Presbyterian church of Philadelphia, was his grandson. Dr. John Blair Smith and Dr. John Blair Hoge, were relatives of his and named after him. Dr. Robert Smith, of Pequea, the father of Dr. John Blair Smith and Dr. Samuel Stanhope Smith, was married to his niece, a daughter of Rev. Samuel Blair. Francis P. Blair, of the "Globe" at Washington and Montgomery Blair his son, were of this same family of Blair's.

His published writings are, Animadversions on "Thoughts on the Examination and Trials of Candidates," "The Synods of New York and Philadelphia Vindicated," "A Treatise on Regeneration," "A Treatise on the Nature and Use of the Means of Grace."

Rev. Samuel Black.

He came a student of theology from Ireland, and was licensed by Presbytery of New Castle, and was ordained pastor of Forks of Brandywine, November 18, 1735. He was tried on the charge of drunkenness and some less heinous offenses in 1740. The Presbytery found him guilty of the first offence and rebuked him for it, and also for slighting his work; afterwards he was suspended and then again, after more particular investigation, restored again and released from that charge.

In October, 1740, he was called to the New Congregation of Conewago, now Dauphin county, Pa., and installed the second Wednesday in the following May. Difficulties arose in this church and they asked to have Rev. John Steel sent to them. Black was called by the people of North and South—six miles west of Staunton, Virginia, March 6, 1745. He was dismissed from Conewago in April, but in the fall they sought to recall him. A division ensued, and those who were opposed to him obtained one-fifth of the time of Rev. Mr. Roan, pastor of the New Side churches of Paxton and Derry. In 1747 he with Thompson and Craig were directed to take the oversight of the vacancies in Virginia. He was at Synod in 1751 and was directed to supply Buffalo settlement and adjacent places four Sabbaths and the congregations of Rockfish and Mountain Plain, before 1752. He was dismissed from this charge by Hanover Presbytery, July 18, 1759. He died August 9, 1770, Presbytery styling him "an aged minister."

Rev. John Roan.

John Roan came from Ireland, was brought up a weaver, was a student at Log College, Neshaminy, and taught in Neshaminy, probably while pursuing his theological studies under the Tennents. Dr. Rogers, the first Moderator of the General Assembly, was one of his pupils. He was licensed by the New Side Presbytery of New Castle and was sent on a missionary tour to Virginia in 1744. His preaching was very effective in Hanover and the adjoining counties in Virginia. Many are alleged to have been awakened in different places and to have been converted under his ministry. He was bold and fearless in his denunciations of those he regarded as delinquent in duty and inveighed against the clergy of the established church, charging them not only with the neglect of their ministerial functions, but also of gross moral delinquencies. His offensive statements and scathing satire brought upon him the indignation of the parish clergy and their friends and led to prosecutions against him for damaging reflections upon the established ministers and for villifying the established religion. These charges, although the occasion of not a little feeling and trouble, were not sustained and the indictment was dismissed, the chief accuser having fled the country.

In 1745, Mr. Roan was settled over the united New Side was admitted to the bar of the state and federal courts in the same year.

JAMES ANDERSON WHITESIDE. The Whiteside family traced back through Ireland to their Scottish home appear to have been a sept of the Bell clan of Annandale, and Mr. Hanna, in his important work, entitled, "The Scotch-Irish; or the Scot in North Britain, North Ireland and North America," supplies two lists of border clans for the years 1547 and 1597, in both of which the Bell clan appears (Vol. II, p. 438).

In the year 1685 John Bell of Whiteside appears to have been at the head of this clan, and Mr. Hanna gives (Vol. II, p. 258) the following account of his death, among other "Scottish martyrs who were killed in the open fields without trial, conviction or any process of law."

"Sir Robert Grierson of Lagg, having the command of a party of Claverhouse's troop and Strachan's Dragoons, surprised John Bell of Whiteside; David Halliday, portioner of Mayfield; Andrew McCrabit, James Clement and Robert Lenox of Irlington and barbarously killed them after quarter given without time allowed to pray. When John Bell of Whiteside begged a little time to pray, Lagg answered: 'What the devil have ye been doing? Have ye not prayed enough these many years in the hills?' and so shot him presently in the Parish of Tongland in Galloway, February, 1685." (Indebted for this and some other items to Wm. H. Whitsett's "Annals of a Scotch-Irish Family.")

Fourteen years later, in 1699, was born William Whiteside, the great-grandfather of the subject of this sketch and the founder of his family in America.

→ This William Whiteside married to Elizabeth Stockton about 1735, emigrated from Ireland in the year 1738 or 1740 to Virginia via Pennsylvania, joining the Scotch-Irish settlement in what is now Albemarle County, whither Davis Stockton, the kinsman of his mother and of his wife, had preceded him. His first entry of land was for "four hundred acres on both sides the south fork of Mechum's river," and one memorial of his twenty-six years' residence here is the fact that this "South Fork" running through his plantation has ever since been known as Whiteside Creek. An old building called "The Battle Church" still stands on the bank of Whiteside Creek just above Batesville; there is a tradition in the family that the Rev. George Whitefield once preached in the tobacco barn of William Whiteside, and it is more than probable that this old building, which in 1904 was still doing service as a barn, may have acquired the name of Battle Church from being used by the neighbors as a place of worship when the journey to Mountain Plain Church was too dangerous, and used also as a block house during that long and painful struggle of the colonists with the French and Indians that raged from 1754 to 1763.

TENNESSEE AND TENNESSEANS

The Virginia regiment organized 1754 under Col. Joshua Fry of Albemarle county, with George Washington second in command, must have included the Albemarle militia of which William Whiteside was a member. (Hening Statutes at Large VII. 203.)

The religious faith of the community which included William Whiteside and his family is fairly indicated by the following call to the Rev. Samuel Black. "Ivy Creek, March 29, 1747. Whereas, it is agreed or proposed that ye inhabitants of Ivy Creek and ye Mountain Plain Congregation joyn together with ye congregation of Rockfish to call and invite ye Rev. Samuel Black, now residing in ye bounds of ye Rev. Mr. John Craig's congregation, to administer ye ordinances of ye Gospel among us: All we whose names are hereunto affixed, do promise and oblige ourselves to pay yearly and every year ye several sums annexed to our names, for ye outward support and encouragement of ye said Mr. Samuel Black during his abode and continuance among us, for ye one half of his labor in ye administration of Gospel Ordinances to us in an orderly way, according to ye rules and practice of our Orthodox Reformed Presbyterian Church: As witness our hands." Signed by Michael and Archibald Woods, Davis Stockton, William Whiteside and fifty-five others—Woods, Stocktons, Whitesides and others with such unmistakable Scotch names as Lockhart, Greer, William and Andrew Wallace, Robert Stuart, etc. The sums affixed ranging from £1 10s. 0d. to 5s. 0d.

A few years before the Revolutionary war the patriarchal head of this family with his wife, nine sons and four daughters (Davis, Robert, James, John, Margaret, William, Thomas, Samuel, Adam, Ann, Elizabeth, Sarah and Francis), removed southward to a place in Tryon, now Rutherford county, North Carolina, still known as Whiteside Settlement, and there he died. His last will and testament, dated October 24, 1777, is a model of terseness and clearness, though with an antiquated preamble which is practically a confession of faith.

The whole clan were Whigs and active patriots throughout the war for independence of the colonies, the older brothers, Davis and James, representing Rutherford county for years in the North Carolina House of Commons and Senate, as did Ann's husband, Major Richard Singleton, also serve in both houses. (Wheeler's History of N. C.)

Margaret married William Monroe, a cousin of President James Monroe. Elizabeth married her own cousin, Davis Stockton.

Robert, the grandfather of James A. Whiteside, though a farmer, was one of the volunteers who fought with six of his brothers, three brothers-in-law and many other relatives in that avalanche of intrepid mountaineers that turned the tide of invasion at the memorable battle of Kings Mountain. Mrs. Robert Whiteside was first cousin, and apparently double first cousin, to Col. Ben Cleveland, one of the heroes of Kings Mountain.

county, till 1753; Anson till 1788; Rowan, too, had a set of names Davidson, Templeton, McPherson, Givens, etc.; Next north, Fourth Creek (now Statesville) had different names—Simonton, Allison, Stevenson, Hall, Mordah, etc. Bethany is a branch of Fourth Creek. I am located ten miles from Statesville, and letters reach me either at S. or here, at Cool Springs.

"Since the above was written I notice that Dr. Wm. H. Foster¹ in Sketches North Carolina states that Dr. James Hall was from Carlisle, Pa., I see in Minutes Genl. Ass. Pres. Carlisle, a church Great Conawago, Rev. Joseph Henderson pastor till 1795, when he is W. C., and the church vacant. Do. 1800. But after 1801 Rev. David McConaughy pastor. Whether the same I am inquiring for or not I have no means of knowing."

It could hardly have happened to fall into more competent hands than those of Dr. West. He enlisted others, such as Hon. John Blair Linn, of Bellefonte; Hon. Joseph Nisley, of Middletown, and Dr. William H. Egle, of Harrisburg. The result of their diligent inquiries was embodied by A. Boyd Hamilton, Esq., of Harrisburg, in an appendix to a pamphlet, entitled Historical Sketch of Old Hanover Church, by Rev. Thomas H. Robinson, D. D., and published by the Dauphin County Historical Society, 1878. For this now rare pamphlet I am indebted to the kindness of Mr. Luther R. Kelker, State Archivist of Pennsylvania. The history of the defunct church of Conewago, as far as rescued from oblivion is this:

Dr. West had little trouble in verifying the statement of Rev. W. S. Van Cleve that it was distinct from the well-known church of Great Conewago. It was only by inserting a communication in the Journal, of Middletown, Dauphin County, in February, 1877, that the site was discovered through the answers, first of Samuel Evans, Esq., of Columbia, and Dr. J. Ringland, of Middletown. By means of the latter, especially, it was located about three quarters of a mile east from Geinburg, a small village on the Lancaster, Middletown and Harrisburg Turnpike, formerly named Franklin, on the farm of Mr. J. Alwine.

Here was found a dilapidated graveyard, measuring nineteen by twenty perches, surrounded by a crumbling wall. It contained about two acres, and within the enclosure was a wall surrounding, apparently, the burial ground of several important families. It was situated about three miles from Middletown, seven miles from Paxtang Church, four miles from Derry and about six from Donegal, all well-known Presbyterian centers. The ground was partly under cultivation for corn, and surrounded by the well-tilled farms of prosperous Pennsylvania Germans. The church building had entirely disappeared already in 1796, and there were only a few Scotch-Irish names found in the neighborhood.

The next information was found in the minutes of the old Donegal Presbytery, and was included in the following items:

June 28, 1738. The people of Conewago ask to be erected into a congregation by themselves. Pp. 237.

August 31, 1738. Terms of separation between the churches of Conewago and Derry. Pp. 244.

October 8, 1741. George Davidson from Conewago presents to Presbytery a supplication and call for Mr. Black.

April 5, 1743, May 26, 1743, and September 6, 1743. The name of John M'Quown is found in the lists of ruling elders. The name of the church represented is not mentioned.

April 4, 1745. Presbytery released Rev. Samuel Black from the charge at Conewago in order to send him to Virginia to labor.

September 4, 1745. Hugh Hall, commissioner from Conewago, appeared and asked that the relation between them and Mr. Black might be renewed.

September 25, 1745. The above request was granted.

As early as 1718 there was a considerable population above the mouth of the Conoy Creek in Chester County, separated as Lancaster County in 1729. Between 1720 and 1725 many of the settlers pushed further into the wilderness. They were largely Ulster men. In 1735 those who had fixed their homes in the fertile spot, almost overshadowed by the Round Top on the north and west toward the Susquehanna, on the east by the beautiful Cornwall Hills, and at a greater distance to the south the broken ridges of the South Mountains, found themselves strong enough to want a separate organization in their isolation. They began by erecting a building on the present graveyard plot. This they had secured before Clark and McKee secured a warrant in 1737 for a large body of land, for the lot is excepted in their title given in 1742. In 1785 the land was patented to Robert Spear, and became known as Spear's choice. This patent is entered in the Roll's Office, Patent Book No. 4, p. 99, etc. From 1735 they were furnished with supplies by the Presbyteries of New Castle and Donegal, and in 1741 they secured as pastor—the only one known to have been settled among them—the Rev. Samuel Black. In the graveyard are a large number of stones, some still standing. They are slabs of the red sandstone of the neighboring hills, without a single inscription of name, date or sculpture (probably because there was no mechanic of sufficient skill among them). Before the Revolution, and even before Braddock's defeat, these enterprising settlers were moving to North Carolina, to the Cumberland Valley and northward in Pennsylvania. The Revolution enlisted many of them. After this they had been so diminished that they had entirely ceased to worship here by 1790. And the very existence of the church was forgotten by the prosperous German successors, only to be revived by the diligent search of genealogists and antiquarians.

Of the only pastor of this flock, Rev. Samuel Black, we derive the following information from Webster's History of the Presbyterian Church (pp. 438-440):

Webster says he was a student of theology from Ireland licensed by New Castle Presbytery. In September, 1735, Donegal Presbytery gave him leave to preach as a candidate for settlement; he was called to the Forks of the Brandywine (erected into a separate congregation) October 7, and ordained November 18, 1735. On September 2, 1740, a portion of his people preferred complaints against him, and on November 4 he was put on trial on seven charges, all of which evidently grew out of the excitement occasioned by Whitefield's preaching, save that of drunkenness. The Presbytery of Donegal rebuked him for drunkenness and slighting his work, and in the following May suspended him temporarily, his accusers charging that much of the evidence had been kept back on the trial. Very soon after, after inquiry on the spot, Presbytery restored him.

It is evident that this trial was a part of the struggle between the Old and New Sides. The Presbytery of Donegal, which belonged to the Old Side, had refused to receive as correspondents on the trial, Charles Tennent and Samuel Blair, though willing to receive any others from the New Castle Presbytery.

Soon after, in October, 1741, he was called to the new congregation in Conewago, and was installed on the second Wednesday of May. He continued until April, 1745. He had before visited Virginia as a missionary, and was called to the congregations of North and South Mountain. Here he continued in the ministry until 1759, when he retired and died August, 1770, "an aged minister."

In almost all of his congregations, were divisions between the Old and New Sides. He was an adherent of the Old Side. He presided at the installation of Rev. John Elder at Paxtang in 1738. At his departure from Conewago a small part of the Conewago Church separated and secured Rev. John Roan for one fifth of his time. Roan was at Derry, a representative of the New Side. Webster confounds the Conewago Church, with the Great Conewago of Adams County. Black's reputation suffered from these New Side troubles without great cause.

Of Rev. James Hall, D. D., whose career in North Carolina led to the rescue of this defunct church, there is a sketch in Sprague's Annals, Vol. III, pp. 381, taken from Foote's Sketches of North Carolina and Missionary Journals, which starts with the mistake that he was born in Carlisle, where neither he nor his parents were ever known to have resided.

These mistakes are probably due to confounding Carlisle, with what, in 1765, became Carlisle Presbytery, to which the Conewago Church became attached. It is no part of our purpose to give the history of this distinguished minister.

* We gladly bear witness to his long-continued career in the South—almost unsurpassed by any minister of his generation. His struggle to enter the ministry, his patriotism during the Revolution, his piety, his zeal in the pulpit, in educating young men for the ministry and his widespread evangelistic labors, extending as far as Natchez, are full of interest and permanent value.

The indefatigable inquiries of those above named as interested in the history of the Conewago Church give us the following results in addition:

By a search of all the early assessments of that portion of Dauphin County they have gathered the following list as probably containing most, if not all, the heads of families of this congregation from 1745-1755—many of the names are found twenty years earlier.

Alexander Bence	Richard Grice	Robert M'Kee
Thomas Bowman	Hugh Hall	John M'Queen
John Bowman	Widow Hall	Joseph M'Queen
Abraham Bridgot	John Hall	James M'Queen
Thomas Breese	Thomas Hall	Edward Queen
← Hugh Black	Jebel Hall	Cornelius Queen
Peter Corby	James Hall	James Rea
James Crouch	John Kerr	John Rea (or Wray)
James Clarke	Thomas Kar	William Rea

Thomas Clark	James Murdoch	William White
John Combe	John Murdoch	Archibald Walker
George Davidson	Neil McAllister	James Walker
John Doakes	John McAllister	William Work
Arch'd Elliott	John McNair

From this they infer that in the most flourishing period the population in the bounds of the congregation was about two hundred.

The following notes of individuals by A. Boyd Hamilton

Rev. Ribt
Davies

swept away the objections of infidelity with a torrent of scornful argument; now, he portrayed the scenes of sacred story with such vividness and delicacy of touch, that everything seemed, by a startling illusion, to be taking place that very moment; now, he dwelt on the passion of our Lord with such melting pathos, and faltering voice, that his hearers and himself were carried away by an irrepressible gush of feeling; and groans, sobs and shrieks burst from the whole congregation.

Governor Barbour was his enthusiastic admirer, and declared that he surpassed all orators whom he had ever known. Patrick Henry himself pronounced Davies and Waddel the greatest orators of the age. But the most memorable tribute to his genius was that paid by Wirt, in the description of "THE BLIND PREACHER," in his British Spy,* which is so familiar to every one, as to require but a bare allusion in this place. In regard to this admirable portraiture, Mr. Wirt was afterwards known to say, that so far from heightening its colors, he had rather fallen below the truth. He hesitated not to express his persuasion that, in a different species of oratory, Waddel was fully equal to Patrick Henry. In him were blended "the poet's hand and prophet's fire."

The next congregation, in time, of which we have any intimation is the neighboring one of ROCKFISH, at the gap and river of the same name. About 1744, the Rev. SAMUEL BLACK was settled here. He had been ordained by the Presbytery of Donegal eight years before, and had been employed in preaching in Pennsylvania. Having sustained the pastoral relation at Rockfish for the long period of twenty-seven years, he died in 1771.†

In 1750, a supplication appears on the Minutes of the Synod of Philadelphia, from BROWN MEETING-HOUSE, in Augusta, under the North Mountain; and a committee was appointed to visit

* Letters of a British Spy, Lett. VII. Mr. Wirt allowed himself some license in grouping together circumstantialities of time, place and manner, which he had noticed on various occasions, being well acquainted with Dr. W. and his family. For example, he represented him as preaching in a white linen cap. This was, indeed, a part of his costume at home, but when he went abroad he always wore a full-bottomed white wig. Neither was the name of Dr. Waddel so unknown in Virginia, as the "Spy" intimated. Among a particular class, indeed—the extreme High Church party—who make it a point to know nothing out of their own contracted circle, such ignorance is very conceivable. Memoir, No. III.

† Min. Syn. Phil. pp. 129, 411. Hodge, vol. ii. p. 258. Rockfish was not, indeed, in the Valley, properly speaking, but was on its edge, and settled by the overflow of its population.

X The call of Rev. Samuel Black was in 1741. He probably had preached to this congregation previously, as he was in the neighborhood, preached at Carlisle, in 1736-37, and presided at the installation of Rev. John Elder at Derry and Paxtang churches in 1738. Upon inquiry it was found that Mr. Black never preached at "Great Conewago."

The question of locality was set at rest, by a communication signed "J. R." in a subsequent issue of the "Journal," in which he truly fixed the site of the church, or its grave-yard, about three-fourths of a mile in an eastern direction from GEINBURG—not "Gainesburg," as on the maps—formerly the village of Franklin. The exact location is upon the farm of Mr. J. Alwine, in Londonderry township.

"J. R." (Dr. Ringland, of Middletown,) shows conclusively the ownership of the spot belonging to this extinct organization. He says:

"The piece of ground belonging to the church was a portion of a larger tract, which was taken on a warrant bearing date the first day of August, 1743, granted to Samuel Clark by the Land Office. The land was afterwards patented to Robert Spear, by patent deed, November 8, 1785, and was called "Spear's Choice," and called for 202½ acres and the usual allowance. The patent was enrolled in Rolls Office, in Patent Book No. 4, page 99, &c. The following memorandum, accompanying a draft, will explain itself:

'Re-surveyed for Robert Spear, August 18, 1785, the above tract of land, containing two hundred and two acres and five-eighths and allowances, situate in Derry township, Dauphin county, late Lancaster, by warrant granted to James Clark, 28th of July, 1743.

'Signed BARTRAM GALBRAITH.

'N. B. The above square piece of nineteen by twenty perches is a Presbyterian meeting house and burying-grounds.

'To JOHN LUKENS, S. G.

'Returned into the Land Office the third November, 1785, for John Lukens, Esq., S. G.

EDWARD LYNCH.'

"The piece of ground designated as the burying-ground contained somewhat more than two acres. A number of stones, placed to mark the graves of those buried there, are still standing, but many have been carried away and put to other uses. The stones are all undressed red sand stone, without date or any other inscription. The foundation walls of the building still remain, though in a somewhat dilapidated condition. There is nothing on our county records to show when, by whom, or to whom the title for this piece was made.

"The church must have been a very small affair, as the foundation is only about twelve feet by sixteen. A portion of the ground was during the last summer planted in corn. 'Black-haw' and other trees are growing within the area of the church wall. Tradition has it, that the carpenter who built the church fell from the roof and was killed, and was the first person buried on the ground."

A personal examination of the site of the grave-yard was made in May, 1877, in company of Hon. John Blair Linn, of Bellefonte, Hon. Joseph H. Nisley, of Middletown, and Dr. William H. Egle, of Harrisburg. The enclosure which Dr. R. supposes to have been a church foundation is a dilapidated wall, enclosing the burial-place of some important families. There is no inscriptive stone to tell what it really was. It is about ten by twelve feet. Clearly there is no mark of a church at this spot. What is very remarkable, there is not a tomb-stone, or part of one, with any inscription in the mass of fragments of such memorials which surround the family enclosure spoken of. The stones are of the red sand stone of the neighboring hills—many of them buried in the earth as taken from the quarry, free from all evidence of manual adornment—weather-beaten as well as rough.

The small space set off for the congregation was part of the lands of Clark & M'Kee. This reservation was as early as 1737, before either of these members of the church had any legal claim to the land, but there was no adverse title, and the gift was a good one.

A warrant was granted 1742—a survey returned, excluding these two acres, in 1743. In 1785 it was again surveyed, and described as follows:

North 34" west 19 perches.
South 56" west 20 perches.
South 34" east 19 perches.
North 56" east 20 perches.

A great part of this plot was prepared for corn when our company examined it.

After searching all the early assessments of that portion of Dauphin county, from 1725 to 1790, we are inclined to think the following list comprises most, if not all, the heads of families of this congregation from 1745-55. All the names are on the tax list from 1750 to 1766; many for twenty years previously. After the Revolution they disappear year by year, and names of other nationalities take their places:

The foregoing list of names would show a population of about two hundred in 1740.

That part of Dauphin county we are writing of was originally the township of Derry, in Lancaster county, and "set off" at the first court in 1729. In 1768 a part of Derry was "set off" and called Londonderry, "commencing by a road leading from Conewago creek by the Widow Hall's, &c. In 1826 rectification of lines was ordered, when finally, in 1850, Conewago township was "set off" from the east end of Londonderry, leaving the site we have been endeavoring to describe, in Londonderry, a short mile north-east of Geinburg, three miles from Middletown, seven miles from Paxtang church, four miles from Derry Spring, and about six miles from Donegal, all noted Presbyterian settlements.

Another, a family burial-place, is about half a mile west of the one belonging to the Conewago congregation. The inscriptions on the stones scattered about are in German, and all bear the name of "Gein." This spot, as well as its neighbor, is in a disgraceful state of neglect.

The surroundings of the Conewago place of burial are charming and romantic. Almost under the shadow of the frowning "Round Top," on the north and west—the Cornwall Hills on the east—and in the more distant south the South mountain shows its broken front. The farms are kept in very handsome condition, a generous soil is carefully cultivated, the improvements and enclosures substantial, and at present inhabited almost entirely by persons of German descent. There are not half a dozen families of Scotch-Irish descent in the neighborhood.

Many admirers of the sturdy race who first formed congregations and conquered the virgin soil of this part of Pennsylvania think that the Presbytery of Carlisle should take order on the subject of vacant burial-grounds within its bounds. There are four such plots in Dauphin county, and soon a fifth will be added, if historic "Der-ry" is allowed to be pulled to pieces to satisfy the curiosity or vandalism of those who use its venerated soil for pic-nics and frolics not quite so reputable.

NOTES.

A perusal of these brief notes will awaken interest in many quarters touching early family records or tradition, and may be the means of establishing the correctness of the narrative, and perhaps of recovering papers whose contents will further elucidate the early history of the settlements along the Susquehanna "above Conewago"—a field of inquiry almost untrodden.

Mr. Black, the only pastor we have been enabled to name, was from Ulster; was licensed by the Newcastle Presbytery in 1735, when he was chosen pastor of the "Forks of Brandywine." In 1738 he presided at the installation of Rev. John Elder, at Paxtang. In October, 1741, he came to "Conewago." In 1743 he appears to have gone "missionary to South Mountain," in Virginia. He died there in 1770 "an aged minister."

hood of what is usually called Brandywine Manor, then called, and ever since officially known as the "Forks of Brandywine." Those people formed a part of the congregation of Upper Octorara, and came to this place to worship, some of them coming a distance of over ten miles.

At a meeting of the Presbytery of Donegal, held at Octorara Church June 5th, 1734, they make this record :

"The people on the Forks of Brandywine, being a part of Mr. Boyd's congregation, put in a supplication to the Presbytery for liberty of erecting a meeting house for Mr. Boyd to preach in, when sometimes he comes to them, which was granted."

Again, when the Presbytery of Donegal met, on the 4th day of April, 1735, they say :

"A supplication from the people on the Forks of Brandywine was presented and read ; wherein they suppose themselves to be a distinct erected congregation of people by Presbyterian authority, and desiring supplies accordingly." "And also, another from the elders of the congregation of Octorara, desiring the subscription of those persons belonging to said people, may be continued to Mr. Boyd's support."

The Presbytery, having these contending applications, were no little perplexed. But they eventually came to the conclusion, "that the people on the Forks of Brandywine committed an error in supposing that they were already recognized as an independent congregation ; expressing at the same time their conviction that such a measure would soon be expedient, if not indispensable, as leave had already been given them to build a house for their more convenient enjoying the visits of Mr. Boyd."

At the next meeting of Presbytery, a supplication from the people of the Forks of Brandywine was presented and read, the substance of which was, that they might be erected into a distinct congregation, and that Presbytery would concur with them in endeavoring to obtain a visit from some of those young gentlemen lately from Ireland, and who have joined the Presbytery of New Castle, in order to their consulting about giving such minister a call."

The Presbytery, after some hesitation, granted their request; and, on the 18th of September, 1735, erected them into a separate congregation, and they accordingly, at that date, ceased to be an integral part of Octorara. They called as their pastor the Rev. Samuel Black, who was ordained and installed November 10th, 1736. Mr. Black continued in that connection for a few years, when he was either suspended or deposed from the gospel ministry.

About this period, differences arose in the Presbyterian Church, which culminated in what was called "the great schism," by which the church was rent in twain, and remained thus divided from 1741 to 1758, a period of seventeen years. This division was not the result of any difference between the parties on doctrinal sentiments—for both agreed in the cordial adoption of the confession of faith and catechisms—but of opinion as to certain measures connected with the great revival of 1740, which revival extended from Massachusetts to Georgia, and in which Whitefield, the Tennants, Samuel Blair and others were prominent actors.

On the subject of this great revival, the ministers of the Synod of Philadelphia were divided.

The friends of Whitefield and the revival regarded all who opposed them as setting themselves in opposition to the glorious work of grace, and as enemies of God, and uncharitably condemned them as unconverted men and hypocrites. On the other hand, the opposers of the revival, as they were called, disclaimed all opposition to it, but censured the kind of preaching adopted by those who claimed to be its friends, and the extravagant measures employed for promoting it. They were also offended at what they deemed the harsh and uncharitable spirit with which they were denounced and, as they said, misrepresented by the preachers on the other side.

Another cause for alienation arose from measures adopted by the Synod to prevent the admission of uneducated men into the ministry, and in regard to itinerant preaching. These were denounced by the Revivalists, who refused to be governed by them, and persisted in intruding themselves into settled congregations, and causing dissensions between the pastors and their people.

Both parties were undoubtedly to some extent in the wrong,—the old side, in setting themselves in opposition to the revival of religion, and the new side, in doing and saying many unadvised things under the influence of a fervid zeal.

The result of this contention was of course disastrous, and as already observed, ended in the dismemberment of the Church, and its division into two parties, known respectively as the "old side" and the "new side." Those who adhered to the new side, withdrew from the Synod of Philadelphia, and formed a new synod called the Synod of New York. The new side members of the Presbyteries of New Castle and Donegal also withdrew from their respective Presbyteries, and formed a new one, called "The Second Presbytery of New Castle."

This unfortunate controversy ran a plough share, as it were, through this congregation. Mr. Boyd (the pastor), and a portion of the congregation adhered to the old side. The new side members—who composed a large majority—withdrew and organized "the Second Congregation of Upper Octorara," leaving the pastor, and the minority who adhered to him, in undisputed possession of the church property. This occurred in 1741. This second congregation, after their secession, worshiped for a time in a board tent which they erected on these church grounds, a short distance north of the meeting-house, but they soon took measures for the erection of a new church, and for this purpose took out a warrant from the Proprietaries on the 10th of February, 1743, in the name of Hugh Cowan, John Robb and John Henderson, for twenty-five acres of vacant land lying on the hill north of the late residence of Cyrus Cooper, and in the same year erected thereon, near its south-east corner, a frame meeting-house, about thirty-five by

Synod. "The Synod therefore declare he is not a member of this body, and forbid all their Presbyteries and congregations to employ him."

Rev. SAMUEL BLACK, the eleventh in order, a probationer from Ireland, was received by New Castle Presbytery. His ordination took place at the Forks of Brandywine, in 1737. He soon after removed to Virginia, and took his residence among the Scotch-Irish population that had seated themselves on Rockfish river, at the eastern base of the Blue Ridge, in Nelson County, as the State is now divided, and not far from Rockfish Gap. In every respect, his situation was well chosen; the people were enterprising, the soil good, the climate favorable, the position for trade showing its superiority every year as improvements advance, and the community a church-going people by habit. In the division of the Synod, he went with the Synod of Philadelphia, and was a member of the Presbytery of Donegal. On the reconstruction of Presbyteries, he was assigned to Hanover; but never met with them in session. An amiable man, of a retiring disposition, as infirmities came upon him he secluded himself more and more from public labors of the ministry. Some difficulties arose, and some charges were brought against him by a portion of the congregations, as reasons why Presbytery should grant them another minister. The Presbytery proceeded with great caution and tenderness, and the difficulties were in part adjusted. Mr. Black retired from public services altogether, owing to these difficulties and his own sensitive feelings, sooner than he would have done in other circumstances. His family, as kind and retired as himself, never urged him to a more prominent stand, or more vigorous efforts in his old age. He was orthodox in doctrine, and correct in his views of religious action and Christian principles, as has been evidenced by the fact that a goodly number of pious people were found on Rockfish; and his

JOHN PAUL

Was received by the standing committee of Donegal Presbytery as a licentiate from Ireland, December 10, 1735, and was soon after called to Nottingham. Thomson "served his edict," and he was installed the second Wednesday of October, 1736.

He preached at the ordination of David Alexander, at Pequea, in 1738, and was one of the first supplies sent to Deer Creek, Maryland. He died in 1739; and in June the commission remitted his bond for twelve pounds, and, the next year, gave his widow one pound out of the fund.

His tomb remains in the old graveyard near the Rising Sun; the inscription, nearly obliterated, tells that he died at the age of thirty-three.

PATRICK GLASCOW,

AFTER the ordinary trials, and after adopting the Westminster Confession, was licensed by Lewes Presbytery. Having a call to Monokin, he was, after the usual steps, and a repeated declaration of his adopting the Westminster Confession, ordained and installed in 1736.

He is not mentioned after 1741 on our records: he was ordained after the Episcopal mode, and became the rector of All-Hallows, in Worcester county, Maryland. He died there, March 23, 1753.

SAMUEL BLACK,

A STUDENT of theology, from Ireland, was licensed by Newcastle Presbytery. The Forks of Brandywine, in Chester county, were formed into a separate congregation. In September, 1735, Donegal Presbytery gave them leave to invite Black to preach as a candidate for settlement. He was called, October 7, and was ordained, November 18, 1735. Boyd preached from 2 Timothy ii. 15. A portion of his people preferred complaints against him, September 2, 1740, and requested the presbytery to call, as correspondents, Charles Tennent and Samuel Blair, when they took up the case. This was just at the time of the extraordinary effects produced by the preaching of Whitefield. The presbytery, in writing to Newcastle Presbytery for correspondents, requested the moderator that any of the members might be sent to their aid but Blair and Tennent, alleging that the congregation, in asking for them, evinced a desire to choose their own judges.

Black was put on trial November 4, to answer the charges—

1. Of saying, "He sought not theirs, but them," while he did not seek their salvation.
2. Of representing himself as weary through much labour in the ministry, while he did not toil in the vineyard.
3. Of drunkenness.
4. Of lying, in speaking of the Revival at different times in different ways.

5. Of sedition, in sowing dissensions among the people.

6. Of making no application of the truth to the states or cases of his hearers.

7. For opposing the work of God then in progress in neighbouring congregations.

The presbytery rebuked him for the drunkenness, and for slighting his work: he acknowledged his fault, and they laid no censure on him at the time. In May, they suspended him for a season, the people complaining that much evidence had been industriously kept back at the trial. The presbytery very soon after made inquiry on the spot, and restored him: the majority of his people following the "Brunswick Brethren," they released him from the pastoral relation.

The new congregation of Conewago, in Mount Joy, (in Adams county,) Pennsylvania, called him in October, 1741, and he was installed the second Wednesday in May. He began to visit Virginia as a missionary, and was sent to Potomac in 1743. Difficulties arose in his flock, and they asked to have Steel sent to them.

North and South Mountain, in Virginia, (the former six miles west of Staunton,) asked for him, March 6, 1745. He was dismissed from Conewago in April; but in the fall they sought to regain him. A division took place: those who left him obtained one-fifth of the time of Roan, pastor of the New-Side churches of Paxton and Derry.

In 1747, he, with Thomson and Craig, was directed to take the oversight of the vacancies in Virginia. He was at the synod in 1751, and was directed to supply Buffalo settlement, and the adjacent places, four Sabbaths; he also visited Hies, Eno, and Haw River, in North Carolina.

He took charge of the congregations of Rockfish and Mountain Plain before 1752. In 1759, he attended synod, and vainly sought to have a presbytery formed west of the Blue Ridge.

Hanover Presbytery decided that the people in Woods's Gap, in the mountains of Albemarle, were not in his bounds, and erected them into the congregation of Albemarle. They dismissed him from his charge, July 18, 1759.

He died August 9, 1770. The presbytery style him "an aged minister."

FRANCIS ALISON,

BORN in Ireland, in 1705, studied at the University of Glasgow, and came as a probationer to this country in 1734 or '35.

On the recommendation of Franklin,* he was employed by John Dickinson, of Delaware, the author of the "Farmer's Letters," as the tutor of his son. Leave to take a few other pupils was granted; and he is said to have had an academy at Thunder Hill, Maryland.†

The commission, in 1736, wrote to him to officiate as a supply for the new erection in Philadelphia. He was ordained pastor of New London by Newcastle Presbytery before May, 1737.

He was a correspondent of President Stiles, who has preserved many of his letters. He says, he commenced his school in 1743; and Professor Hutcheson, of Glasgow, having, in 1746, advised the setting on foot of a seminary by the synod, he also opened a correspondence with him. The synod, failing in their attempt to endow a college, did what was in their power, and took the New London school under their patronage. They gave Alison twenty pounds, (Pennsylvania currency), with the liberty of choosing an assistant at a salary of fifteen pounds. In 1748, the salaries were raised; one to forty pounds, and the other to twenty pounds.

Alison complained to Donegal Presbytery, that Alexander Craighead had intruded into his congregation, "to rend and divide it against his mind, the mind of the session, and the declared opinion of the congregation in general."

* Joshua Edwards, Esq.

† Watson's Annals of Philadelphia.

He signed the Protest; but he agreed with the New York brethren in demanding that the whole proceeding should be reviewed in 1742; and he entered his dissent from the vote refusing this request. Though foremost on the Old Side, it does not appear that any of his congregation deserted him. In 1744,* they erected the largest church in that region. The building was sixty-three feet long by thirty-eight wide, with long, low, brick walls, an antique, Swedish, or hipped roof. The side of the edifice was turned to the road; and it had arched doors and windows, with imported leaden sashes. The pulpit was on the side; and the pews were of forms, patterns, and colours as diverse as the tastes and the incomes of their respective owners.

In 1749, he was invited to Philadelphia, a grammar-school having been opened in that city by subscription. He asked leave of the synod to sit as a member of Philadelphia Presbytery: they declined, and promised him thirty pounds for educating their beneficiaries, with liberty to charge at his pleasure for the tuition of others. The grammar-school in Philadelphia was incorporated in 1750, endowed in 1753, and erected into a college in 1755. Alison left New London before May, 1752, without consulting presbytery or synod; but this was excused, owing to the pressing circumstances of his position. He took charge of the grammar-school, and became colleague to Cross. Among his elders who sat with him in synod were the Hon. Charles Thomson and Mr. William Humphreys.

He was made vice-provost of the college in 1755; and Nassau Hall gave him the degree of A.M. in 1756, and the University of Glasgow created him doctor of divinity in 1756. He was the first of our ministers who received that honour; and the Synod of Philadelphia returned their thanks, for the favour, to the University.†

On the union of the synods, May 24, 1758, he preached from Eph. iv. 4-7. The sermon was published, with the title, "Peace and Union recommended," and a note, suggesting that, as in the perusal it might to many seem long, they may conveniently divide it by pausing at the twenty-eighth page.

He went, with Colonel Burd, as chaplain to the expedition to Fort Cumberland, and remained from August to November.

Together with Gilbert Tennent and the Presbyterians generally, who were headed by Chief-Justice Allen, (father-in-law of Governor John Penn,) he opposed the throwing off of the Protestant and largely Presbyterian. The newspapers furnish curious items of the extent of it. In September, 1736, one thousand families sailed from Belfast on account of the difficulty of renewing their leases. On the ninth of that month, one hundred Presbyterians from Ireland arrived at Philadelphia, as many more soon after at Newcastle, and twenty ships were daily expected from Ireland. At this time, three hundred and eighty-eight persons from Holland landed on our shores. The loss to Ireland is deplored, the linen-weavers and small farmers composing a great portion of the emigrants. Wodrow* says, the departure of the people in shoals excited the fears of the government, lest Ireland should be wholly abandoned to the Papists. He hoped it would lead to extension of privileges to the Presbyterians.

The effect was soon visible. New York had seen for twenty years a small Presbyterian flock assembling in a house without galleries, six out of its eight windows being closed with boards, poverty preventing their being glazed, and the fraction of light being enough for the handful of people. But now the pews on the ground-floor were filled, three galleries were constructed, and the sun blazed unobstructed through the whole line of windows. The church in Philadelphia had increased so much that, in 1733, an assistant minister was needed. Newcastle Presbytery was large enough in 1734 to set off Donegal Presbytery on the west, and, having surrendered Lancaster county, was able soon after, in 1738, to realize the long-cherished project of forming the Presbytery of Lewes out of the churches on the peninsula. Philadelphia Presbytery was divided in 1733, and East Jersey Presbytery was formed. Long Island Presbytery, declining from the attachment of the ministers in "the East Riding" to Connecticut,—an attachment growing out of its being the land of their birth, and strengthened by matrimonial ties and the convenience of crossing the sound to attend its associations,—was united, in 1738, to East Jersey Presbytery, under the style of the Presbytery of New York. Portions of New York and Philadelphia Presbyteries were constituted the Presbytery of New Brunswick in the same year.

CHAPTER IV.

The methods in use in Ireland and Scotland were all introduced on the erection of congregations. They were so generally accustomed to modes closely similar, that no solicitation was needed to secure the acquiescence of the people in them. The emigration brought over many schoolmasters, and few Presbyterian settlements were without schools during most of the year. It was rare to find one, (except among the servants, and even among them it was very rare,) who could not read and who did not possess a Bible. The Shorter Catechism was learned at home and recited at school; and the Psalms in metre were largely treasured in the memory; they were the lullaby of the babe, and the song at the loom and at the wheel. They formed universally a part of family worship. That precious privilege was regarded as an indispensable duty. Inquiry was made concerning the observance of it, on the occasion of asking baptism for their children. Family instruction was not neglected; the Catechism was "gone through" on Sabbaths by parents, children, and servants; sermons were repeated, and the points of doctrine duly compared with the Scripture.

The congregations were divided into portions called "quarters," each of which was committed to the charge of an elder, and the people in each quarter were gathered at suitable and oft-recurring seasons at some convenient point,—it might be a kitchen or a barn, to accommodate large numbers,—and old and young were solemnly, carefully, and at length, catechized. The seed sown in the sanctuary was harrowed in by the catechizing. The minister knew the state of the flock and how they profited by the word preached.

The presbyteries* visited the congregations, taking first the

in which it was administered rendered it necessary that the highest truths, the loftiest themes, should be preached, and with unction. Every circumstance conspired to invest even the most lifeless preacher with such a feeling of the greatness of the occasion, as made him surmount at least for the time the narrow limits of his talents, and speak in the demonstration of the Spirit and with power. The closing service of thanksgiving prepared the way to return home, pondering in their hearts the great things which had been told them. Those were golden days, when souls were enlightened with such a knowledge of Christ, as if the light of the sun had been sevenfold, as if the light of seven days had poured at once on the worshippers, with healing in every beam.

Many of the congregations furnished their ministers with a house and farm, or else promised him in the call a sum of money to buy a plantation. The salaries were mostly paid in kind, wheat, Indian corn, hemp, and linen yarn being frequently specified in the call; and, from a riddle to a squire's "publishment of a marriage" or an "estrays," every imaginable article is entered on their surviving "count-books" as being received in payment of stipend.

Classical schools were established by many ministers. Andrews probably had one in Philadelphia; Dickinson had at Elizabethtown, Thomas Evans at Pencader, and William Tennent at Neshaminy. The school at New London went into operation soon after Alison's settlement. Two-thirds nearly of the ministers, until 1738, were graduates of Glasgow University. The New England men were mostly from Yale. The few Welshmen were scholars of a high standard, their education having been thorough and on a liberal scale.

Of the style of preaching little judgment can be formed. Franklin evidently had no favour to them; for he says, he would rather hear Hemphill preach other people's sermons fluently, than hear the old synod preach their own dull compositions. Makemie printed but one sermon, long, full, clear, and valuable: his other productions are plain and vigorous in style.

It is remarkable that Andrews, during a ministry of forty-five years in Philadelphia, is not supposed to have published a line; while Morgan put forth almost as many sermons as any New England divine of his day. Dickinson appears to have passed twelve years of his ministry without using the press; but, after that, he was before the public to the latest year of his life, discussing the Evidences of Christianity, the Doctrines of Grace, the Claims of the Prelatists, the lifeless scheme of Baptismal Regeneration, and the serious errors of judgment among the unwise friends of the Revival. Robert Cross published one sermon, Pierson three, and Pemberton several; while Gilbert Tennent's writings issued from the press like bees from a hive; no complete list of his multitude of publications will probably ever be made.

None are known to have left any work in manuscript, except Henry, of Rehoboth. Scarcely a fragment of their correspondence exists.

They were mostly worthy men, few of them of a rare order of talent, but learned and competent for an honourable discharge of their office. Of their success in winning souls, we may hope there is a bright record on high; but on earth their memorial has perished with them.

Morgan* tells us that at one or two periods of his ministry, he saw the word take effect on many souls. In 1719 and '20,† there was in Monmouth county an amazing change; new congregations were formed, and "the marks of a work of grace were astonishingly plentiful among those who had lived longer under means of grace." Hopewell and Maidenhead received a large increase, the first-fruits of the youthful labours of Moses Dickinson. There is a tradition of a revival at Jamaica under Robert Cross. The Dutch Reformed church in New Jersey possessed, in the Rev. Theodore James Frelinghuysen, a most eminently wise, laborious, and successful servant of God. His faithful counsel roused Gilbert Tennent to consider narrowly his own performances, and to gird himself for a more vigorous invasion of Satan's kingdom. A considerable degree of success attended Tennent's preaching on Staten Island and at New Brunswick. His brother John came like "a dew from the Lord" on the plains of Monmouth, and changed Freehold, from a feeble, distracted congregation of careless hearers, into

Mr. Weiss, mentioned by Andrews in connection with Miller, was the minister of the German Reformed Church in Gosenhoppen, Pa.

Mr. Johannes Henricus Goetschius, or Goetschy, applied, through Andrews, to the synod, in May, 1737,¹ signifying the desire of many of the German nation that he might be ordained on the synod's order. He was a native of Switzerland, and had been educated at the University of Zurich. His testimonials from Germany were ample, and satisfied the synod as to his learning and good Christian conversation. They recommended him to Philadelphia Presbytery, to act upon further trials of him as to them should seem fit. The presbytery met two days after, and agreed that he might preach, but declined to ordain him for a season, because, though learned in the languages, he was deficient* in divinity and college learning. Where he was ordained, or by whom, is unknown to us; he served the Reformed Dutch Church in Bucks county, and was settled, in 1741, the first pastor of Jamaica, Newtown, Success, and Wolver's Hollow, on Long Island. In 1751, he removed to Hackensack, New Jersey.

In 1729, the synod bore testimony against, and declared their great dissatisfaction at, the religious lawsuits that are maintained among professors of religion, so contrary to that peace and love the gospel requires, and the express direction of the Holy Ghost, (1 Cor. vi. 1-8), and consequently very much to the scandal of our holy profession. They recommended to each minister to bring his congregation into a joint agreement to avoid all unnecessary lawsuits for the future, and to refer difficulties which cannot easily be accommodated between themselves, to prudent, religious, and indifferent friends, (if it may be, of our own profession,) mutually chosen or otherwise, as such society shall think best, to decide and determine such differences.

The particular occasion calling for this testimony was, probably, the necessity of intrusting church and parsonage lands to individuals, to be held in their own name. It was removed in Pennsylvania, by the law of 1731, allowing religious societies to hold lands,* and securing to them the property already in their possession.

In 1734, the synod forbade its members in "Pennsylvania and the lower counties from this time forward to marry any by license from the governor, till the form of them be altered and brought to a nearer conformity to those of the neighbouring governments of New York and New Jersey; and particularly till they are altered in such a manner as hath nothing peculiar to the ministers of the Church of England, nor oblige us to any of the forms and ceremonies peculiar to that church." The Presbyteries of Newcastle and Donegal were ordered conjunctly to make such regulations for their members as was fit. Orr, of Nottingham, was soon tasked by his brethren for having married the Rev. Benjamin Campbell with a license; and, thirty years after, Ezekiah James Balch was gravely questioned by Donegal Presbytery concerning his having been married by an Episcopal minister. He excused himself that, Mr. Bay not being at home, he had to submit to the Common Prayer-Book formula or go unwed. About that time, Newcastle Presbytery called up Dr. Robert Davidson, then a licentiate, for having joined himself in marriage to an unbaptized person.

In 1738, the "marriage act" was so modified that ministers had liberty to marry by license in certain exempt cases; but they were enjoined to marry none clandestinely, or without consent of parents or guardians; and if either of the parties belonged to any congregation of ours, not to marry unless they produced certificates from their minister of there being no hinderance; and if from vacant congregations, then to bring like certificates from substantial persons.

In 1739, the Presbyterians† of Lancaster county, with their respective ministers, represented to the General Assembly of Pennsylvania, that they had been educated according to the doctrine, worship, and government of the Church of Scotland, and were excluded from all offices, and from giving evidence, by a ceremony (kissing the book) which, in their judgminister, his conversation, diligence, and methods in discharging his calling; and that at least yearly, they examine into his manner of preaching, whether he insist on the great articles of Christianity, and recommend the crucified Saviour as the only foundation of hope; the absolute necessity of the omnipotent influence of the divine grace to enable them to accept of this Saviour; whether he do, in the most solemn and affecting manner he can, endeavour to convince his hearers of their lost and miserable state while unconverted, and put them upon the diligent use of those means necessary to obtain the sanctifying influences of the Spirit. Whether he do (and how) discharge his duty to the young people and children in catechizing and familiar instruction; and whether and in what manner he visits his flock and instructs from house to house.*

This recommendation was to be copied into each presbytery-book, and to be read at the opening of each meeting; the ministers who are found defective to be censured, and, refusing to submit, to be reported to the synod.

The records of Philadelphia Presbytery show that the rule was complied with in regard to candidates for the ministry. East Jersey Presbytery complained, the next year, that they are incapable to comply with the excellent design of the act, by reason that several of the members, and John Cross in particular, neglect to attend their stated meetings. The synod, on hearing this, admonished Cross. Gilbert Tennent was not present. The synod, esteeming the act to be of the greatest moment and importance, exhorted the presbyteries to an exact compliance with all parts of it; and they also exhorted all to take due care that they who receive baptism, for themselves or their children, are of a regular life and have suitable acquaintance with the principles of the Christian religion; that that seal be not set to a blank, and that those who are manifestly unfit be not admitted to a visible church relation.

East Jersey Presbytery was nearly equally divided in sentiment; and, at the end of three years, they were divided by setting off Cross, Wales, the two brothers Tennents, and Blair, into a separate body, with the name of New Brunswick Presbytery. However kindly intended, this was the immediate and main cause of rending the church.

The meeting in 1735 was large; the case of Hemphill having drawn thirty ministers and sixteen elders. The instance of Hemphill, and "some other considerations to the like purpose," secured the adoption of five new rules:—

1. That the moderator of each presbytery and two ministers be a committee to examine the credentials of every European minister or probationer, and that he do not preach in any vacant congregation till he subscribe the Westminster Confession, and satisfy them of his firm attachment to it.
2. That no call be presented to such person till he has preached half a year in our bounds.
3. That all calls shall be moderated by a minister appointed by the presbytery under whose care the congregation is.
4. That no student shall be taken on trials till he give most of the members of the presbytery opportunity, at their houses, "to take a view of his parts and behaviour."
5. That no minister ordained in Ireland, sine titulo, shall be allowed to exercise his ministry among us, till he submit to such trials as the presbytery in which he resides may appoint.

As early as 1735, the synod blamed John Cross for removing, without the concurrence of his presbytery, from one congregation to another. It is not known whether any similar case had occurred; but, in 1737, fears were expressed that irregular steps might be taken to effect the transporting of ministers from one presbytery to another. Five more rules were therefore adopted in relation to candidates for settlement:—

1. No probationer is to preach to a vacant congregation without the consent of his own presbytery.
2. Nor to a vacancy in another presbytery without the appointment of the presbytery under whose care it is.
3. That no presbytery make such appointment for him unless he has credentials or recommendations from his own presbytery.
4. That vacancies encourage none to preach among them without the concurrence of presbytery.
5. That no minister invite probationers or ministers to supply vacancies without the advice and concurrence of his brethren.

As might have been expected, these rules were broken, some ministers and probationers having gone out of their bounds and preached, as candidates, without allowance asked or given. Who these persons were is unknown. The rule was adopted that if a minister, leaving his own presbytery to preach to a vacancy, is informed, by a minister of the presbytery into the bounds of which he has come, that he thinks his preaching will tend to divide or disturb the congregation, he shall not preach till the presbytery or synod allow him. An explanation was added, that, if he has already obtained leave of the presbytery, then he need not regard the advice.

The same year, the Presbytery of Lewes introduced an overture, which, though most kindly meant, and in itself most wise, became an occasion of dissension, wrath, and confusion. Poverty preventing our students from going to Europe or New England for a university education, they proposed that the synod should appoint a committee, before which all students, with or without diplomas, should appear and be examined, and, if approved, receive a synodical testimonial; and that this, when they offered themselves to their presbytery, should be accepted as equal to a degree in the arts. Nothing but attendance was to be required; no fee or gratuity of any kind. The synod, by a great majority, adopted the plan, and for that year appointed two committees, — the one north of Philadelphia, consisting of Andrews, Robert Cross, G. Tennent, Pemberton, Dickinson, Cowell, and Pierson; the other, of Thomson, Gillespie, T. Evans, Hook, Anderson, Martin, and Alison. There were twenty-eight ministers present and sixteen elders. It is to be observed that, in the committees, the three Presbyteries of New-castle, New York, and Philadelphia were represented by three members, Lewes and Donegal by two, and New Brunswick by one. Why some other member of the last body was not substituted for Cowell, one of the youngest members of Philadelphia Presbytery, is only to be guessed. Probably the majority chose to testify their regard for him, seeing he had been so rudely assailed and so bitterly inveighed against by Gilbert Tennent, by letter and before synod.

The proposal, to require candidates to exhibit a diploma before they were taken on trial, was simply conforming to the Westminster Directory. It was the uniform practice of the Synod of Ulster and the Scottish Kirk. "The synod* came to a public agreement to take all private schools, in which young men are educated for the ministry, so far under their care, as to appoint a committee to examine all such as had not obtained degrees in the European or New England colleges, and to give them a certificate which was to serve our presbyteries instead of a diploma." No objection appears to have been made at the time to this method; no dissent was entered; but, in 1739, the New Brunswick Presbytery, having disregarded it, brought in their apology for dissenting from two acts or new religious laws passed at the last session of synod. The whole ground is gone over of the wrongfulness of the acts, in precisely the mode, and nearly the language, of the New-Light Brethren of Antrim; and might have been adopted for a manifesto by the Friendly Society of Belfast. It expressly declares that it is a false hypothesis that the majority of any church judicatory has a power committed to them by Christ to make new rules about religious matters, which shall be binding on those who conscientiously dissent from them; even though the majority judge the rules to be not against but agreeable to the word and serviceable to religion. This would include every law made by session, presbytery, or synod. It militated as strongly against the requirement of subscription to the Westminster Confession, or of classical learning in candidates, as against the two acts it aimed at. "It is† heterodox and anarchical, and plainly contradicts the thirty-first article, third section, of the Confession of Faith." It denied that any church court has power to make rules about expedients and prudentials. The Irish Synod declared, in 1725, that those who made this denial were deserving of exclusion from the privileges of membership in their body. A day was spent in debate on the objections; the act was reaffirmed, except that the examination was to be before the whole synod or its commission. There were thirty-two ministers in attendance and eighteen elders, — all men of weight, age, and experience. On the decision of the matter, Gilbert Tennent cried out that it was to prevent his father's up, as the synod ordered. They, and Charles Tennent also, were most earnestly pressed by the presbytery to spare none of them, but to table charges if they could lay to their charge any thing unbecoming their office as Christ's ambassadors. Gillespie openly entreated them for God's sake to do so. Gilbert Tennent replied that the proposal was matter of surprise to him; that he had no thought of such a thing till it was mentioned in the face of the judicatory; that his meeting with them was wholly accidental; and that for him to enter on a judicial process was inconsistent with his design of itinerant preaching and the appointments already made. They then asked him to leave the matter with them in writing, and that they would take it in any way.

How Blair answered is not mentioned. Charles Tennent* was subsequently called to answer for defending some of Whitefield's expressions, Whitefield having himself retracted them.

"The Querists" was soon published. Its bitterness was much complained of; but its bitterness consisted in doing what Erskine had done in private letters to Whitefield, and what Watts and Edwards had done in conference; pointing out his errors and his inconsistencies with himself no less than with the Scriptures. The style is courteous, and the pamphlet is calm, judicious, searching, and fair. Whitefield wrote a reply on reading it; he thanked them for the opportunity of confessing his faults, acknowledged all they had said, and pointed out what they had overlooked. He had made the like acknowledgment to Erskine. His friends said, "The excellent meekness of his answer to The Querists will honour him much." Whitefield suspected it was the work of a minister, and many attributed it to Thomas Evans, of Pencader. He said, "If this be the work of the ministers put forth in the name of the people, they have not acted simply with me." He absolutely denied the doctrine of Universal Redemption, which they supposed him to hold.

He persuaded Gilbert Tennent to go to Boston, to water what he had sown; and, with the concurrence of the neighbouring ministers, he consented to go and "blow up the divine fire lately kindled there, although his cold constitution of body poorly fitted him to endure the northern gusts."

Whitefield was accompanied to Philadelphia by Davenport, and spent a week there preaching in the Great House, which he opened, though the roof was not on; and he preached in it every day. "God has revived his own work in Philadelphia. His glory filled the Great House." Being excluded from the Episcopal pulpits, and enormous multitudes* flocking to hear him, it was proposed to build a house. Sufficient money was at once procured to buy ground and build a house one hundred feet long by seventy broad. It was carried up with spirit, and was soon ready for use. "The affairs belonging thereto are, I believe, well settled." The trustees were to be taken in equal numbers from each denomination, and the house to be open for any preacher of any religious persuasion, even a missionary to propagate Mohammedanism.

On the 15th of November, he preached in Cross's meeting-house, because of the snow. "The word was attended with a sweet and wonderful power." Now he began to realize the truth of Edwards's remarks; and he declared that the openly exposing of our opinion of ministers as unconverted, was a lording over the brethren, and not to be tolerated. "Oh, pray for me," he wrote to Gilbert Tennent, "that I may not by any means grieve the children of God."

On the 17th he preached at Gloucester,—"an affecting melting,"—and at Greenwich "to a few without power;" on the 18th, at Pilesgrove, to two thousand. None were affected. On the 19th he preached twice at Cohanzy, (Fairfield,) to some thousands. Gilbert Tennent had been there not long before. The whole congregation was moved, and two cried out. "The Spirit of the Lord moved over the whole face of the congregation." On the 20th he preached at Salem, to two thousand—a precious time. He crossed the bay and preached at Newcastle: few were affected, and some scoffed. Here Anderson desired a conference with him; but Whitefield, who had turned from him at Fagg's Manor, declined, and, identifying him with "The Querists," said, "You have made your remarks on me public: I can have no private discourse on the matter." The next day, at White Clay Creek, he found thousands waiting to hear the word. Several of Anderson's associates were present. The people were greatly moved; some cried out. On Saturday, the 22d, he preached at Fagg's Manor, to many thousands; there was a wonderful powerful moving of hearts, but not so great as at his first visit.

He spent the Sabbath at Nottingham. There was a great concourse, and the blessing descended like the dew. The next day, November 24, at Bohemia, Maryland, Hutcheson's charge, he preached to thousands, and had not seen "a more solid melting since his arrival."

He then went to Reedy Island to embark, and, the sloop being detained by contrary winds for a week, he preached frequently. The captains and crews of the wind-bound vessels attended; crowds came from the country, and some from Philadelphia, and there was a general and deep concern.

He sailed for Charleston the seventy-fifth day after he landed at Rhode Island, having preached one hundred and seventy-five times, exhorted frequently in private, collected, in money, goods, and provisions, £700 for the Orphan-house, never having journeyed with so little fatigue or seen such a continuance of the divine presence with those to whom he preached.

Donegal Presbytery was the field of the sorest conflict. Other presbyteries were on the circumference of the tornado, but it lay in the centre, and was devastated by its maddest whirlings and its mightiest uprootings. The senior ministers were Thomson, of Chestnut Level, Boyd, of Octorara, and Bertram, of Derry; next in age was Alexander Creaghead, of Middle Octorara, a standard-bearer in the warfare; and with him was associated in opposition to the rest of the body David Alexander, of Pequea. They two declined attendance on the stated meetings, because candidates were licensed and ordained after superficial examination, and while giving no evidence of not being enemies to heart-religion. The five to whom they openly objected were Black, of Brandywine Manor, Elder, of Paxton, Zanchy, of Hanover, Samuel Thomson, of Pennsboro', and Cavin, of Conococheague. They two countenanced the itinerations of Finley and the separation at Nottingham, and were themselves complained of for seeking to promote divisions: Creaghead at New London and Alexander at Brandywine Manor. Thomson complained of Blair for intruding into his charge at Chestnut Level, to foment alienation of feeling. Besides, Creaghead was charged with making adherence to the Solemn League and Covenant a term of admission to church privileges; while the sin of drunkenness lay at Alexander's door.

The presbytery* came to Middle Octorara to take up the complaints against the minister; they found him in the pulpit preaching against "blind leaders of the blind." On concluding, he invited the large congregation to meet at the tent and hear his defence. The presbytery being about to proceed to business, the people rose in a tumult, railing on them; and they adjourned to another place. Creaghead's defence was read from the tent by Alexander and Finley, and the next day, the presbytery were forced to hear it read from the pulpit. For this contumacy, he having renounced their authority in the first instance, he was suspended.

The press was used by both parties. The Querists replied to Whitefield, showing how many things still needed explanation in his language and conduct. To this Samuel Blair replied with unsparing and inexcusable severity, imputing the most unworthy motives to the ministers, whom he regarded as its authors and patrons. "It is no sin to exclaim against dry, sapless, unconverted ministers, for such surely are the bane of the church." "That is," said The Querists, "it is no sin to defame a man after you have given him a bad name." "The Querists No. III." was composed of notes on Tennent's Nottingham Sermon. In January, 1741, Finley preached a sermon on Matthew xii. 27, 28:—"If I by Beelzebub cast out devils, by whom then do your sons cast them out?" It was published with the title, CHRIST REIGNING AND SATAN RAGING,—severe, bitter, unjust, and mischievous. He also printed a Letter to a Friend, in which he speaks of "the set of priests;" "pride and interest have hindered the general of ecclesiastics from embracing Christ." "Christ kept aloof and damned them for their rotten performances, fastings, prayers, and alms." "Oh, the babbling ignorant priests that would seem such friends to holiness!" "Are not these the devil's advocates? whose spirit came from them?" "Diabolical reasoners, be they ministers or people. O ministers of Satan, enemies of all righteousness who like Elymas—"* These specimens mournfully illustrate the state of things at that day, and explain the necessity for hesitating before we cast out, as vile, every man who joined in the outcry against Finley and the older ones from whom he learned such language.

He used the same unmeasured and inexcusable invective in his answer to Thomson's able, scriptural, dignified sermon on Conviction and Assurance. "The Clear Light put out in Obscure Darkness," is the title of this performance; and Thomson's doctrine is condemned as Moravian, Muggletonian, and detestable.

Tennent made his tour through New England in the severe winter of 1741, Long Island Sound being frozen over; and, while Whitefield had been scrupulously exact, neat, and handsome in his apparel, Tennent laid aside powder, discarded wigs, and wore a large greatcoat girt with a leathern girdle, as if the new era in religion was to date from the new style in clothes. He appears to have avoided denunciation and extravagance, and to have preached with great clearness, solemnity, and power, the glorious distinguishing doctrines of the gospel. He was received with great respect and cordial welcome, and was signally honoured of God in winning souls.†

In May, 1741, Donegal Presbytery met at Pequeta to hear the complaints against Alexander; he took the pulpit and prevented the moderator from preaching. They cleared him of the charge of drunkenness; but his excess in drink at a funeral, his reproaches of his presbytery, and his refusal to submit to the constituted authorities of the church, could not be overlooked. He was disowned till he manifested repentance.

At the same time, "the dreadful scandals" of Cross, of

Now, I would be glad to learn of these diabolical reasoners, (the Querists,) be they ministers or people, if it be the devil's custom to set the world in an uproar about their souls?"

† A letter from Portsmouth, New Hampshire, published in the Pennsylvania Gazette, says, "That heavenly man preached six sermons there, and spoke as I never heard man speak before. While dwelling on the grace of Christ towards the guilty, there were such outcries and weepings you could scarcely distinguish one sound from another."

Baskingridge, came to light, and his absence from the meeting of New Brunswick Presbytery delayed his trial and condemnation till after the synod.

Divisions had already begun. William Tennent,* of Neshaminy, had renounced the authority of Philadelphia Presbytery since the fall of 1739. "New erections" of separate congregations were nearly completed at Nottingham and Hopewell. To the Great House in Philadelphia, a large body had withdrawn from the Old Meeting-house, and all of these erections were supplied by the New-Side ministers and licentiates.

The synod met on the 27th of May, 1741; the Old Side were exasperated by the misrepresentations and insults of the Protesters, and by their unwearied and successful schemes in alienating their people from them, and trembled with a godly jealousy lest the principles of the New Brunswick men (being like those of the Irish non-subscribers in the matter of church government) should bring in here, as there, contempt of the doctrines of grace and denial of the Supreme Deity of the Son of God. The New Side came flushed with success; the shout of a king was in their camp; they had the favour of the people, as the men whom God had owned, and they had the favour of God, making them mighty to pull down the strongholds of Satan.

They did not meet as brethren. Each was strongly preposessed against the other, and the actions of each served to irritate and embitter the feelings already excited and wounded. They were blinded to each other's excellencies, and amazingly acute in discerning the dimensions of the mote in their brother's eye. The strange incongruity was seen, of the smallest and the youngest presbytery refusing to be bound by any law of the synod which displeased them; and having three licentiates and one minister on their list, whom the synod could not accept without laying aside its authority, and sinking itself into a mere consultative body whose decisions were binding on none. The claim made by the non-subscribers in the Ulster Synod twenty years before, was renewed by the Protesters under a still more offensive form; for they admitted the synod's power to make rules, and the excellency of the rules, when the synod was composed of godly men; and denied its power and the binding force of its enactments, only, when the church was crushed by a majority of blind guides, letter-learned Pharisees, and dead men. In effect, they asserted, "If we were the majority, it would be binding on you to obey the rules; but, seeing you sightless and Christless ones are in the majority, the rules are null, and, like yourselves, fit only to be despised."

No human skill could throw a bridge across the frightful gulf yawning between them, that they might meet half-way or stand on debatable ground. There can be no union where, in the eyes of a handful, the majority of their brethren are as grasshoppers.

What, then, was the great point of difference? On neither side was there ignorance or hatred of the doctrines of grace, or the habit, or the wish, of sinking them unobserved into insignificance. Nor was there disbelief or dislike of the doctrine of Regeneration, or its author, necessity, or nature; nor yet as to the evidences of it, but only as to the convictions preceding the change from death to life, and the immediate inward witness of the saving change; and even the difference on these points, when divested of exaggerations and cleared of confusion of terms, was so small as to be indiscernible. There was no difference as to the mode of church government, or subscription to the Westminster standards, or the necessity of a learned ministry, much less of the higher necessity of piety in ministers and people. Nor yet as to the outcries, faintings, laughter, and other unusual accompaniments: both abhorred the thought that they were marks of saving operations of the Spirit; the one derided them as degrading public worship and substituting bodily exercise for reverent hearing of the truth; the others contended that they were not necessarily contemptible or abominable as the effects of terror, or overwrought sensibility, or Satanic agency.

In New England, the case was widely different. There Arminianism was secretly working and widely diffused. Its effect was seen in the lethargic preaching, and the dead formalism, strangely joined with bitter denunciation, and tireless manœuvres to put down every one who acknowledged another king besides Cæsar. In Connecticut, the legislative power was invoked, and the law giving liberty to sober dissenters from the standing order to form themselves into congregations, was repealed. A minister of the colony, preaching in a parish without the consent of the pastor, though it were in a Baptist meeting-house by the request of the Baptist preacher and his people, was deprived of his salary for a year. Ministers not of the colony, committing the like offence, were to be taken up as vagrants and carried from constable to constable, till they touched the soil of the nearest province. In the Bay, as well as in Connecticut, the associations issued warnings, testimonies, and declarations against the promoters of the Revival, and laid hold on every available opportunity to unsettle them from their pastoral charges, or to hedge up their admission to settlement in any vacancy. But the Old Side had no willing legislature to frame laws for their advantage; they issued no testimony against Whitefield or any man; no pious man was unsettled for his adherence to the Protesters; no hinderance was offered to congregations asking a change of jurisdiction. The measure of courtesy towards the Protesters, and especially the excellent meekness of their submission to the high-handed assaults on their personal and ministerial character by Blair and Tennent, greatly honours them.

There were present twenty-six ministers and eighteen elders. Andrews was chosen moderator, and Boyd clerk. The whole of New York Presbytery were absent, probably by design, being apprized that a crisis was at hand, and being unable to act with either side, or compose the difference between them.

There had been, doubtless, much concert on the part of the majority. They had fully mustered their forces. The right of some to sit as members in synod was the first branch of business; and Creaghead, having declined the jurisdiction of his presbytery and having been suspended, his case was taken up. He presented a paper, which was read; and the next day was consumed in considering a paper of charges made by his people against John Thomson, and a second paper offered by Creaghead. The charges were handed to Thomson to peruse, and his presbytery was ordered to judge in that affair speedily.

The afternoon of Friday, the 29th, and the morning of Saturday, were devoted to hearing the answer of Donegal Presby Presbytery was constantly importuned for supplies, and their most promising candidates were sent to Cohanzy.

At Elmer's request, Cowell, McHenry, and Kinkaid were sent by the synod, in September, 1754, to endeavour to remove the difficulties he complained of in his congregation; but all proceedings were stayed by his death. He lies buried in the Old New England town-graveyard, with this inscription:—

"In memory of the Rev. Daniel Elmer, late pastor of Christ's Church in this place, who departed this life, January 14, 1755, aged sixty-five years."

Dr. Alison wrote to President Stiles, July 20, 1755, informing him that the two parts of Elmer's congregation had united on his death, and introducing Mr. Thomas Ogden, whom they had sent as their messenger to Connecticut to procure a minister.

Elmer married Margaret, daughter of Ebenezer Parsons, of West Springfield, Massachusetts, and sister of the Rev. Jonathan Parsons, of Newburyport; she was the mother of three sons and four daughters. His second wife was a Webster, the mother of two sons and three daughters.

His son Daniel was born in 1714, and was the father of Dr. Jonathan and General Ebenezer Elmer.

HUGH STEVENSON,

A STUDENT of theology from Ireland, was received under the care of Newcastle Presbytery, May 11, 1726, and was licensed, September 13. He was sent from time to time to supply Lower Octorara (now Nottingham) and Newcastle and Lewestown. He was called to Snow Hill, Maryland, March 26, 1728, Edmund Cropper being the commissioner. He accepted the call in June; Anderson, Thomson, and Houston were appointed to examine his discourse, and Thomson, Stewart, and McCook to proceed with his trials. He was ordained before June, 1729.

In 1783, while preaching in Virginia, he received harsh and injurious treatment from some gentlemen. A copy of his representation was sent by the synod to the Church of Scotland, and aid was asked to maintain some itinerant ministers in Virginia and elsewhere; and especially was that venerable body urged to use its influence with the Government to lay "a restraint upon some gentlemen in said neighbouring province as may discourage them from hampering our missionaries by illegal prosecutions."

In 1739 or '40, he opened a grammar-school in Philadelphia, being a teacher of high reputation.* Just before the introduction of the Protest in 1741, he was suspended by the synod, having omitted his ministry and fallen into some irregularities. He died before May, 1744.

JOHN WILSON,

A MINISTER from Ireland, "coming providentially into these parts," presented his credentials to the synod in 1729, and was unanimously received. He preached at Lower Octorara, and made a strong party in his favour. The Presbytery of Newcastle received, January 27, 1730, a letter from Armagh Presbytery concerning him; and they resolved not to employ him. He was then preaching at Newcastle with much acceptance, and a misunderstanding sprung up between the congregation and the presbytery in regard to him. Robert Gordon,† Judge of Newcastle County Court, and Probate of Wills, wrote to the synod to interpose in the breach. This brought under review the presbytery's action, and the synod judged that they had not acted with any severity towards him, but rather the contrary. He removed soon after to Boston, and died there, January 6, 1733, aged sixty-six.

It is supposed that the Rev. John Wilson was his son, who was born in Ulster and ordained pastor of the Presbyterian church in Chester, New Hampshire, in 1734, and who died there, February 1, 1779, aged seventy-six.

EBENEZER GOULD,

A NATIVE of New England, graduated at Yale in 1723, and became the minister of Greenwich, in Cohanzy, about the time Elmer settled in Fairfield, in 1727.

In 1736, Philadelphia Presbytery was informed of difficulties in his congregation; and, he being absent at the time set for considering the case, they heard the complainants on two points:—

1. Whether it be lawful in any case to have evidence which is to be used in an ecclesiastical case, sworn before a magistrate?

take him out of the pulpit, and drag him at a horse's tail to the New Town. Thomson was ordained, at Pennsborough, November 14, 1739, pastor of Upper and Lower Pennsborough, Newcastle, and Silver Spring: Alexander Craighead preached from Ezek. xxxiii. 6. In March, 1745, Upper Pennsborough obtained the whole of his time. In 1749, he was charged with an immorality, and was suspended. He was subsequently restored, and dismissed from Pennsborough. His congregation divided during the Revival.

The first congregation "over the river" was on the Conedoguinet, and had supplies in 1734: the first were A. Craighead, and Bertram, and Gelston. In 1736, Anderson preached at the New Town. In April, 1737, Anderson and Bertram were sent to Conedoguinet. John Penn gave the settlers three hundred acres for meeting-house and parsonage. They built their church first at the Meeting-house Springs; and in the old graveyard are to be seen the stones with coats of arms graven on them.

He was often sent to supply in Virginia. He was dissatisfied with many things after the union, and withdrew; but, on the final adjustment of the matter, he was annexed to Donegal Presbytery. He died, April 29, 1787.

His son William took holy orders, and came to York and Cumberland, as a missionary of the Venerable Society, about 1750, and was the rector of St. John's, in Carlisle.

JOHN CRAIG

WAS born in Ireland, September 21, 1710, but educated in America. He appeared before Donegal Presbytery in the fall of 1736, and was taken on trial the next spring, and licensed, August 30, 1738. He was sent to Deer Creek (now Churchville, Maryland) and to West Conococheague. He spent the summer in those places, and Conewago and Opequhon. West Conococheague called him in the fall of 1739; but he declined a settlement in that charge.

In 1737, the new-settled inhabitants of Beverly's Manor applied for supplies; and Anderson* visited them, and settled the bounds of the congregations "in an orderly manner, by the voice of the people." Craig was sent, at the close of 1739, to Opequhon, Irish Tract, and other places in Western Virginia. He was "the commencer of the Presbyterian service in Augusta." He gathered two congregations in the south part of the Manor, now Augusta county, and, in April, 1740, received a call from Shanadore and South River. It is described in the call as the congregation of the Triple Forks of Shenandoah, but long since known as Augusta and Tinkling Spring. On the 2d of September, 1740, Robert Poag and Daniel Denniston appeared as representatives, and took on them the engagements made by the people at installations. On the next day, after Sanckey had preached from Jer. iii. 15, Craig was ordained and installed.

At this time all things were working mightily "to draw the lingering battle on." "Having examined* the controversy, had free communication with both parties, (New Side and Old), he applied to God for light and direction in this important matter, and came—not instantly, but after time and deliberation—to clearness of mind to join in the Protest against the new and uncharitable opinions and the views of church government." The friends of the Revival passed through his bounds, but do not seem to have alienated his people to any large extent. They were blessed with much success throughout the valley.

He attended the synod in 1741, and signed the Protest. "He attended the synod in 1741, and signed the Protest. "Going down† from the splendid prospect of the Rockfish Gap, you enter the bounds of the oldest congregation in Virginia, Tinkling Spring, with its old stone church. Here, in a wooden building finished by the widow of John Preston, Craig preached. He was greatly opposed to the location of the meeting, wishing it more central." The people chose it, among other reasons, for the convenience of the spring; and, it is said, "he never suffered its water to cool his thirst."

The church in Augusta was strongly fortified in the French War, Craig refusing to flee from the savage.

On the union, he heartily joined with Hanover Presbytery, and was as forward as any in soliciting funds for Princeton College.

He resigned the pastoral care of Tinkling Spring in November, 1754; and the sermon which he preached on that occasion, from 2 Sam. xxiii. 5, is the only one of his discourses that can be found. It was printed, for the first time, in the "Baltimore Literary and Religious Magazine," in December, 1760.

"In this short discourse," he says, "I have collected together the sum and substance of those doctrines I have declared to you these twenty-five years past. . . .

* MS. Letter of Craig; quoted by Mr. Smith.

† Dr. Foote.

"I have long, often, and sincerely exhorted, entreated, invited, and besought you, in public, in private, in secret, to come and take hold of God's covenant and Christ the Mediator thereof. I hope some among you have sincerely complied: I wish I could say all that I have been so nearly concerned for or related to. But now our near and dear pastoral relation is dissolved. And, oh, how does my heart tremble to think and fear that too, too many among you have not sincerely accepted of and embraced Christ on gospel terms! Oh, how can I leave you at a distance from Christ, and strangers to the God that made you? I cannot leave you till I give you another offer of Christ and the covenant of grace. Let me beg of you, for your souls' sake, for Christ's sake, to leave all your sins, and come, come speedily, and lay hold on the covenant and the Mediator; never, never let him go till he bless you.

"Few and poor, and without order, were you when I accepted your call; but now I leave you a numerous, wealthy congregation, able to support the gospel, and of credit and reputation in the church.

"For coming into the bond of this covenant of grace; it is by faith we take hold of it. This we do when we are thoroughly, clearly convinced of our sin, and misery, and undone state under the covenant of works; and do hence betake ourselves to the new covenant, to the gracious method of salvation proposed to us in the gospel through Jesus Christ and his righteousness, and do cordially approve of, and acquiesce in this noble contrivance, and accept of Jesus Christ as our only Mediator, Surety, and Peacemaker with God, and in him do sincerely make choice of God—Father, Son, and Holy Spirit—to be our God and portion. On our part, giving ourselves soul and body to be the Lord's; engaging, in the strength of our great surety, Jesus Christ, to abandon all sin, live for his glory, and walk with him in newness of life, as becomes God's covenanted people. This great work is carried on in all its parts by God's Holy Spirit, helping and determining our souls to do all these things heartily, cheerfully, and sincerely."

In parting, he makes no complaints of them, and no boasting of himself.

He remained in the charge of Augusta till his death, April 21, 1774, "after fifteen hours' affliction," aged sixty-three years and four months.

"The old people* in Augusta county have learned from their fathers that he was a man mighty in the Scriptures,—'in perils oft, in labours abundant,' for the gospel; and they hold his memory in the highest veneration."

* Dr. Foote.

Craig said,* when asked if he found suitable persons for elders in new settlements, where he had organized churches, "When there were no hewn stones I just took dornacks."

AZARIAH HORTON,

A BROTHER of the Rev. Simon Horton, graduated at Yale in 1735, and, on being licensed, probably by New York Presbytery, he received a call to a promising parish, Long Island, and was prepared to accept it. The case of the Indians on the island was pressed upon him by the correspondents of the Scottish Society for Propagating the Gospel; and they prevailed on him to relinquish the call. He was ordained by New York Presbytery in 1740, and entered on his labours at the east end of the island in the midst of the Great Revival.† Thirty-five Indians were soon after baptized. Subsequently he had little or no encouraging success. Two churches‡ still exist, the remains of the fruit of his toil: one at Poosapatuck, on the Great South Bay, in the south of Brookhaven, the other at Shinnecock, the largest settlement, two miles west of Southampton. At the latter place he made his home. He printed two years of his missionary journal. On the 18th of May, 1742, he was at Smithfield, Pennsylvania, and he spent a fortnight in preparing the Indians on the Delaware for Brainerd's coming. He went from there to attend the synod in Philadelphia, and signed the Protest of the New York brethren against the exclusion and rupture of 1741. He met with many discouragements in his work. In his printed letter dated Southampton, September 14, 1751, he speaks of having been annoyed by the Separates; this, together with the diminished number of the Indians, and the hopelessness of doing them any good, led him to abandon the mission in 1753. The Indians on the island numbered only four hundred in 1740.

He became the pastor of South Hanover, New Jersey, the congregation having been set off from Hanover in 1748: for a long time it was called Bottle Hill, and now is known as Madison. He was dismissed in November, 1776, and died March 2, 1777, aged sixty-two.

New York. They had the Erskines in great reverence: they loved the doctrines which rallied Scotland's best men against the Assembly's decision in the Marrow controversy. Smith speaks, in his history, contemptuously of the opposition, as of the lower class; and Robert Philip brands it as a cabal of ignorance and bigotry.* The fact that these persons called the Rev. John Mason from Scotland, and that they and their children constituted the congregation of Dr. John M. Mason, is a sufficient refutation of these charges.

Cumming died August 23, 1763. "He was full of prayer, with a lively, active soul in a feeble body." This was the testimony of the excellent Dr. Sewall, with whom he was joined as colleague in Boston.

HUGH HENRY

GRADUATED at Nassau Hall in 1748. He was one of the students trained by Samuel Blair. He was ordained, by the New-Side Presbytery of Newcastle, pastor of Rehoboth, Wicomico, and Monokin, in 1751. At that time the harvest, following the labours of Robinson and Davies in Somerset county, "seemed nearly over, though considerable gleanings were still gathered" after his settlement. Davies spoke of him at that time as likely to prove an extensive blessing to that part of the colony of Maryland.

He died in 1763, greatly esteemed.

JOHN KINKEAD

Was born in Ireland, and is mentioned, on the records of Philadelphia Synod, as a licentiate, in May, 1752. He was, at that time, sent to the Valley of Virginia, to supply from the middle of November till the first of March: "in case he receives a call, he shall continue eight weeks only." McKennan supplied his lack of service, and his reasons for not having gone were sustained. "A member of the congregation of Norrington applied to the synod, supplicating the ordination of Mr. Kinkead, as fast as our stated rules and methods will permit. The synod, at considerable length, heard the reasons offered by the Presbyteries of Philadelphia and Newcastle why they could not attend, on the trials and ordination, so as to answer the request of the congregations. The congregations of Great Valley and Norrington belonging to Philadelphia Presbytery, they ordered that said presbytery should attend the trials and manage the ordination; and, lest a delay should be occasioned by the paucity and distance of the members, Mr. Cathcart is ordered to correspond with said presbytery as an assistant." He was ordained, and the synod ordered him "to correspond with Newcastle Presbytery in August."

In 1754, he spent three months in Virginia, and was dismissed from his charge, and was publicly disowned by the presbytery, in 1757. Immediately on the union, (May 31, 1758,) Philadelphia Presbytery directed Gilbert Tennent to write to him, and inform him that he must desist from preaching at Middletown, (now in Delaware county, Pennsylvania,) as it was offensive to the congregation and to the presbytery. He was informed of the time of the next meeting. The records of the presbytery furnish no further notice of him; but, in 1759, at his request, the synod appointed a committee to converse with him. "He came next day, and gave in a paper to the synod, as, he says, for his own exoneration, in order to his continuing a member. The synod, having never excluded him, concluded to consider and deal with him as a member. The minute being read to him, he refused membership notwithstanding."

Windham, in New Hampshire, obtained his services, and he was settled there in October, 1760. They had supplicated the synod in May; and Dr. Alison and Mr. Ewing were directed to write to them a recommendatory letter in favour of Kirkpatrick, who was going with the New Jersey forces the ensuing campaign.

Kinkead was dismissed in April, 1765; and, in 1769, it was "particularly represented to the synod that he is, by many, given out to be a Presbyterian minister, though his conduct is noway cognizable by us, for he has never been a member of any of our presbyteries since the union."

talizing, and although more or less peculiar in their presentation of their theological views, we can say this for them—they were convinced they were right—and we honor them for their sincerity.]

REV. JAMES ANDERSON.

James Anderson was a native of Scotland, born November 17, 1678; was educated under the care of Principal Stirling, of Glasgow, and ordained by Irvine Presbytery, November 17, 1703, with a view to his settlement in Virginia. He sailed March 6, 1709, and arrived in the Rappahannock on the 22d of April following, but the state of things there not warranting his stay, he came northward, and was received by the Presbytery September 20. He settled at New Castle. In 1714, out of regard to the desolate condition of the people in Kent county, he was directed to supply them monthly on a Sabbath, and also to spend a Sabbath at Cedar Creek, in Sussex. He subsequently ministered in New York, but owing to some difficulties in the congregation there he desired a removal. He was called September 24, 1726, to Donegal, on the Susquehanna, and accepted it. He was installed the last Wednesday in August, 1727. In September, 1729, he gave every fifth Sabbath to the people on Swatara, and joined the congregation of Derry, thus becoming the first settled pastor over that church, until the call to Rev. William Bertram, in 1732. He died July 16, 1740. In the language of Presbytery, "he was high in esteem for circumspection, diligence and faithfulness as a Christian minister." The Rev. Mr. Anderson married February, 1712-13, Suit Garland, daughter of Sylvester Garland, of the Head of Apoquinimy. She died December 24, 1736. He then married Rachel Wilson, December 27, 1737. His son, Garland Anderson married Jane, daughter of Peter Chevalier, of Philadelphia, but died early. His daughter Elizabeth married Samuel Breeze, resided in New York, and was a woman of great excellence. A brother of the Rev. Mr. Anderson was John Anderson, of Perth Amboy, who in 1712 was made one of the Council of the Province of New Jersey. He died in March, 1736, aged seventy-three, being then president of the council.

REV. SAMUEL BLACK.

Samuel Black was a native of the north of Ireland, born about 1700. He studied theology prior to his emigrating to America, and was subsequently licensed by New Castle Presbytery. The Forks of Brandywine in Chester county was formed into a separate congregation in 1735, and in September same year, Donegal Presbytery gave them leave to invite Black to preach as a candidate for settlement.

He was called October 7, and ordained November 18, 1735. A portion of his people preferred complaints against him September 2, 1740. This was just at the time of the extraordinary effects produced by the preaching of Whitfield. Most of the allegations were not sustained, but after a rebuke and suspension for a season, he was restored, and afterwards released from the pastoral relation. The new congregation of Conewago, between Middletown and Mount Joy called him in October, 1741, and he was installed the second Wednesday in May following. He made occasional visits to Virginia as a missionary, and was sent to Potomac in 1743. Difficulties arose in his flock at Conewago and they asked to have the Rev. John Steel, who was supplying Conestoga, sent to them. North and South Mountain in Virginia (the former six miles west of Staunton) asked for him, March 6, 1745. He was dismissed from Conewago in April, but in the fall they sought to regain him. A division took place. Those who left him obtained one-fifth of the time of the Rev. John Roan, pastor of the New Side churches of Paxtang and Derry. In 1747, he, with Revs. Thomson and Craig, was directed to take the oversight of the vacancies in Virginia. In 1751 he was directed to supply Buffalo settlement and the adjacent places four Sabbaths. He took charge of the congregations of Rockport and Mountain Plain before 1752. He died August 9, 1770.

REV RICHARD SANCKEY.

Richard Sanckey, a native of the north of Ireland, was born about 1712. He studied theology at Glasgow under Principal Stirling, and came to America in the summer of 1735. He was taken on trial by Donegal Presbytery the 7th of October same year, licensed October 13, 1736, and sent to the church on Manada creek. This congregation is first mentioned in October, 1735, Lazarus Stewart appearing to supplicate in its behalf the next year. The Rev. William Bertram, of Derry, moderated the call which was brought to the Presbytery for Mr. Sanckey by John Cunningham and Robert Green, June 22, 1737. From that time onward the congregation is styled Hanover. Mr. Sanckey accepted August 31, 1737, but it appearing that his trial sermon was transcribed out of books to give a false idea of his ministerial powers, and contained most dangerous errors, the Presbytery rebuked him and delayed his ordination. The Rev. George Gillespie remonstrated with the Synod not to countenance such levity especially as Mr. Sanckey had sent the notes to Henry Hunter "who had preached them to his own overthrow." Hunter had passed himself off as an

Dear Madam,

Thank you for your letter of 21st October. We are pleased to have this contact with you even if we should prove to be less helpful than we would wish.

I do not know the source of your information that this Society has a copy of "The Black Family" edited by Isaac M. Ward. I regret I have found no trace of it here. I further checked the Fasti of the Presbyterian Church in Ireland and there is no sign of a Rev Samuel Black in the 18th century. I had the same result when I looked at the Fasti of the Church of Scotland. The only positive thing I have found is the following from "Names of some Ministers, Licentiates, Students or Emigrants who went from Ulster and served in the Ministry of Presbyterian Churches in North America during the period 1680-1820, with the Presbytery of oversight, or district of origin where these have been ascertained, the date or approximate date of arrival and the Provinces or States where they exercised their ministry" taken from "Ulster Sails West" by W.F. Marshall:-

"Black, Samuel: Lic. Armagh P.: a 1735: Pa., Va., N.C."

Another book entitled "Presbyterians in Colonial Pennsylvania" by Guy Soulliard Klett has two brief references to Mr Black, Pages 72 and 162 (1937).

You omitted to enclose the sheet to which you referred in your letter so I do

My dear Mrs Noland

* Your note of November -came to day .I have examined many sources of material for information as to the family of the Rev. Samuel Black minister born 1700 died 1770.

* The best reference is given in Mc Clune's History of the Presbyterian Church in the Forks of Brandywine, Chester County Pa. From 1735-1865 After giving a sketch of his life it says,

" The remains of Mr Black were interred on a farm which he purchased after his permanent settlement in Virginia, where his grave, with no other memorial than an unlettered stone, may still be seen. The farm now in the possession of his only surviving grandson Thomas Black, lies in Albemarle County Va, a few miles from the /Eastern base of the Blue Ridge".

"He left a family of four sons and two daughters. Some of them settled in Kentucky and other Western States.

* The Youngest, Samuel remained at the homestead.

Many of his descendants still reside in that part of Virginia, and it is due to them to state that a majority of them adhere to the church of which their great grandfather was a pioneer Minister in Pennsylvania, Virginia and North Carolina."

The book from which the above extract is made, was published 1865.

Very truly yours,

Louis F. Benson

Letter by Ellen T. MacDonald Box 28.
Route 2. Blacksburg, Va Albemarle County.

My dear Mrs Noland:

Postmaster at Blacksburg sent your letter to my cousin Alex Black of that town, and as he in his younger days had not taken very kindly to genealogy, he feels I know more about the family than he does so he sent it to me to answer. That is what is done on all sides of the family.

I want first to tell you that John and William Black who settled at Blacksburg were not sons of Reverend Samuel Black, but were grandsons of his brother John who located in Beverly Manor Augusta County Virginia. Their father was named Samuel also and Judge Johnson was misinformed on that point. There were in nearly every family, John, James, William and Samuel with nothing else to distinguish, hence it has been difficult to keep them straight.

What are you preparing data for? Are you going to get merely the line of Rev. Samuel Black or working on whole family? There is a Mr Kegley working on a history of S.W. Virginia, who wishes me to give a sketch of the Blacks and the MacDonalds. I will try to help you and I would like to know what you have of the early history of the Blacks especially about Joseph mentioned.

Can you trace any farther back than James in Ireland? I will give you in this letter.

I have my great grandfather's Bible (John Black) with his records he kept but do not know of another.

It is only of his children and grand children. A son wrote down a genealogy as he directed. From it we learn,

"James Black a wool merchant who lived in the County Down in Ireland, had 4 sons viz, James, John, Anthony and Samuel. James died in Ireland leaving a son Thomas who settled in Rockbridge county Virginia married a Miss Sawyer. He died and his family moved across the Ohio River.

The sons John and Anthony settled in Augusta County Virginia. The 4th son Samuel in 1735 landed at New Castle Delaware, was called to take charge of the Brandywine Manor Presbyterian Church in Chester Co Pa. was 35 years old and unmarried. He had two churches in Donegal Presbytery.

In 1743 he began to visit Virginia as a missionary, staying with his brother John when not traveling.

29th March 1747 Ye inhabitants of Ivy Creek and ye Mountain Plains congregation joyn together with Ye congregation of Rockfish to call Ye Reverend Samuel Black to be our minister and Pastor.

The first places were in Albemarle and the last 2 in Nelson Co. In 1751 he purchased 400 acres on Mechem River in Albemarle County where he made his home until his death 1770.

His wife was Catherine Shaw and his children were: Samuel, James Margaret, Mary, Sarah, John and William.

Jamea Black and wife Eleanor sold his 600 acres on Stockton's Creek in 1780.

John and his wife Elizabeth sold in 1789 and went West.

Samuel and William, men of prominence and influence remained in Albemarle County.

Samuel died 1815 his wife named Mary.

William married his cousin Mary daughter of Samuel Black and Jane Porter of Augusta County. He lived at the home of his father in Albemarle County.

* Rev. Samuel Black was educated at Edinburg and licensed to preach at Glasgow Scotland.

The Race from which the Blacks descended was a branch of the Phoenicians who were the most enlightened people of their day, well skilled in navigation, the art and sciences and invincible in war.

They moved from place to place along the Mediterranean until they settled in Spain where they remained for a generation or more then crossed over to Ireland.

Thomas Moore describes their arrival there in his poem Iris - fall or the Isle of Destiny.

They were one of the families derived from the celebrated "House of Heremon" John O'Harts' Irish Pedigrees give the history of it.

Through one line they are descended from Tribe of Judah. Hence the origin of their Coat of Arms and use of the Lion on their banners and shields.

From Ireland they moved over to the Isles western part of Scotland where they remained many generations. They were called Scots because they had descended from a princess named Scotia and to distinguish them from Picts and other tribes.

Finally all the country was called Scotland.

They moved back into Ireland where they remained 2 generations or more before coming to America.

I have sent for an address of some of the descendants of Rev. Samuel Black, who still live in Albemarle County and will send this letter on as soon as I get it.

Several years ago I had a letter from Mrs Mary Black Clark of Jackson, Tenn. who was trying to trace her line, she seems to belong to your branch and I think it probable you can help her.

She stated her ancestors went from Virginia to Kentucky but she had forgotten the name of her great grandfather, who had 11 boys and 4 of them settled in Tenn viz: Tom, Wm, James and Alex.

That Henry Watterson was a grandson of James and she a grand-daughter of Thomas. I could not make the connection of her Thomas and the Virginia Blacks and have not heard more from her.

Also had letter from Wm. H. Black a descendant of Joseph who married Esther Dickson and went to Kentucky.

Descendants of some of the family live in Ill. He wrote me from Plymouth and another time from Carthage. Did you hear of them?

The address is Mrs Rosa Sutherlin Crozet (Crozet) Albemarle Co Va.

Wishing you success with genealogy

When James^{1st} confiscated the great Estates of the rebellious Irish chieftians in the Province of Ulster .he opened the land for settlement for Scotch and English.
The counties of Down and Antrim in Ulster were just across the narrow channel from Scotland and the confiscated lands in those counties were almost entirely settled by Scotch families.
Among those families were branches of the Blacks.
The Court and Parish records of Ulster show many references to them and their marriages to other families

About 1730 the Virginia Valley that beautiful and fertile section of Virginia lying between Blue Ridge and the Allegheny Mountains was opened for settlement.
Then began and continuing for about a quarter of a century that great historic exodus called the Scotch-Irish immigration from Ulster to America

During three or four generations the Scotch had remained in Ulster They had remained separate and distinct in race and religion from the Irish. The term Scotch Irish was coined by themselves to show they were Scotch, though living in Ireland.
Augusta County Virginia which originally occupied most of the territory of the valley was settled almost entirely by Scotch from Down and Antrim and many people of the South and West are lineal descendants of those Indian fighting Presbyterians of Virginia Valley.

Among the first of these settlers was a large connection of Blacks as the custom of the time they came in groups and families connection as the first Augusta Co records give 7 or 8 head of family all related.

Four of them were brothers whose sons came to Ky and later to Tenn Becerly Manor an immense and choice tract of land in Augusta Co Most of the large entries of the Blacks included in this tract. 2nd and 3rd generations, depositions in lawsuits show original owners.

The men had families and each to perpetuate used same name so it is so hard to separate and place them in proper places in family.

Other Sam's there

1747 a dissenting preacher took all the oaths as shown by historians of the valley Samuel Black was one of the first and best known of the Presbyterian preachers of Virginia Valley.

His wife was Catherine Shaw and their children were: Samuel, James, Margaret, Mary, Sarah, John and William. all mentioned in his Will. He was born Highlands Scotland 1700 and died in Albemarle Co Va. 1770 Testate.

Dear Jacqueline,

Many thanks for your letter of 9 February.

* Enclosed with this letter please find the photocopies which we neglected to send with our report, although it would appear that the full report arrived intact.

With regard to Scottish research I can recommend the following genealogist as an excellent researcher.

Perhaps the Scottish research may yield some clue to a location in Ireland.

In closing I would like to wish both Jim and yourself all the very best for the future.

Miss J. Humphrey,
355 South Banana River Blvd., Apartment #102,
Cocoa Beach,
Florida 32931,
U.S.A.

Dear Miss Humphrey,

We have completed our research and now present our report.

As you will note a vast quantity of material has been examined in the course of this research; we are pleased to report that we have met with some success..

You doubtless know that Ireland is divided into Counties which are sub-divided in Parishes, these in turn are sub-divided into smaller areas known as townlands.

You stated that James (or John) Black, the father of the Rev. Samuel Black was a wool merchant. You may possibly know that in 1699 an Act placed heavy duties on Irish Woollen goods and allowed them only to be exported to England, thus forcing a monopoly buyer. Since the English wool industry was threatened by Irish wool this legislation effectively crushed the Irish Industry. Linen weaving was allowed because it did not compete with any English counterpart. Thus, many former wool merchants became linen merchants in the 18th century.

We commenced this research by re-examining the "Fasti of the American Presbyterian Church" and the "Fasti of the Irish Church", however, as you will note in the documentation we did not find any new information.

"The Manuscript Sources for the History of Irish Civilisation", edited by Richard J. Hayes L.L.D., Director of the National Library of Ireland contains collects of manuscripts concerning information from both private, public and semi-private collections.

Although too late to be relevant to this research we examined the Householder's Index for the strength and distribution of the surname Black in Co. Down.

Ireland unlike England had no Industrial Revolution at the beginning of the 19th century. Therefore, the same families could be found farming the same farms where their ancestors had lived for generations. In Ireland these families never moved unless driven out by eviction or if

mid 1800s*

You will note that the surname Black was numerous in Co. Down but that the largest concentration was in the Barony of Iveagh, Lower and Upper half. This, we thought was an interesting fact as the "Fasti of the American Presbyterian Church" stated that the Rev. Samuel Black was licensed by the Armagh Presbytery 1732. Part of this Barony ~~is~~ in Co. Down and part in Co. ~~ARMAGH~~.

The Personal Names Index of P.R.O.N.I. contains the names of some persons mentioned in original records housed within that office. The Index is not comprehensive however, as it does not give the names of individuals mentioned in long lists of names such as Church Registers and Census Returns.

An examination of the Personal Names Index P.R.O.N.I. gave us information pertaining to hundreds of persons whose surname was Black. We made a careful examination of the Personal Names Index P.R.O.N.I. and we listed a great many persons of that surname.

However we found that the surname was so prolific we listed only those whom we thought might possibly be relevant to this research. To list all Blacks recorded in Co. Down would have been a time consuming task and would have taken hours.

Examining the Pedigree of the Black family of Lurgan, Co. Armagh 1783 - 1925 we were disappointed to find the information found did not seem relevant to this research. Lurgan is a town close to the Co. Down - Co. Armagh border.

We now examined a very old Will of John Black C1739 from the Personal Names Index, Public Record Office, Northern Ireland contained in "Black Family, fragments of Deeds." We of course cannot ascertain if this Will would be relevant to your family, but we have enclosed a photocopy for you to study.

We have also enclosed a photocopy of the "Pedigree of the Blacks of Dromore", which we think might possibly be relevant to this research. It is interesting to note the christian names John, James, Samuel and Antony are recorded. In fact we have been informed that this was a very important family who traded in wool, linen and other merchandise. We however, leave you to study this "family tree" and draw your own conclusions.

You stated that Londonderry was mentioned in your family history. We therefore examined the history of the "Seige of Londonderry, C1689" titled the "Fighters of Derry" by William R. Young. You will note the only Black recorded was an Episcopalian clergyman, Rev. Bartholomew Black.

The Royal School, Armagh registers are extant from 1671 and many notable families attended this school. However, as you will note the surname Black was not recorded in these registers in the 18th century.

Finally we examined the "Wool Manufacture of Ireland 1637 -" but the surname Black was not recorded there.

Conclusion:-

This has proved a difficult and time consuming search as there are numerous Blacks recorded in Co. Down. Unfortunately we have not been given an exact location in Co. Down where your ancestors lived.

However from the information you have given us it would seem your ancestors were a family of some importance in Co. Down.

We have been informed that information pertaining to John Black of Kinallen Co. Down would be worth pursuing as that family traded between the West Indies and America and were linen and woollen merchants. There are numerous leases etc in the Personal Names Index P.R.O.N.I. which might possibly prove fruitful and also many letters which might possibly be worth studying.

On the basis of information found we think that further research might possibly prove successful but of course we cannot definitely promise this.

The choice of course is yours, but upon looking through this report you wish us to continue with further research please set a monetary limitation and enclose a one third deposit.

We shall close here and hope you are pleased with the standard of work produced by Irish Genealogical Services.

Yours sincerely,

David M. Elroy

John Strice or Strice

THE 1802 MURDER OF DAVID TROTTER IN MISSOURI

David Trotter was said to have been born in Augusta Co. Virginia about 1755 where he served in the Revolution. He was the son of James Trotter Sr. and his wife Mary. James Trotter purchased 268 acres of land on Naked Creek in Augusta County on 18 Aug. 1749, from James Wood, Deed Book 2:298, (Lyman Chalkley, Chronicles of the Scotch Irish Settlement in Virginia 1745-1800, [Genealogical Publishing Co. 1966] hereinafter Virginia Chronicles 3:275. On Nov. 17, 1778, James and Mary Trotter transferred part of the plantation where they resided, to David Trotter and James Trotter Jr., Augusta Co. Deed Book 22:398, 400. Fathers usually transferred land to their sons after they reached the age of majority, which is helpful in dating the births of David and James Jr., probably by 1757.

David was appointed a Lieutenant on June 17, 1782, Augusta County Court Order Book 18, page 75. In the same book on page 258, 20 July 1784, David Trotter was recommended for Captain on advice of Captain James Trotter who was about to remove to Kentucky. David was qualified as Captain in the same book, p. 263. In Order Book 20, p. 283, on May 17, 1787, David Trotter was removed as Captain and recommended John McCutchen to replace him, Virginia Chronicles, 3:556; 1:231, 236, 249. David probably moved to Kentucky in 1787. There are many other references to the Trotter family in Augusta Co. records, which helps to identify them as a family.

Preston Trotter, a grandson of James Sr., wrote a letter to a Trotter relative in 1852 narrating the history of his Trotter family. He mentioned their residence in Augusta Co. Virginia prior to the Revolutionary War. He wrote that his grandparents were buried on the home property of their son Joseph, nine miles east of Paris, Bourbon County, Kentucky. Also, that his grandfather was buried circa 1807, age 90, his grandmother four years later, age 96. Preston wrote that Col. James Trotter, (Jr.) was a man of note in Augusta Co. Virginia and Lexington, Kentucky. Preston wrote that a brother of Joseph and Col. James Trotter, (Jr.) settled early on the Mississippi (River) and was murdered in his house by Indians because he refused them liquor. He stated that they cleft open his skull with a hatchet. Extracts from this letter were published in Historical Collection of Joseph Habersham Chapter, 2:334-336, D.A.R., Atlanta, Georgia, copy at FHC, Salt Lake City, Utah.

In 1790, David Trotter was listed on the census in Bourbon Co. Kentucky. He was known to have resided in Madison Co. Kentucky from 1794-1800, (births of children, research of Mildred Lasater; 1800 Madison Co. Tax List). By 1801, he had moved to the New Madrid District of Upper Louisiana which was then a Spanish Colonial Territory, (now Missouri), where he filed for a Spanish Land Grant. (Walter Lowrie, Early Settlers of Missouri as Taken From Land Claims in the Missouri Territory [Washington, D.C., 1834; 1986 reprint by Southern Historical Press], hereinafter Missouri Land Claims, 1:546, 585). The original records which Lowrie consulted are located at the National Archives.

Missouri, including the New Madrid District, was not part of the United States until 1803 when the Louisiana Purchase was ceded. Prior to that time the western boundary of the United States was the Mississippi River. France governed the area which is now Missouri before 1700; Spain ruled from 1770 to 1800. Spain divided the area into five districts, of which New Madrid was one. It was described as extending from Tywappity Bottom to the mouth of the St. Francis River, having no western boundary. The area was receded to France in 1800 by the secret Treaty of San Ildefonso. The government continued to be operated under the Spanish, although technically they had no authority. (Felix E. Snider and Earl A. Collins, Cape Girardeau, Biography of a City, [Missouri, 1956], hereinafter Cape Girardeau, 63-64).

The New Madrid District encompassed Tywappity Bottom, a very fertile area located opposite the mouth of the Ohio River, (where it meets the Mississippi), and all the country as far west as White River, (Louis Houck, A History of Missouri, [Chicago 1908], hereinafter History of Missouri, 2:154).

David Trotter obtained a certificate of permission to settle from Spanish government authorities. He was required to survey, cultivate and inhabit his claim for three years. The law permitted one tract of land per person, with other land as allowed for the wife and children of a settler, totalling not more than one mile square. It was required that a written plat then be submitted for recording. After satisfying these regulations, a grant could become legal upon application, (History of Missouri, 3:38-39).

The town of New Madrid was located in the New Madrid District, bordering the Mississippi River. Before 1804, it was the gateway of commerce to the Gulf of Mexico. It was a bustling, important town. All boats were required to land there to have their cargo inspected. This cargo originated from all parts of the United States. It was common for one hundred boats to land there in a day, (History of Missouri, 2:136, 3:170). The original town of New Madrid has been inundated by the Mississippi River through the years, causing the town to be relocated several times. (Goodspeed's History of Southeast Missouri, [Goodspeed Publishing Co. Washington, D.C. 1888, Ramfre reprint, Cape Girardeau Missouri, 1964], hereinafter History of Southeast Missouri, 436). It was twenty five miles from Grande Prairie where David Trotter was murdered to the New Madrid site where Spanish officials were stationed who served the Grande Prairie area. (New Madrid County Missouri Records, hereinafter New Madrid Records, catalogued as 1,6:"1026"). This is a document which was handwritten in French in March 1802, by Pierre Antoine Laforge who was officially settling the estate of David Trotter, (sic). A copy of this document is in possession of the Missouri Historical Society, St. Louis.

The Governor General at New Orleans was the supreme authority in the Province of Louisiana under Spanish rule. The Upper Louisiana Territory was governed by the Lt. Governor at St. Louis. The commandant of each district served under him. Business had to be conducted in three languages, Spanish, French and English as well as many Indian dialects, (Cape Girardeau, 64).

In 1801, David Trotter is listed as being in Tywappity Bottom, Marais des Peches or Fish Lake, (History of Missouri, 2:164). David, (or his heirs), claimed 500 arpents¹ of land on Tywappity, New Madrid District, by certificate of permission to settle and certificate of survey in 1802. Proof that Trotter had settled there was attested to by Jacob Myers² March 21, 1806: "David Trotter settled in 1800, built a cabin, dug a well, cleared and cultivated ten acres of land until 1804. At that time Trotter had a wife, about eight children and five or six slaves." On March 21, 1806, the board granted the 500 arpents as per Trotter's certificate of permission to settle. On December 13, 1810, the board was of the opinion that the land ought not to be granted, (Missouri Land Claims, 1:546).

About 1801, David Trotter, Sr. claimed 340 acres, Land Survey #626, grant located on Sikeston Ridge between Morley and Sikeston, (Edison Shrum, The History of Scott Co. Missouri, [Scott Co. Historical Society, 1984]:33). Certificate #626 was issued by the Board of Commissioners for David Trotter Sr. on March 7, 1811 by settlement right. This was for 400 acres of land on Lake St. Mary in the New Madrid District. These certificates were issued to ascertain and adjust titles and claims in the Territory of Louisiana, as the area was called under possession of the United States, (Missouri Land Claims, 1:585).

¹an arpent was equivalent to approximately one acre of land.

²Myers was from Pittsburgh, Pa.

By January 1802, David Trotter had settled in Grand Prairie which was located within the New Madrid District. He was permitted to sell liquor, possibly as a trader. On at least one occasion he traded liquor to Machecou Indians, (New Madrid Records, "1026"). These Indians were described as Mashcoux or self-styled Talapousa of the Creek Nation. A public road known as the King's Highway was built shortly after 1789, the time that the New Madrid Post was established. The highway ran from New Madrid to St. Louis, passing through Big Prairie, (History of Missouri, 2:150-151).

The following summary was extracted from a document, handwritten in French on January 30, 1802 by Pierre Antoine Laforge (sic) and countersigned by the other witnesses. New Madrid Records, 1, 6, "1026".

In Grande Prairie, on January 28, 1802, a group of five Machecou Indians entered the house of David Troter, (sic) demanding liquor which he refused to supply. Troter tried to satisfy other demands of the Indians by giving them meat, but they continued to be disorderly.

Pierre Antoine Laforge was stationed at New Madrid under command of the Commandant. He happened to be in Grande Prairie to settle the estate of another man and was accompanied by his official interpreter. As a representative of the Commandant, Laforge was requested to go to David Troter's house to quell the incident by virtue of his authority. He was accompanied by Jean Lavallee, Storehouse Guard of the Post, (who had an official insignia on his hat); Jean Charpentier, Interpreter for the King; Louis Coignard and Louis Baby, storekeepers; Elisha Winsor, Thomas Winsor, Conrad White and Edward Robertson, neighbors of Troter.

When these men arrived at Troter's house, the Indians had their carabines slung and their tomahawks in their hands. They had overturned and smashed furniture. Laforge and his group were conciliatory, receiving gifts of a leg of venison, a turkey and two knives from the Indians, but the most rebellious Indians were milling around the yard firing their carabines, menacing with their tomahawks, and demanding liquor. Later, the Indians decided to take up their demands behind Troter's house, making loud cries and singing.

The group with Laforge admonished Troter, blaming him for the trouble with the Indians and endangering the other settlers. This, because he had supplied the Indians with liquor at a previous time. Troter requested that some of his neighbors stay with him fearing that the Indians would return. Six neighbors had arrived when Laforge and his group left, apparently having decided that the incident was under control. By this time night was falling. The neighbors Troter had called to protect him decided they were insufficiently armed and returned to their homes to protect their own families.

At eight o'clock that night, Jacob White, one of the neighbors called by Troter, arrived at Elisha Winsor's house where the officials were lodged. He stated that David Troter had been attacked, was bleeding and perhaps was dead. He told the group that the Indians had probably left Troter's house. The group at Winsor's house agreed to go to aid Troter. When they arrived, they found the Indians continuing their frenzy, firing carabines and making frightful noises. The group decided not to go to aid Troter because they believed the Indians were too excited to accept the authority of Laforge and Lavallee. Further, the group was unarmed. They returned to Winsor's house to discuss the situation. Another neighbor arrived and stated that Troter's house was on fire. The group could see the fire from Winsor's house.

The next morning at 7 o'clock, Peter Clyne arrived at Winsor's house. He stated that he had observed the rioting, having hidden behind the fence of Troter's house when the savages had returned. He gave this account of the tragedy. He stated that one savage entered and asked for liquor which Troter refused. The Indian seemed to be reasonable and Troter asked him to stop harassing him and requested that he be his friend. The Indian requested a drink of water which Troter supplied. About this time, twenty two other savages entered the house. Troter asked one of the Indians who appeared to be sober to request the others to leave his house immediately. Clyne stated that he heard what sounded like someone being struck with a club, from within the house. He deduced that a Negro man, in the house with David, had struck one of the Indians. He saw the Negro run out of the house with a club in his hand. The Negro was trying to escape over the fence, but an Indian was closely chasing him. The Negro was obliged to strike the Indian with his club in order to be free to ascend the fence. A Negress was also in Troter's house. She escaped, although chased by an Indian. The group of Indians then left Troter's house to rejoin their band.

Next, they returned to Troter's house and attacked him furiously. Clyne stated that David Troter fended off the first assault successfully, but that other Indians joined the fray and overpowered him. Later, Clyne saw Troter lying immobile, "bathing in his own blood."

After hearing Clyne's account the next morning, Laforge and his group went to Troter's house where they found his body. His head was burned and disfigured, his scalp lifted. His abdomen was burned and his throat slashed. He had several knife stabs on his body and two bullet wounds. His home and its contents were burned. The size of the burned house was thirty four by sixteen feet. It had consisted of two rooms and a gallery with another room in the rear which served as a dairy.

One of La forge's duties was to take inventory of and settle the estates of deceased inhabitants who resided in his District. This was speedily done to take advantage of his not having to make a subsequent trip to Grande Prairie. The French document details the inventory taken on January 30, 1802. All legal papers of the family were burned, including papers that could prove known debts owed to Trotter. Marie Givens, widow of David Troter, and their seven children were listed: James over 21 yrs; Robert, 19 yrs; David, 17 yrs; Patsy Alim/Alain, 14 yrs; Polly, 12 yrs; Samuel, 8 yrs; Betsy, 5 yrs.

A month later, widow Marie Troter was appointed Guardian of her children. Edward Robertson was first named as Guardian Supervisor, but his name was crossed out and Elisha Winsor was named instead. This decision was made by seven friends and relatives of David Troter as directed and written by Laforge in a continuing document. The seven men were Edward Robertson, Christopher, Thomas and Elisha Winsor, Conrad and Jacob Wheat and Daniel Barton. The family continued to reside in the area and David's Land Claim was finally settled in 1811, (Missouri Land Claims, 1:585).

David's real estate consisted of a house thirty four by sixteen feet on a tract of 800 arpents of land in Grande Prairie and another tract of four hundred arpents above Grande Prairie containing a house eighteen by twenty two feet. Both tracts had been acquired from Edward Robertson. Troter also had a right to one hundred additional arpents of land which his widow claimed for her own use. Edward Robertson claimed important debts, including a mortgage, against the real property of the estate.

The continuing document mentioned that widow Marie Troter hoped to comply with payment of debts as scheduled, so that she would not have to sell her property.

Col. Charles De Lassus, formerly in command at New Madrid, was appointed Lt. Governor of Upper Louisiana in 1799 and was in command until the time of the Louisiana Purchase, (History of Missouri, 2:137). He ordered the mobilization of a large group of militia, equal to almost a regiment, to search for the Indians that murdered David Trotter. This "Expedition to New Madrid" took about six weeks. The main group came from New Orleans and were joined by local militia. Five of the renegades were captured and sent to the seat of government at New Orleans for sentencing. There, the Governor General sentenced Tewanaye, the principal culprit, to be shot to death on January 3, 1803 at New Madrid. While being returned to New Madrid by boat, Tewanaye tried to escape. He attacked Robert McCoy, who was in command of transporting the Indians, crippling him for life. Tewanaye was subdued and placed in irons, (History of Southeast Missouri:482).

As an example, Tewanaye was executed in front of his cohorts, amidst official military pomp which included cavalry, drum beating, coffin bearing, etc. Military officers were required to witness the release of the other four prisoners to their Chief Agypousetchy (sic), who would be responsible for them. Two Indian chiefs, Aypuletsky (sic) and Kaskaloua were present at the execution. These two chiefs had met in council and agreed that the punishment was just. Their principal chief was said to have been satisfied with the verdict, (History of Southeast Missouri, 486, 488).

Fearing a serious Indian uprising if Tewanaye was executed, the Spanish Authorities planned a considerable show of military force to impress the Indians. One group of 184 highly trained militia from Cape Girardeau joined those under Col. DeLassus. Each man who joined the expedition received 300 arpents of land in lieu of pay for six weeks duty with no combat, (Cape Girardeau, 36-37).

In the Cape Girardeau District, another of the five districts under Spanish rule, grants of land were promised to any men who volunteered to act as guards on the execution of Tewanaye. Thousands of acres of land was granted by Concession to anyone claiming they had volunteered. They did not receive a certificate, but their names were entered in the Commandant's book, (History of Missouri, 3:37). Children of eight or nine years were guarding the captive indians as noted by DeLassus, (History of Southeast Missouri, 486). The promise of land may have influenced the townspeople to permit their children this duty.

The murder of David Trotter was so disturbing to the inhabitants that Col. De Lassus issued strict new orders regarding punishment to be meted out to people who sold or gave liquor to the Indians. Tavern keepers were to be limited and appointed only after proving that they would conform to the law. Anyone not conforming to the orders would be fined and imprisoned for three days upon the first offense; 15 days upon the second offense; sent to New Orleans, at their own expense, upon the third offense. Further, anyone supplying liquor to the Indians would be put in irons, imprisoned at New Orleans until sentencing and his effects seized, (History of Southeast Missouri, 487).

When Col. De Lassus relinquished the government of Upper Louisiana to the American representative, Capt. Stoddard in 1803/4, he wrote an official letter regarding the Indians who murdered David Trotter. They were described as vagabond robbers who had been expelled from their tribe and had committed barbarities of stealing, killing, violating or burning houses on both sides of the Mississippi River for a period of ten years, (History of Southeast Missouri, 488).

The Spanish Land Grants became quite controversial because of the change to United States rule after the Louisiana Purchase. Many land speculators swarmed to the area, bribed officials to predate official books and claimed land on which they had not settled prior to the Purchase. It was in this climate that David's widow, Maria Givens Trotter, had to protect her rights and those of her children. Many of the settlers were uneducated or uninformed and did not comply correctly with regulations requiring the recording of their land. These people lost their settlement rights and their land was forfeited.

The following takes note of some of the lives of the men mentioned in the French document and those involved with the capture of the murderers of David Trotter.

In 1802, New Madrid had three Spanish military Organizations. One was a Dragoon Co. Another was composed of infantry militia commanded by Captain Don Juan LaVallee, Lt. Pierre Antoine LaForge and Ensign Joseph Charpentier, (History of Missouri, 2:141).

LaForge was an educated Frenchman from an aristocratic family. He was educated for the priesthood, but fell in love with his cousin and married her. He was driven out of Paris by the revolution and emigrated to Ohio. In 1794, he moved to New Madrid where he was employed as an interpreter and writer. He did not write English. He was also Adjutant of Militia, Justice of the Peace and Notary Public. In 1803, he was appointed Commandant and became Judge of the Court of Common Pleas. During the earthquake of 1811, he became ill and died from exposure, (History of Southeast Missouri, 287-8).

LaVallee was described as a merchant, sub-Lieutenant of Militia and Storekeeper of the Magazine³ of the King. He was second in command in the search for Trotter's murderers. About 1803, LaVallee was appointed ad interim Commandant of New Madrid, serving competently until the transfer of the Purchase to the U.S. He was intelligent, brave and prudent. He spoke and wrote Spanish, French and English. He served three years as Judge of the Court of Common Pleas. He died at New Madrid, (History of Southeast Missouri, 290).

Joseph Charpentier was a Royal interpreter, attorney and trader.

Edward Robertson, trader and merchant, settled in Cape Girardeau District in 1795. He moved to Grande Prairie in 1798 where he was appointed as Syndic, (commandant). He owned a tavern, (History of Missouri, 2:190). He was issued Commissioner's certificate #629 by settlement right on Lake St. Mary, New Madrid District on March 8, 1811, (Missouri Land Claims, 585). He was in the group with LaForge who went in the afternoon but decided not to go to the aid of David Trotter in the evening. He was first appointed Guardian Supervisor of David Trotter's children, but his name was later crossed out. It was, apparently, his son Edward who married Patsy, daughter of David Trotter Sr. David's certificate was #626.

Elisha Winsor was said to have arrived in the New Madrid area with Col. Morgan⁴ before 1800. He was a judge of the Court of Common Pleas from 1805-1812, (History of Southeast Missouri, 286, 333). He and Thomas Winsor were issued land certificates #620 and #621 on January 31, 1812, for order of survey on Bayou St. Thomas, New Madrid District, (Missouri Land Claims, 1:585). Christopher Windsor, one of the signers of the estate papers of David Trotter settled on Bayou St. Thomas in 1796, where he owned a cotton mill. Elisha Winsor was in the group with LaForge who went to the house of David Trotter in the afternoon but decided not to go to his aid in the evening. Elisha was Guardian supervisor of the children of David Trotter.

Daniel Barton owned a mill and other buildings in Grand Prairie in 1799. He married Catherine Medard. He was one of the seven friends and relatives who decided on a Guardian for the children of David Trotter.

Captain Robert Mc Coy, who transported the Indian Tewanaye to and from New Orleans for sentencing, was a prominent resident of New Madrid residing there by 1791. He was Adjutant General of Militia, and was in command of the Galliotte L'Activa, (boat). He was also an Indian trader. He died in 1840 and was buried in New Madrid. Years later, when the old cemetery was washing into the river, an old Negro dug up the bones of McCoy, his old master, and moved them to a safer place, (History of Missouri, 2:143).

Comments by compiler:

Dame Marie Givens, widow of David Trotter, as she was described in the French document signed by mark as Mary Givens on January 30, 1802. It would appear that Givens was her maiden name. Knowing that this took place in Missouri, it was a bit of a shock to read that Marie was asked what property her husband owned in America, in addition to what was owned in this country, (meaning Spain or France).

It is difficult to understand why LaForge's group of nine men went to Trotter's home unarmed when they knew full well that the Indians were hostile. At least three of LaForge's group were experienced military men. The other six neighbors, that responded to Trotter's request for protection, also did not seem prepared for hostility.

A descendant erected a marker for David Trotter in the Sikeston City Cemetery, Sikeston, Missouri. He was probably buried elsewhere, because this cemetery was established at a later date. His name appears on a Plaque of Honor in the Scott Co. Missouri Courthouse.

David Trotter was the compiler's 3rd great grandfather. His son Robert, who was 19 yrs old when his father was murdered, was next in compiler's direct descent. Robert was issued Commissioner's certificate #622 for 200 acres of land on Bayou St. Thomas, New Madrid District, by settlement right, on January 31, 1811. This was just ahead of his father's certificate #626, (Missouri Land Claims, 1:585).

Robert's elder brother James was issued certificate #1087 for 200 acres on Bayou St. Thomas by settlement right, June 20, 1812, (Missouri Land Claims, 596). His descendant, Mildred Vaughn Lasater, (Mrs. Fred), still resides in Scott Co. Missouri in 1993, D.A.R. member 638472.

David Trotter Jr. also filed a claim for 200 arpents of land on Bayou St. Thomas. He had a special permission to settle, or warrant of survey dated 16 Dec. 1801, and a certificate of survey dated 22 February, 1806. On June 20, 1808, William Cox attested: "David Trotter built a cabin in 1802, cultivated twelve acres and inhabited it in the following year. He was a single man over 21 and had one slave." On March 4, 1806, the commissioners stated that David had two tracts of land under the same permission or warrant of survey. One was inhabited and cultivated, the other not. The board rejected the claim. On January 31, 1811, the board's opinion was that the claim ought not to be granted, (Missouri Land Claims, 480-481). The other children of David Trotter Sr. were too young to file their own claim.

The New Madrid area lies on an earth fault where a major quake shook the area in December 1811, less than a year from the time that the Missouri land claims were settled. At this time the river ran backward, a phenomenon which has not occurred since that time. In 1815, residents whose property was destroyed, were offered equal acres of alternate land in other parts of Missouri, (History of Missouri, 3:179). This may explain why some of the children of David Trotter Sr. were located in Howard Co. Missouri in 1818. (Deed Book 10, pp. 410-412, 26 July 1818, New Madrid Co. Missouri, researched by Mildred Lasater; reference not seen by compiler). Some of the children returned later to Scott Co. Missouri

Readers interested in searching other Trotter descendants of James Trotter Sr. may wish to read the manuscript, Family of James and Mary Trotter of Augusta Co. Virginia written by Henry Hart Beeson in 1960, copy on microfilm 1318197 at FHC, Salt Lake. His only mention of David Trotter identifies him as a son of James Trotter Sr. and his wife Mary. He wrote that David was a soldier in the Revolutionary War serving from Augusta Co. Va. under Samuel Cutchan. He wrote that James Trotter, Jr. was born 1753. Also, that Preston Trotter was born 1795 and died 1866.

I am indebted to George Stead and Janine Nilsen who translated the French document for me. They stated that they are not French scholars and that there may be some errors in the translation.

Article of agreement made and entered into this the 6th March 1860 between D. W. Dodds and W. P. Maxwell both of Calorell Cty Kentucky, as follows, that for and in consideration of the sum of twenty five dollars paid to above mentioned Dodds by said Maxwell, the receipt of same is hereby acknowledged have agreed to make a corner on a post oak immediately at the south west corner of my field near the said Maxwell's house in his and my line, and run with said line and eastwardly direction to a fallen corner in a lane between said Maxwell and myself and to continue same course untill we intersect another of our lines supposed to be in the middle of and other lane that is between our farms, then we make a corner, and I the said Dodds am to hold from said Maxwell by sufficient conveyance all the land the above specified line will cut off of his land to mine and again I am to start as before from the same post oak at the corner of my field on the hill as before described and run about parallel with my fence a northerly direction at the west end of my field until we strike another of mine and said Maxwell's lines and then Maxwell agrees to continue same line, same course untill it strikes another of his and my lines, then I am to continue same line same course to a hickory and make the same a corner as agreed upon, and again I am to hold from said Maxwell by sufficient conveyance all the land the last above specified line will cut off of his land to mine and said Maxwell is to hold from me by sufficient conveyance all the land the last above specified line will cut off of my land to him, and where this last line cuts off said Maxwell's fence to me I am to appropriate the same to raising a division fence between us on last or same line as soon as prac-
